Units of Maryland Guard Left Shore for Pa. Camp

After spending annual two-week summer encampment for the last two years in pup tents in Virginia's A.P. Hill Reservation, troops of the 29th "Blue and Gray" Division of the Maryland National Guard return this year to garrison quarters a tIndiantown Gap, Pa.

This year's encampment, which began last Saturday and ends Aug. 7 will mark the first time the Division has been at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation since the summer of 1949. Situated about 100 miles northwest of Baltimore and only 20 miles east of Harrisburg ,the Gap will be a sharp departure for the guardsmen.

They will live in barracks for the most part of their stay with only three nights in the field, in contrast to last year at A.P. Hill, where they spent the entire period sleeping on the ground.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Bataalion, left the Centreville Armory at 8:15 a.m. on Saturday morning under the command of Lt. Col. Victor P. Gillespie, battalion commander, and Capt. William E. Roe, III, company commander.

Training for the first week of encampment consist mainly of range firing with individual and crew-served weapons, tactical training of the individual, communications and pioneer and ammunition and pioneer and ammunition platoon specialist training, motor schools, a division retreat CBX ,a division parade, and on-the-job training for clerks cooks and truck drivers.

Chamber of Commerce Says Factories Needed, Water Industry Dying

The need for planning and the relation of planning to small industry were discussed last Monday night at a meeting in Stevensville High School called by the Tidewater Chamber of Commerce of Queen Anne's County.

William P. Rock, of the Baltimore Association of Commerce, told his audience of about 50 persons that industries were interested in locating in Maryland because of the State's proximity to heavy consumer areas.

He was introduced by Lee G. Bell president of the chamber. Mr. Bell commented that the "water industry is slowly dying" and that the area needs small factories for local people and people now moving into the county.

Mr. Rock advised careful planning in advance of a zoning law. He said professional help was necessary.

Members of the new Chamber of Commerce, representatives of county organizations and candidates for local office attended.
