All persons interested in the appointment of Judges and Clerks to serve in the respective districts at said Primary Elections are requested to meet the State Central Committee for Queen Anne's county in the Grand Jury room of the Court House at 1 o'clock P. JOHN E. GEORGE,
JAMES E. KIRWAN,
JOHN K. BROWN,
Democratic State Central Committee for Queen Anne's County.

We cannot help it. We have simply got to inquire what's in a name because a Miss Bible has been arrested for stealing.

The new Governor of Louisiana at his inauguration is to be attended by an escort of fifty of the prettiest picked girls in the state, dressed in white, with red hats, and mounted on coal-black horses. Running for office in Louisiana, it may be seen, has literally its attendant advantages.

At last the gigantic Paper Trust is to be investigated and we hope that from the investigation some good may result. But the only way in which it can be successfully dealt with will be to reduce or abolish the tariff upon the raw materials, and this is not to be expected at the hands of a Republican Congress and a Republican President. Individually we feel the power of this great Trust directly. The paper upon which this newspaper is printed costs us at present $85.00 per ton, when formerly we bought it for $60 per ton—an increase of fifty per cent. This increase falls directly upon us as we have not raised the subscription price of THE NEWS and advertising rates have materially decreased. The increase in the price of material holds good also on all stock used in our job work.

As a rule the extortionate prices enacted by these trusts fall finally upon the consumer. With the Beef Trust it is the people who eat the beef who pay the tribute. With the Lumber Trust it is the people who build houses and use lumber who finally pay the tribute to the Lumber Trust, as each successive dealer puts up the price in proportion to what it costs him, so that he loses nothing. But the consumer is the last man on the list and he has to "go down in his jeans."

With the Paper Trust, however, the tribute is paid by publishers. In very few instances have the consumers—that is the readers of newspapers—been called upon to pay it by a raise in the price of newspapers. The big dailies that have been selling for a penny apiece are still selling at that very low figure and as for this humble sheet it is still furnished to its subscribers at 50 cents a year even though the price of the paper upon which it is printed has risen fifty per cent.

We call attention to the facts because we believe that very few persons appreciate the fact that publishers are bearing the burden of this tax without shifting it upon the readers and have been doing so without complaint, and now that Congress has decided to investigate the concern that is oppressing us we hope some relief may be afforded us.

According to a certain scientist, a sure recipe for long life is to absolutely abstain from eating meat. However, this will not mean a long life for the Beef Trust.

A town in the State of Washington has decided to tax bachelors $5 a year. It will take a real mean man to give his wife an allowance that will make it cheaper to marry than to pay this tax.

Wheat for May delivery was again forced above the dollar mark in Chicago last week. The price is not likely to stay up long enough, however, for farmers to realize on it with the actual wheat now growing and only a little over two months from the harvest.

A man in Massachusetts caught a trout which had a five-dollar bill wrapped around its head. The story is authenticated by reliable witnesses, just the same as all other surprising fish stories, which this season are showing a superb disdain of any charge of nature-faking.

The crop situation, according to Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, is about the most promising, taken all round from wheat to cotton, among the April-end showings in the records of a decade. He winds up with the pessimistic note, however, that "you never can tell about the weather ahead."

Several Western railroads were fined in Chicago on a plea of guilty for violating the twenty-eight hour law in the transportation of cattle. Modern commerce is accused of many things, but when it openly admits that it needs the torture of animals in its business it is time in the interests of humanity to call a halt. If economy calls for infliction of suffering on animals from hunger and thirst, it is only the next step toward its taking risks with human life and limb to save time and money.

A Yale professor who is regarded as an epicure of some renown, in speaking of the oyster cocktail, said he thought the mixture an insult to anyone who had good taste. A well-known Baltimorean who enjoys distinction in the line of knowing what is good to eat was asked his opinion, and he thus replied: "An oyster cocktail is a vulgar dish. Oysters should be served alone. If one insists upon sauce he can call for it, but a good oyster is only ruined that way."

These two men are exactly right. People who insist upon putting on oysters sauces, catsups and other stuffs, to make them taste good, do not like oysters, and should devote themselves to sardines and limburger cheese. The oyster belongs to a class all by itself. It has merits of its own that should not be spoiled by perverted tastes. It is almost a sacrilege to destroy that delicate flavor, born in the mystery of the surge, where the pearls are born, by loading it with tomato sauce.

One might as well come right square up to the confessional and admit that he doesn't like oysters if he covers them with a decoction of catsups and condiments and drowns their nature with artificial flavors. The true art of eating is to get as close to nature as possible and let the sunlight, the dews, the south wind and the blue swirl of the bay season the food with their gentlest benediction.
