Traffic Light to Be Set Up at Church Hill

The Church Hill Town Commisrioners say that they have been given assurance by the Maryland State Roads Commission that a traffic light will be installed in the center of town and signs erected for one-way parking in an effort to facilitate the flow of traffic through the community.

Since the new board entered office three months ago, they have set out on a program of safety for the town.

"We have urged the State Roads Commission to install the light as soon as as possible." said Emile Moore, one of the board members. "We think it is a dangerous situation on our main street with many out-of-state cars pouring through town."

By-Pass Also Pushed

The commissioners also want the proposed by-pass constructed around the town, but this project has been sidetracked for the time being.

Since the opening of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge two years ago, some 3,500 cars a day have been clocked on Route 213 which connects the Bay Bridge with the Delaware Bay Span and Church Hill is one of the small communities astride the highway without any type of traffic signal.

The light is to be erected where State Route 19 enters the U.S.Route 213 in the center of town.

Costs to be Split

It is understood that the state will pay half of the cost of erecting the new signal with the town of Church Hill paying half.

Parking is now allowed on both sides of the street and it is almost impossible for two cars to pass when vehicles are parked on both sides of the street.

Parking will be prohibited on the east side of U.S. 213 going north and signs will be erected to that effect.

Other members of the town commissioners board are MauriceSmith and Gilbert Everett .
