

not remember. So I think I would not sing "Spring time has come gentle Annie" - but rather

"Roar, roar ye billows roar - Ye wild winds howl your dismal tale."

Don't you think it would be more appropriate, or "See the glittering snowflake" - You ask what I am doing; not reading, but trying to sew, but I have made but little progress for I am feeling very badly this morning, weak and nervous, although I rested very well during the night, and coughed but little.

Do you know what I'd do were a man - why take a nice walk up town I would enjoy it so much, battling with the wind and snow, but I felt so sorry for the poor boy that brought your note; and remarked what a pity to send him out, but (Mort) I would not have missed getting your note - it was like having a chat with your
