Nov 21st 1841.

Dear Mart.

I send your books fearing you might be wanting the "Hood" - earlier than this evening, or rather, thinking, perhaps it would be more convenient for you to have it this morning. I have not read "Eugene Aram", but am really ashamed to keep it any longer.
The poems we found very interesting; and Ann joins me in sending thanks to you for the loan of them.

How is your head this morning? quite well again, I hope; and though it is still cloudy, the weather promises to be prettier than last evening - and I will look for
