Apollo's Mount.

FOR THE STAR.

COLUMBIA'S Sons!—once more arouse,
Your freedom and your rights espouse
Another Traitor's rose with mien,
The union to dissolve in twain.

Though Burr has fled to Britain's shore,
And plead allegiance o'er and o'er—
He's banish'd from his lurking place;
A woeful wretch—in sad disgrace.

Shall not a friend to freedom's cause,
Who loves his country and its laws,
Presume to rouse your kindled rage,
And view the scene upon the stage.

Let France and Prussia raging fight;
And other nations claim their right,
Let all Americans be fraught
With liberty so dearly bought.

Let Bonaparte their Standards take,
And pris'ners without number make,
Whilst slain lies bleeding on the ground,
And wounded groaning all around.

Let officers of skill and art,
Yield up their swords to Bonaparte:
The warrior's helmet and his shield,
He gaineth on the bloody field.

The thund'ring cannon loudly roars,
And down the deadly shower pours,
Whilst o'er the plain destruction spreads;
The enemy his presence dreads.

But view him in the battle hold;
The new catastrophe behold!
Under his horses feet are found,
Balls furious tearing up the ground.

But let us leave this mighty man,
And on some other subject scan—
View Britain in her present state,
Her wealth destroy'd her armies beat.

Some gen'rals wounded, and some dead.
Some taken pris'ners, and some fled;—
She of one thing in war can boast,
A navy to protect her coast.

But what is that? when once we view,
Famine and carnage stalking through
A wasted country spoil'd by war,
Yet nothing gain'd but dread and fear.

But let us quit the foreign climes,
And view our own seditious times,
The traitors and the tories trace,
Unto their secret hiding place.

Republicans their schemes detect,
Your honor and your rights protect;
Nor yield your freedom to a band
Of tories that infest the land.

Firmly unite in freedom's cause,
And rigorously enforce her laws:—
From east to west—from south to north.
Let INDEPENDENCE echo forth.

To be rented.

THE subscribers offer to rent that valuable TAVERN, in the town of Havre de Grace, Harford county, Maryland, with the ferry attached thereto, on the western shore of the river Susquehanna, occupied at present by Mrs. Ann Sears. This property is too well known to need a minute description. It is one of the best and most productive stands as a public house in the state, being situated on the main mail road between Baltimore and Philadelphia; the buildings are in every respect capacious and convenient.

From a person well acquainted with his business, who has friends sufficient to keep a good house and ferry, and who can give us satisfactory assurances that his deportment to travellers will be obliging in expediting their passage across the ferry at all times, a very moderate rent will be asked. Application for the above property must be made (if by letters, post paid) to Tench Ringgold, Georgetown, Columbia. Possession will be given on the first of October next.
