...n of the re... from the ...04, began ...ministers ...t the cer... ...he celebra... ...n their services. ... the pastors spoke of the jubilee after their sermons so that "home-coming week" was started in an official and religious way. There was nothing on the program for the day. A throng of sightseers traversed the streets during the afternoon and at night looking at the decorations by day and the illuminations by night.

Many thousands of electric lights flashed out at eight o'clock Monday night, illuminating brilliantly the downtown section and causing the City Hall, Courthouse and other conspicuous buildings to stand out in a blaze of glory. Almost simultaneously two bands of music, one stationed at the City Hall reviewing stand and the other at the "Governor's stand" on McLane place, began to play inspiring and patriotic airs.

The whole of what was formerly the "burnt district" was aglow with light and color, and crowds surged up and down the streets enjoying the display. Thus really began the "Greater Baltimore jubilee celebration and home-coming week." The city was in readiness and had put on gala attire to receive the out-of-town visitors. Bunting had been flung to the breeze and many of the business houses on Baltimore, Charles, Lexington, Fayette, Holliday, Howard, Eutaw and other streets were handsomely decorated, the Maryland colors, orange and black, predominating, and artistically mingled with the red, white and blue.

The jubilee military parade, with 4,000 men in line, on Tuesday, was witnessed by thousands of cheering people. It was reviewed by Governor Warfield, Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte, Mayor Timanus and other prominent men. An elaborate military banquet, at which the officers of the military organizations in the city, of the cruiser, Newark, members of the governor's staff and others appeared in full-dress uniform, was held at the Belvedere Hotel. There were more than 200 present as the guests of the Jubilee Association. Speeches were made by Governor Warfield, Chairman Frank N. Hoen, Mayor Timanus and others. The second class cruiser, Newark with 500 men on board, arrived in port early in the morning and anchored in Canton Hollow. Grouped about the cruiser in Canton Hollow were the revenue cutters, Seminole, Apache and Chase and the naval militia monitor Miantonomoh.

At 8 o'clock the illumination of the downtown streets and the public buildings, including the Courthouse and City Hall, again turned night into day, and thousands walked the streets in admiration. From 8 until 11 o'clock a band discoursed music at the governor's reviewing stand, at McLane Place, and at the City Hall stand.

The climax of the jubilee celebration was reached Wednesday when the industrial parade, with about 30,000 men, marched through the city and was cheered by thousands along the route. A large number of floats, presenting the wares of many well-known business firms and establishments, made up the greater part of the long procession. Here and there were grotesque and comical groups in carriages and afoot. The parade, it is estimated, was witnessed by 300,000 persons, who showed considerable enthusiasm, and was reviewed at different points by Governor Warfield, Mayor Timanus, the jubilee officials and a number of prominent Baltimoreans. The parade took exactly one hour and fifty minutes to pass any one point. It was in progress during the hottest part of the day, the temperature at eleven o'clock being 81°, and hundreds of the men in line, as well as thousands of the spectators, suffered greatly.

About 1,400 firemen, including men from Washington, York, Chester, Westminster and other places, many of whom helped fight the great fire which in February, 1904, wiped out the heart of the city, paraded on Thursday afternoon. They were enthusiastically greeted by a large crowd along the route and were reviewed by Governor Warfield and Mayor Timanus. In the evening the visiting firemen were taken to the Home Products Show, at Electric Park, where they were again given a warm welcome.

Last night was King Carnival's night and the people answered the appeal to make the affair a fitting climax for the signally successful week of rejoicing.

Pain from a Burn Promptly Relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

A little child of Michael Strauss, of Vernon, Conn., was recently in great pain from a burn on the hand, and as cold applications only increased the inflammation, Mr. Strauss came to Mr. James N. Nichols, a local merchant, for something to stop the pain. Mr. Nichols says: "I advised him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application drew out the inflammation and gave immediate relief. I have used this liniment myself and recommend it very often for cuts, burns, strains and lame back, and have never known it to disappoint." For sale by B. E. Cockey & Co.

