

was a portion of the pleasure for the day. After dinner I paid a visit to my Brother Kirkby - he is a carpenter - and lives out towards Street a long distance from me, though I have been here considerably over a year, its the first sociable visit I have paid him, I dont know when I enjoyed my self more.
And returned home just before tea. Now I'm writing to you which is another pleasure. I don't wish to disappoint you again, I hope not, yet I am most afraid I will have to do so, I am trying to get the situation of
