Our western farmers may have thrilled when President Coolidge told them that it was "the embattlee farmers" who stood at Concord Bridge and fired the shot heard around the world," and that id "these tillers of the soil of the great prairie states, prophets, pioneers of freedom, who rose to power in time to make it possibe for Lincoln to save the Union" American recognized the men "who turned the tide for the cause of Liberty in the Great World War." Unquestionably when pause followed period there must have been a hearty round of applause; but" when they woke up in the morning" many of these same farmers were asking themselves how come that the spirit of Concord Bridge seems all wrong when it comes to battling against the industrial and legislative exploitation that has dragged the men who feed the world down to the level of slaves of the soil.

The President spoke truly when he told his farmer friends that "it is not merely for a supply of food that we look to the farms, but as a never failing source from which we can always replenish the manhoodand womanhood of the nation." He might have added that it is the also to whom we look to absorb the major portion of American manufactured commodities and that when the farmer fails to buy, the effect of stagnant trade is felt in every nook and corner of the land. Hemight have added, too, that the farmer has grown tired of being jockeyed into making just enough money to keep the "wheels of industry humming," that he senses with the Secretary of Agriculture the oppressive injustice of present freight rates, and sees little relief in sight.

Possibly the President may be right in his denunciation of price fixing as a paternal offering that should find no place in the republic, but it must be remembered that the farmers have been driven to desperate ends.

The entre civilized and Christian world is in accord at this festive season. For a season, difference of all kinds will be forgotten Disputed questions between rival governments will be retired to the background. Personal grievances everywhere will be temporarily suspended. In fact. the world will declare a truce, and all the people will participate in a general observance and enjoyment of the greatest memorial day of all—the anniversaryof the birth of the Saviour of Man.

It is nowonder that all nations, and all peoples of all branches of the Christian religious faith unite in common purpose on this occasion. It is an anniversary that appeals as does none other. It continues in reverance and adoration what has proved to be the greatest blessing of mankind—the assurance of eternal salvation through the wonderful intercession of the Son of Man.

The birth of our Lord was heralded by angels, and tidings of the expected event reached the Wise Men of the East, who followed the star as it led them to the humble manger in Bethlehem where the Saviour of the world was born. Angels from on high sang the "glad tidings of great joy" to the shepherds who "watched their flocks by night." And soon the whole world of that day knew there had been a momentous change, and that there was one who could preach as no man had ever done before and none has been able to do since, the doctrine of salvation through good living and service to the All High.

All the world hails the anniversary of the dawining of salvation and the assurance that it is within the reach of all who will earn it by the worthiness and true Christian character of their lives.

And se it is that the anniversary of thiswonderful eventwill continue to be observed by all the people of all Christian nations and most joyously celebrated, as long as this world shall last.

Communities grow only in proportion to the support they receive from the people who makeupthe community.Queenstown has no chance to improve in quality and size by the inhabitants investing their money or buying the necessities of life in other localities People who cling to the misguided policy of "doing better"away from home often lose dollars in trying to save pennies

The home merchant is honest and offers honest values. He can't afford to be other, though he might be inclined to. He depends for his living from the community which he serves and he must give the community what it wants at a fair price.

When you are tempted to trade outsideand buy something "just as good" at lower prices you should think twice before acting. If you are disappointed in merchandies bought at home you can always get an adjustment. The merchant himself may have been cheated and he is generally willing to take the loss rather than have a dissatisfied cu tomer. But the out of townmerchant is not personally interested in you His only hope is to sell you once and he does not have to take precautions to preserve your good will.

More than owing it to your community to trade at home, thus keeping your money in circulation at home you, from a sound economic viewpoint.

Your friend the telephone!

YOU want the best telephone service you can get. We are just as anxious to give it to you. So that's one thing we have in common.

Most of the job of keeping the service up to scratch belongs to us. But there are some things you can do, and taking proper care of your telephone instrument is one of them.

Inside that telephone on your table are a lot of small parts—over two hundred of them. Every time you bang or drop the instrument the adjustment of these parts is made a little less true. Result—a noisy telephone; a cuff on the ear doesn't improve your hearing.

Any telephone is only as good as its cords—the wires which join it with the bell box. If these cords are often twisted and jerked or allowed to get wet, you may expect poor service—or no service at all.

Your telephone is as well made as the best brains and hands can make it. It is a friend, and deserves to be treated as such.