In these days of rush and hurry courtesy is often forgotten. In the mad, pell mell rush of our life little things are done to offend that we rather remained undone. A hastily eaten meal and its resultant headache may cause us social or financial loss. The wise man or woman is the one who relieves little ills of this sort by a little dose of Kodol for dyspepsia. It digests what you eat and puts your stomach back into shape. J. S. Denny and Wye Mills drugstore

Our town was like dead Old Defenders' Day. Our bank was closed and many of our people visited the Baltimore Jubilee. It was an unusual sight to see two persons in our business section between 11 and 5 o'clock.

The home of William Pratt in Winchester, had a very narrow escape from being burned one day this week. A coal oil stove caught fire and the blaze ignited several articles and had gained considerable headway before it was gotten under control.

Mrs. William Richards, of Baltimore, whilst opening oysters at the residence of August Schellberg, last Sunday morning, badly stabbed her left hand. The oyster knife slipped, entering the fleshy part of the palm, until it touched the bone. Mrs. Richards has a very sore wound.

While B. E. Cockey was gearing his horse last Friday evening, the horse tread on Mr. Cockey's right foot, pulling the nail of his great toe completely off and mashing two other toes. Mr. Cockey, when walking, has to use a cane. His wounds are improving.

A change in the design of the small bronze cent which has made its appearance each year since its adoption in 1864 is being considered by a congressional committee and experiments are also under way looking to the use of a new metal—either pure or of aluminum alloy—to take the place of that now used, which is 95 per cent. copper and 5 per cent. zinc.

About 11 o'clock Sunday morning as Kennard Bishop, Mary Lane and Edna C. Delahay, were turning the corner at Chas. S. Embert's residence in a spindle buggy, the front right wheel ran off the edge of the bridge and was completely smashed. The horse happened to be very gentle and stood still and no other damage at all was done. Another wheel was secured from W. S. Delahay and they continued their way.

John C. McConnor, son of John H. McConnor, and Mrs. Laura C. Mallalieu, both of Centreville, created quite a surprise among their friends Wednesday morning, when they drove to the Methodist Episcopal parsonage of Centreville at 9 o'clock and were married by Rev. Henry G. Budd. The couple left on the 9.38 train for Baltimore and Pen Mar. Upon their return they will reside at the home of the groom's parents in Centreville.

Thomas H. Cecil, residing on the Emory farm in Spaniards Neck, has invented and constructed a one man corn cutter, which does the work of three men. The machine is so constructed as to cut one row and no large turnrow is required, as it can be turned in the same space that it takes for a cultivator. It will carry forty hills before dumping and one horse is required to draw it. Mr. Cecil cut his entire crop with it. He has applied for a patent.

Probably the first reinforced concrete bridge to be built on the Eastern Shore of Maryland will be that of Greensboro, to be constructed under the supervision of Road Engineer Uhler. The commissioners of Caroline county met at Greensboro and decided on this kind of structure, which is used in government work everywhere and which is said to withstand ravages of time better than any other. The bridge will be 200 feet long, with double driveway and a walk on each side.

The new Child Labor Law took effect last Saturday. It provides that all children between 12 and 16 years of age, employed in any factory, store or at any gainful occupation, must obtain a certificate that they can read and write and are physically fitted for work. Children under 12 years, and all under 16 years who cannot read or write, are forbidden such employment. These certificates are issued by the County Health Officer, Dr. W. T. Henry, and there is a severe penalty for violation of this act by employers or parents.

The Following Printed Letter to Editors Appears in Our Dumb Animals.

We have observed with regret numerous sensational stories concerning alleged mad dogs and the terrible results to human beings bitten by them which are published from time to time in the newspapers. Such accounts frighten people into various nervous disorders and cause brutal treatment of animals suspected of madness; and yet there is upon record a great mass of testimony from physicians asserting the extreme rarity of hydrophobia in the dog, while many medical men of wide experience are of the opinion that if it develops in human beings at all, it is only on extremely rare occasions; that the condition of hysterical excitement in man described by newspapers as "hydrophobia" is merely a series of symptoms, due usually to a dread of the disease, such dread being caused by realistic newspaper and other reports acting upon the imaginations of persons scratched or bitten by animals suspected of rabies.

