

It is so stormy. I am so sorry your headache aches. hope it is better now. get right well before this eve'g, I want your help about something.

I feel in a mood for writing now - but having seen you so recently and talked out all my ideas - haven't any left to write. - I guess you think my stock very limited, or rather, you know that it is, do you not Martie?

Mart, please write me a note of forgiveness, for my thoughtless words - won't you; Although ~~you~~ said you were not to hear from me today - you see I have broken my word - but that is no unusual thing, is it?

Wth As I have a letter to write - will bid you "good bye," untill this eve'g.

Hoping to hear from you I remain as ever

Your sincere friends

Lucie.

Annapolis

April 1st 1872.

Please make your note as lengthy as possible - I never tire reading anything penned by those whom I esteem. That is if you will condescend to reply to this.

Lucie.