EMBARGO.

The house of representatives on Thursday last, took up the bill for enforcing the embargo, early in the day. The bill was gone through and reported to the House. About five o'clock an amendment was offered by Mr. Sturges, limiting the duration of the bill to the first of June next, and NEGATIVED, by yeas and nays, seventy-five to twenty-seven. Mr. Sturges then offered a new section, for REPEALING THE EMBARGO, on the 4th of March next. Mr. Blunt moved to amend this section, by giving authority to issue LETTERS OF MARQUE AND REPRISAL after that day, in order to express his sense of what must be done, under present circumstances, if the embargo were repealed. He withdrew the motion, however, to accommodate some of his friends, who wished a direct decision on the naked queston proposed.

On the amendment of Mr. Sturges for repealing the embargo, a debate took place, which continued till one o'clock, when the question was taken and lost, yeas 35, nays 81—and the house continued in session debating the bill for enforcing the embargo at two o'clock, when the editor of the National Intelligencer put Friday's paper to press—at which moment the house had refused to adjourn, 79 to 35—since which we have no accounts; but from present prospects we may look for something decisive in a few days.

The following propositions, made by the Emperors of Russia and of France to Great Britain, we gave to our readers on Monday in an extra sheet; and we now republish them in the Monitor, to wit:

1st. Hanover to be restored to Great Britain.

2nd. Brunswick to be restored to the heirs of the Duke.

3rd. Holland to be restored to the Prince of Orange.

4th. Portugal to be restored to the Duke of Braganza, or become a British Colony.

5th. King Ferdinand (of Naples) to retain Sicily.

6th. Joseph Napoleon to become King of Spain and the Indies.

I repeat, the intelligence may be relied on; I received it from Bordeaux by the late arrival; and my correspondent, intimately acquainted with French policy, has sent me other interesting communications, which I will hereafter make known. (Monitor.

On Monday a large and respectable assemblage of ladies and gentlemen repaired to the house of the President, to offer him their congratulations on the return of another year. The concourse was larger than on any preceding similar occasion, including the foreign ministers, the members very generally of the two Houses of Congress, the executive and judiciary officers, strangers of distinction and citizens. Refreshments were liberally distributed, and music played at intervals. The President as well as his guests, appeared in very good spirits. He was dressed in a full suit of homespun, as well as a considerable number of other individuals, among whom were the Secretary of the Treasury and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, thus setting a laudable example, which, it is to be hoped, will be followed by every patriotic American whose station or character gives him an influence on those around him. This is, perhaps, the last public occasion on which Thomas Jefferson will mingle with his fellow-citizens, or on which they will have an opportunity individually of manifesting their esteem and respect for him. In a few fleeting weeks, he will have retired from the cares of public life, which will be exchanged for private and domestic scenes. The idea is pathetic and solemn: The spectacle the most sublime the world can exhibit. Every honor, which that world can confer, every distinction which virtuous ambition can covet, have been lavished upon him by a grateful and enlightened country; until he has acquired a popularity, augmented by every act of his life, and amidst political vicissitudes which would have shattered into atoms a common reputation. This man, full of glory, and still more beloved than respected, from principle abandons the post of honor, and relinquishes the highest powers, for a private station! At such a spectacle, let the insatiate pride of royalty hide its diminished head.

Carlisle, Dec. 21.

Marching Orders.—Captain's Irvine and Peters, of the Light Artillery, have received orders to march for Pittsburg, on Saturday next; and from letters received by the other officers, it is expected that the whole of the troops will have orders to leave this in a short time.

Kentucky has given her electoral votes (8) to James Madison, as President, and George Clinton, as Vice-President of the United States. This return completes the whole number of Electoral votes, which furnishes the following result:

For President.
James Madison	122
C. C. Pinckney	48
George Clinton	6
Vice President.
George Clinton	113
Rufus King	48
John Langdon	9
James Madison	3
James Monroe	3

Thus gloriously has terminated an election which has, not incorrectly, been said to have decided the destinies of the United States. The contest has been animated, and the enemies of the republican cause have, in addition to their ordinary strength, rallied under their banners no inconsiderable mass of disaffection, engendered by personal, local and temporary causes. The patriotism of the nation has triumphed over all these sources of influence, and has lifted to power a man, pledged to the same political course, and devoted to the same principles with him, who now guides the helm amidst the benedictions of millions. This election, then does not merely mark a personal preference; it is the pledge of an injured and insulted nation of freemen, that they will expend their last cent and spill their last drop of blood, before they will become the victims of an oppression, which, once submitted to, would be as inexorable as fate, and co-eval with time.

This great election—let republicans exult at the fact—has been conducted from beginning to end, with a calmness, decorum and dignity, worthy of its importance; and, notwithstanding the predictions of the enemies of liberty, that its return would convulse our whole system, and be the signal for tumult and rebellion, our people have repelled the calumny by a deportment which honorably distinguishes them from any other people that have existed: they have discharged this high and solemn duty, with the same order that characterises the most common act of their lives.—*N. To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States.