The late Dr. Hiram Corson, whose practice extended over a period of seventy years, during which time he searched diligently for the disease in man or animal, wrote under date of January 18, 1896, "I have never had a real case of hydrophobia."

Dr. Traill Green, a physician like Dr. Corson, accurate in observation, careful in statement, and whose practice also extends over a long period, writes under date of January 28, 1896, "I have never had a case of hydrophobia, nor have I ever seen a case in the practice of other physicians."

Dr. Matthew Wood, who has been in quest of the disease for twenty years, and who during two summers personally visited every case reported in Philadelphia, asserts that he never saw hydrophobia either in man or animal, and although six years ago, at the conclusion of a paper on the subject read before a large audience, he offered $100 to any person bringing him such a patient, yet so far no one has claimed the reward. Dr. Woods furthermore adds that although he has questioned many physicians on the subject he has not yet found one who has ever seen hydrophobia either in man or animal.

At the Philadelphia Dog Pound, where, on an average over six thousand vagrant dogs are taken up annually, and where the catchers and keepers are frequently bitten while handling them, not one case of hydrophobia has occurred during its entire history of twenty-five years, in which time about 150,000 dogs were handled.

The well-known specialist, Dr. Edward C. Spitzka, Professor of Medical Jurisprudence and of the Anatomy and Physiology of the Nervous System in the New York Post-Graduate School of Medicine, and President of the New York Neurological Society, writes: "Much of the observation of suspicious dogs is made through optics disturbed by fear, and by persons incompetent to interpret what they see." "Notwithstanding every effort," he continues, "made by the writer to secure the observation of rabies in man or dog, not a single opportunity has offered itself during the last eight years" (the period of his observation.)

The record of the London Hospital a few years ago showed 2668 persons bitten by angry dogs. None of them developed hydrophobia. St. George's Hospital, London, records 4,000 patients bitten by dogs supposed to have been mad. No case of hydrophobia.

In the record of all the diseases which have occurred at the Pennsylvania Hospital in a hundred and forty years only two cases which were supposed to be hydrophobia have occurred. One of these, however, the only one submitted to bacteriological test, did not confirm the diagnosis "hydrophobia," and the municipal authorities refused to accept the death as one from that disease.

Finally, Dr. Charles W. Dulles, Lecturer on the History of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, who has had the honor of being repeatedly appointed by the Medical Societies of the State to investigate rabies, and has read various papers on the subject before the American Medical Association, the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, the Philadelphia County Medical Society, the Medical Society of Pennsylvania, the Medico-Legal Society of New York, and has corresponded on the subject with most of the distinguished medical men of Europe, a physician familiar both with the literature of rabies, the history of Pasteur and the institutions called by his name, and who in addition has performed the almost incredible task of investigating, either personally or by correspondence with the physician or others in attendance, every case reported in the newspapers of the United States for the past sixteen years, shows that hydrophobia is extremely rare, so much so that he inclines to the view that "there is no such specific malady," having "after sixteen years of investigation failed to find a single case on record that can be conclusively proved to have resulted from the bite of a dog or any other cause."

In view, therefore, of the importance to the community of the above statements, may we not appeal to the press for their widest publication, and for the future suppression in its columns of such alarming and misleading reports as we have above indicated? Their prominence and the air of reality they give to what are but erroneous interpretations of phenomena having an entirely different meaning cause much suffering, especially to nervous persons, and also much cruelty to man's faithful companion, the confiding dog.

Alexander A. Richardson Dead.

Alexander A. Richardson, a veteran engineer of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died of chronic tuberculosis at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. A. Ringgold, in Centreville, Friday of last week. Mr. Richardson was born at Swansea, New Hampshire and came to Centreville about thirty years ago on the Queen Anne's & Kent Railroad. He served the Pennsylvania Railroad for over 42 years and retired in 1904. He was twice married but died a widower. Funeral services were held in Wilmington, Del., Monday and interment made in Lancaster county, Pa.

The Breath of Life.

