The swell Jamestown drink appears to be "Pocahontas punch." If traditionally true, it will, of course, not stop short of a knockout.

The people who assembled in the o[illegible] house, Centreville on Tuesday, [illegible]ere unanimous in their choice of the Crawford county system under which to conduct our primaries. This means that any voter can be a candidate for nomination at the primaries, if only he himself thinks he ought to be the man and he can announce his candidacy and have a chance for the people to select him at the primary election.

The large gathering and the enthusiasm manifested is a very good beginning for Democratic success this fall and now let the candidates come out so that we may have a good selection at the primaries for whose success to labor until the fall election.

Files of old newspapers are very embarrassing to commentators on weather conditions. Men ripe in years but of treacherous memories are often in evidence, when the weather is not normal or seasonable, with emphatic assertions that such conditions never existed before. The public which, as a rule, has neither the time nor the inclination to search ancient records, is then convinced that no preceding generation has had to contend with weather as capricious and phenomenal as the late spring frosts and the early spring torridity of our own times. But in time there appears the man w[illegible] a weakness for digging into newspaper files. This patient investigator has been operating in Cincinnati. He has discovered that on May 17, 1859, there was a blighting frost extending from the Mississippi river to the Eastern States. On June 5 there was another heavy frost, the wave of cold extending to the Atlantic Coast. There was great excitement among farmers, many of whom, believing their grain crops had been ruined, went into the market and bought flour. The frosts were followed by a period of excellent weather and crops were resown. The memory of man respecting weather conditions in the past is rarely to be trusted. We have heat out of season and cold out of season, but if we go back to the records we will find that there is nothing new under the sun and the weather has been behaving in an eccentric way for many years.

"Should a girl refuse to marry a man who uses tobacco?" was the question debated at a church sociable in Philadelphia the other evening. After listening to several oratorical efforts, pro and con, the jury, composed of both men and women, decided the momentous question in the negative. While not a part of the official decision, the opinion was expressed that the girl who resolved to marry none but a nonsmoker is extremely likely to tread the path of single blessedness all the length of her days. According to a tobacco journal, the number of nonsmokers in the United States is becoming proportionately less each year, notwithstanding the steady agitation in certain quarters against the "filthy weed" which was so abhorrent to the youthful Robert Reed. The increase of smokers is attributed in part to the growing tolerance of physicians and their efforts to correct the popular fallacy that tobacco is necessarily injurious to health even when used in moderation.

One of the participants in the Philadelphia debate declared that "the girl who marries a smoker commits bigamy, because her husband is first wedded to his weed and then to her." If the figures recently furnished by a New York importer of cigarettes are correct, it is possible we shall some day hear the question discussed: "Should a young man refuse to marry a girl who uses tobacco?" According to this importer, the sale of cigarettes to women is increasing at an enormous rate. "No fashionable luncheon is complete nowadays without a dainty package of cigarettes at the plate of each woman guest," says this authority. In self-defense men may be compelled to do missionary work among the women and convert them to the delights of the fragrant Havana and the satisfying pipe.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure
Digests what you eat.

The most astounding instance of thrift, probably on record comes from Wisconsin, where a widow is wearing her husband's false teeth, made over to fit her. She thought it extravagance to lose a good set of teeth as well as a husband, and is even depending on their rejuvenating effect to help her to another mate. And a woman with a nerve like this is quite capable of showing her teeth at any criticism of them.

A bill is proposed in New York to make death under treatment by Christian Science in case of minors manslaughter, when it is reasonably sure no regular medical treatment has been applied. In the case of adults who voluntarily dispense with the services of a physician, the law, in trying to repress what many consider an experiment in treatment of diseases and others a mania, finds itself against the question of individual rights, but in the case of children no such chances should be allowed to be taken for them, as they are helpless in the hands of parents and guardians and liable to be sacrified to theories with no voice of their own in the matter.

Laugh!

"Laugh and the world laughs with you" is about as true as anything ever written, and it is not only pleasant to have the world laugh with you, but it pays in every way. But it is hard to laugh—even to smile—if you are a victim of that prevalent malady, dyspepsia. However, thanks to the researches of medical men, dyspepsia is fast losing its terrors. A prescription to which it is said to yield very readily is composed of ¼ oz. Fluid Extract of Buchu, 1 oz. Bulso Mixture, ¼ oz. Fluid Extract Gentian Compound and 4½ ozs. water. If the stomach is sour, two tablespoonfuls of baking soda are added to the above. A tablespoonful of this is taken three times a day, before meals. Any good pharmacy can supply the ingredients named.

Ner[illegible] Indige[illegible]

The action [illegible] digestion is controlled by nerves leading to the stomach. When they are weak, the stomach is deprived of its energy. It has no power to do its work. If you want permanent relief, you must restore this energy. Dr. Miles' Nervine restores nervous energy, and gives the organs power to perform their functions.

"For many years I was an acute sufferer from nervous indigestion; at times I was so despondent life seemed almost a burden. I tried all kinds of remedies and various physicians with little or no relief, until one night last summer I saw Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure advertised. I resolved to make one more trial which I did in the purchase of one bottle of Nervine and one of Heart Cure. In a few days I began to feel better, which encouraged me so much that I continued the medicine until I had taken more than a dozen bottles. I am very much improved in every way; in body, mind and spiritr since. I make a special point to recommend the medicine, and I feel a sincere pleasure in knowing that several persons have been benefited through my recommendations."
A. S. MELTON, Ashville, N. C.

Dr. [illegible]les' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.