At the request of the governor, the senate, and house of representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I communicate certain resolutions, entered into by the said senate and house of representatives and approved by the governor on the 23d instant. It cannot but be encouraging to those whom the nation has placed in the direction of their affairs, to see that their fellow-citizens will press forward in support of their country, in proportion as it is threatened by the disorganizing conflicts of the other hemisphere.

TH: JEFFERSON.

Thomas Jefferson, Esq.

SIR,

In compliance with a resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, passed this day, I have the honor of transmitting to you certain resolutions, with a request that you will be pleased to lay them before the congress of the United States.

Accept assurances of high consideration and esteem.

(Signed) SIMON SNYDER.

Lancaster, Dec. 23, 1808.

Whereas the situation of the United States, in relation to foreign powers, is eminently critical, and calls for all their energies, unanimity and patriotism, to preserve those rights, and that independence for which our fathers fought and conquered: And whereas, in such times, it is the duty of the constituted authorities, to aid the common cause of our country, by declaring anew their devotion to the principles of the declaration of independence. Therefore,

Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, That we have the fullest confidence in the wisdom, the patriotism, and the integrity of the administration of the general government, and that we pledge ourselves to co-operate with them to the utmost extent of our power, in all measures which may be deemed expedient to maintain our national honor and our rational rights.

Resolved, That we consider the embargo as a wise, pacific and patriotic measure, called for by the best interests of the nation, and well calculated to induce an observance of our national rights, without a resort to the horrors and desolations of war, so repugnant to the feelings of humanity and the principles of free government.

Resolved, That as the ocean is the common high way of nations, and as this commonwealth is deeply interested in the preservation of its freedom, should those pacific measures not produce the desired effect, we are firmly determined to unite our efforts with those of the general government in the maintenance of its rights.

Resolved, That the governor of this commonwealth be requested to forward copies of the foregoing resolutions to the president of the United States, with a request that they may be communicated by him to the congress of the United States.

JAMES INGLE,
Speaker of the house of representatives.

P. C. LANE,
Speaker of the senate.

Approved—Dec. 23, 1808.

SIMON SNYDER.

ATTEST,

For James Thackara, Clerk, H. R.
JOHN PASSMORE, assistant clerk.

Samuel Maclay has resigned his seat in the Senate of the U. States, and been appointed Surveyor General of Pennsylvania.

Return J. Meighs, junr. is appointed Senator of the United States for Ohio, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of John Smith, and for a period of six years ensuing the 3rd of March next.

Legislature of New Hampshire. We have been told that this body would not fail to recommend the repeal of the embargo. Of this take the following proof—

On the 23d ult. Mr. Adams offered the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That the embargo system adopted by Congress is, in the opinion of the legislature of New Hampshire, unnecessary, ruinous to the country at large, unprecedented in the annals of other nations, and a prostration of the honor of the United States.

"Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested to make every possible exertion to effect an immediate repeal of the said obnoxious laws? and that his excellency the governor be requested to transmit, without delay, a copy of the foregoing resolve to each of our Senators and Representatives in Congress."

On these resolutions, after an animated debate the question was taken, 25 members being in favor and 101 against them.

"By this vote," says the Patriot, "we ascertain the strength of the Essex Junto party in the New-Hampshire Legislature."

We understand (says the Columbian Detector,) that an association of five hundred persons is forming in this town, (Boston) who bind themselves under a severe penalty, to wear no cloathes but of American manufacture, for the term of three years. A stock of which is to be procured immediately for the use of the said association.

We observe by the Star of the 4th ult. that on the preceding day, Secretary Canning gave a Dinner at his house in Berkley Square, to a numerous party. Among the personages mentioned, we find, that Mr. Pinkney, American minister, was one of the party.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Charleston, to his friend in Norfolk, dated the 13th Dec.

"A brig arrived here yesterday from Havanna; the supercargo, Mr. Paul, informed me that the Spanish schooner Serpent, arrived at the Moro on the 20th of November, 30 days from Spain. The Captain of the Spanish schooner reported to Mr. Paul, who went on board to enquire the news, that Bonaparte was in Spain at the head of 160,000 men, and was in possession of the province of Biscay."

Smugglers.—We are informed that a brig from Powles' Hook, on Thursday evening evaded the law and went to sea. An officer which was put aboard in order to watch her, was carried to Sandy Hook, and put ashore—So goes "the worthless part of the Community."

The Isle Haut, Prisoners—Escaped. Four of the persons lately committed on the charge of murder, have made their escape from the jail at Castine, on the night of 13th inst. We have not learnt the particulars—but understand it was done by persons in disguise. It is said by a mob of 20 or 30 people who demanded the keys of the person who was the keeper, with a presented pistol—The real jailor was absent on business.