It is a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chiefest study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought it consumption. O, it's grand for throat and lung troubles." MARYL... EXHIBITION

At the Jamestown Exposition—Dedication of Building, September 19.

The Maryland Commission to the Jamestown Exposition are beginning to take up the actual business preparations of the state's exhibition next year. The commission is facing the problem of making as good a show with its $65,000 as its neighbors—Virginia with $150,000 and Pennsylvania with over $100,000. It received many applications for spending special sums in different exhibits, but it was found that these sums would far exceed the amount of money at its disposal. The committee decided to ask the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association to recommend suitable men who might take the matter of collecting industrial exhibits and seeing that they were properly placed and cared for. The expense will be borne by the exhibitors.

The committee adopted measures to expedite the progress of the Maryland Building. The contract will be let and construction begun soon. The building will be of the Colonial period, combining effects found in historic buildings of the state. The wings of the building have wide connecting loggias and are in effect commodious porches, so arranged that they can be inclosed in inclement weather. The purpose was to secure as much room as possible for the view of Hampton Roads, which the building fronts.

The structure will be one of great dignity. It reaches almost across the lot of 165 feet and is in admirable harmony with the designs of the Virginia Building, which will be a reproduction of General Lee's home at Arlington, and of the Pennsylvania Building, which will be a reproduction of Independence Hall. Thus will be found together three of the most striking types of historic American architecture. The main portion of the building will be used for the display of historic furniture and in it will be reproduced the Senate Chamber at Annapolis, where Washington resigned his commission. There will be two stories, with suitable accommodations for visitors. There will be a reading room, a reception room and retiring rooms.

The plans for getting Virginia and North Carolina to unite with Maryland in the cornerstone laying on September 19 are being pushed. Governor Warfield and his staff will attend with the Maryland Commission.

A Noteworthy Career.

Tuesday's Baltimore American says: The recent resignation of Mr. Olin Bryan from the presidency of the United Surety Company directs attention to the fact that Mr. Bryan's career has been a noteworthy one. He was an Eastern Shore lad, with ambition to achieve something. He was educated in the public schools and the Conference Academy, Delaware, after which he studied law in the Maryland University School of Law, from which he graduated. His first political office was clerk to the commissioners of his county. He was elected a member of the House of Delegates in 1892 from Queen Anne's county, and from the first attracted attention as an able debater and hard-working member. In 1896 he came to Baltimore, where he was soon elected state senator from the Third legislative district. As city attorney his career was successful, and since then he has attracted attention in various ways. He is general counsel for the order of Heptasophs. Personally Mr. Bryan is most pleasant and affable, is approachable always, and a most delightful man to know.

Improvements About St. Peter's Church.

Rev. C. P. McGoldrick is having some necessary repairs and improvements made at St. Peter's Catholic Church property, near town. The entire front fence has been repaired and three new gates made. One, a large, double-gate, has been placed adjoining field of J. Louis Rhodes, to be used as entrance to driveway of cemetery. A small gate directly in front of sacred edifice with three stone steps before it. Another small gate divides the cemetery from the churchyard proper at the left of the entrance to the church. Bricks and ashes have been used to raise the grade about the church door. The parochial residence is also receiving attention. The rear porch has been torn away and new steps put in place. The front porch has received a new floor and other repairs and the exterior of the house is receiving a new dress of paint. Contractor Theodore Slaughter is doing the work in his usual substantial and effective way.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy Acts on Nature's Plan.

The most successful medicines are those that aid nature. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. Take it when you have a cold and it will allay the cough, relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and aid nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Thousands have testified to its superior excellence. It counteracts any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia. Price 25 cents. Large size, 50 cents. For sale by B. E. Cockey & Co.

Starving to Death.

Because her stomach was so weakened by useless drugging that she could not eat, Mrs. Mary H. Walters, of St. Clair St., Columbus, O., was literally starving to death. She writes: "My stomach was so weak from useless drugs that I could not eat, and my nerves so wrecked that I could not sleep; and not before I was given up to die was I induced to try Electric Bitters; with the wonderful result that improvement began at once, and a complete cure followed." Best health tonic on earth. Price 50c. Guaranteed at J. S. Denny.

Dear Sir: Now, may be, you can't get the goods; if you can, your fortune is made.

Cotton cloth—they call it muslin in some parts—at about the usual price per yard, but wider, twice as wide as some, and better, wears better, keeps white and whole a surprising time in all sorts of wear.

You could sell that cloth for hundreds of miles; there'd be no limit.

A yard goes further; one buys less yards. Wears longer; one buys less often. It always looks right till worn out. No one customer buys so much of it, but think of the number of customers!

May be you can't get it in cloth: but you can in paint: Devoe. Devoe is as if it were wider; a gallon goes further; you buy less gallons; you pay for less gallons; you pay for painting less gallons—as if one paid less for making a garment of that wide cloth—and it keeps its fresh look and sheds water till you have forgotten how old it is.

It isn't true in cloth, but it is in paint: the less you pay, the better it is; for the goodness of paint is reckoned by gallons; less gallons, more goodness. Goodness in paint is strength. The stronger a paint, the less gallons it takes for a job and the longer it wears

The case was an important ... and has excited general intere... among the taxpayers throughout the county. On July 8 last, shortly after the commissioners had appointed assessors or agents in the several districts for the purpose of reassessing property, and some of these assessors had begun their work, the bill of complaint was filed by E. H. Brown, J. Frank Harper, T. J. Keating and Madison Brown, the attorneys for the complainants, whereupon, Judge Pearce granted a preliminary injunction. Some days later the defendants, through their attorneys, James T. Bright and P. B. Hopper, filed their answer and moved to dissolve the injunction. The case was fully argued on August 2 last before Judges Pearce and Crothers.

The decree, signed by both Judges Pearce and Crothers, orders that the motion to dissolve the preliminary injunction be overruled; that the County Commissioners and their assessors, agents or employes "be and they are hereby perpetually enjoined from making any new general relisting and reassessment of the real and personal property in Queen Anne's county," and that the County Commissioners are perpetually enjoined from making any payments of any costs in connection with the new general assessment of real and personal property of Queen Anne's county for the purposes of taxation, whether for materials furnished or for service rendered in any way in connection with the new general relisting or reassessment.

William B. Reed, Sr., has been acting strangely of late and was placed in a sanatorium. He escaped from there sometime last week and was in town yesterday week. James B. Price, a friend of his, noticed his strange actions and watched him closely. Mr. Reed started for the railroad pier and Mr. Price followed him. When Mr. Reed reached the pier, he sat on a narrow ledge beside the elevator. Mr. Price warned him of his danger but Mr. Reed said he only wanted to meditate by the water. Mr. Price continued his persuasion until Mr. Reed followed him to town. The next we learned of his whereabouts was, Sunday night, when his relatives had him on the train returning him to the sanatorium near Baltimore.

When you have a cold it is well to be very careful about using anything that will cause constipation. Be particularly careful about preparations containing opiates. Use Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar, which stops the cough and move the bowels. J. S. Denny and Wye Mills drug store.

Well Worth Trying.

Wm. H. Brown, the popular pension attorney, of Pittsfield, Vt., says: "Next to a pension, the best thing to get is Dr. King's New Life Pills." He writes: "they keep my family in splendid health." Quick cure for headache, constipation and biliousness. 25c. Guaranteed at J. S. Denny

Hence we may reasonably figure on the presence of storm conditions—falling barometer rising temperature, cloudiness and rain—as we pass out of September, with conditions very favorable for a continued spell of threatening, stormy weather during the first week in October.

Fire at "The He...

A destructive fire ... Hermitage," the home of ... Williams, in Tilghman's Nec... day morning of last week shortly ... ter midnight. The loss of property amounted to about $6,000 which is covered by insurance. The large grain barn, two corn cribs, a hay and machine shed and workshop were consumed, together with about 400 bushels of wheat and 150 bushels of rye, all the farming implements and tools. The origin of the fire is unknown. Miss Williams, who has been on a European tour for two years, had given orders to a Baltimore architect for an entire remodelling of the property. Miss Williams intends making this one of the prettiest rural properties in the state.
