STAR.

General Advertiser.

EASTON:—TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 9, 1810.

SECOND NOTICE.

Those indebted to the Editor of the Star, are desired to make payment without delay—very little attention being paid to his friendly call in August last—a similar neglect on the part of those of long standing, will ensure rigorous proceedings to recover the same—a resort he sincerely wishes to avoid.

ELECTION.

The following gentlemen are elected Representatives in the Twelfth Congress, and the Legislature of this State, from the several districts and counties to which they are attached; and which comprise all that have come to hand.

The strength of parties in the House of Delegates, from the Eastern Shore stand,

Republican	22
Federal	10

Republicans have considerably increased on the Western Shore, in those counties heard from, which will give a larger majority in the House than the last session.

Those in Italic are federalists.

There is a dispatch from Mr. Pinkney for the United States' government by the Magdalen from Liverpool, and some letters of the 17th and 19th of August from London which state that Mr J. Q. Adams, our minister at Russia, had been some time in a bad state of health, and signified his intention of returning home. Aurora.

Mr. Pinkney had continued to press the obsolete and disgraceful subject of the Chesapeake upon the British government, but without success. It is not impossible that the men taken from on board the Chesapeake, who were not hanged, may now be sent home as a set off for the revocation of the Berlin and Milan decrees. [ib.

Mr. Pinkney did not talk of resigning or returning to the United States; but he was very anxious to have a nobleman ambassador sent to the United States to puzzle the vulgar, and gratify the leather apron nobility of the United States.—"My Lord Wellesley," however it seems would not accommodate the accommodating diplomatist with any official reply, but no doubt would give the usual superabundance of private promises.—[ib.

Baltimore, October 1.

LATEST FROM LA GUAYRA, &c.

Captain Austin, of the schr. Dash, arrived here on Saturday from La Guayra, in 27 days, informs that in consequence of Santa Fe having declared itself Independent, an uncommon expression of rejoicing took place at La Guayra, Caraccas and through all the country. An English vessel arrived at La Guayra, the captain of which informed that all the ports on the Spanish Main were declared in a state of blockade by the governments of the Spanish Islands, and that a number of privateers were fitting out at Porto Rico and city of Santo Domingo, to cruize for all vessels bound to or from those ports, which had been declared independent. In consequence of which information, the Dash, instead of coming the Mona passage, to avoid danger came round cape Tiberon. The Dash was becalmed off cape Nichola Mole the whole day—at day light capt. A. heard an excessive firing, which continued until half past 11 o'clock, and appeared to be an engagement on land.—Shortly after the firing commenced seven sail of vessels were seen standing in.—About 11 o'clock three of them returned. Capt. Austin thinks the other 4 were captured or otherwise detained. When the three were coming out, one of the ports opened a heavy fire on them.

New-York, Sept. 27.

The North River Steam Boat arrived from Albany in 27 hours to day, with 80 passengers.

An express reached Albany from this city, with the news of the repeal of the French decrees, on Monday morning, in 26 hours, the shortest time, probably, in which the journey was ever performed by land.

September 28.

"They order these things better in Connecticut," says the Freeman's Journal, speaking of the disappointment of the federalists in the New Hampshire election. Well, how is the fact? In Connecticut it seems there will be about 10 more republican members in the assembly than it contained last spring, and 16 more than last fall. This is not much "better" than N. Hampshire.—Our good friends must "order these things" somewhere else, to get them better for federalism.

CONNECTICUT ELECTION.

By the best accounts received, it would seem that there cannot be less than a gain of ten Republican Representatives to the Assembly. This upon a comparison with the spring election; if we compare with the election a year ago, the republican gain may be estimated at sixteen and the loss of federalism at sixteen. Net republican gain THIRTY-TWO. Ameri. Merc.

Every one (says the National Intelligencer) who has for six months past opened a federal print, may have seen staring him in the face, among the most prominent articles, extravagant eulogiums on Walsh's "Letters on the genius and dispositions of the French government"

As federal editors have formed so elevated an opinion of this work, as to trumpet forth its praises in their loudest strains, it may be agreeable to them to see the opinion of a quondam friend and fellow laborer on this subject. Cobbett, in his Political Register of the 21st July, speaking of the alarming depreciation of the paper of some of the country banks, has the following:—

"The nation have often been told of the great effect which the paper-money system has had in advancing the prosperity of the country; it has been amused with glowing pictures of the improvements arising from the use of this species of currency. It has been by shallow headed men, or by impostors, such as the pretended "AMERICAN," who has written a book under the title of "A letter on the genius and disposition of the French Government"—and which work, in order to render the deception more complete, has been contrived to be first published in Philadelphia. By such persons, every good thing now to be found in England has been attributed to the paper money system. They have carefully kept out of sight, that increase of misery, which is most clearly proved by the increase of the number of paupers, &c."

The following is an extract of a letter from a very intelligent gentleman, living on the Mississippi, whose sources of information may be relied on:—"West Florida is quiet. The new regulations adopted by the convention have met the approbation of the governor at Baton Rouge, & tranquility is restored. Their system approximates, as nearly as possible, to a republican form of government, and they openly avow a wish to become a part of the United States. The name of Ferdinand VII. is still used in the public acts of that province, but the inhabitants hold him in the most sovereign contempt. There is a small British party among them, who are hostile to the government of the United States, and, from the loud clamor they made, were at first thought to be the majority; but they are found to consist only of a few old tories of the revolution and half pay British officers."

The Dublin Evening Post describes the distress of the south of Ireland in the most affecting manner:—

"Not only have severe individual losses been sustained, but all the floating capital of the country, all disposable property, has been swept away, or is locked up by distrust and natural apprehension.

"The price of land has particularly suffered. Indeed this event was long expected, as the rent of lands had notoriously and unreasonably risen to an enormous rate too high to be endured.

"Good land that brought 4l. last year, will not now bring 50s per acre from any solvent tenant; and the average fall is already from 15 to 25s per acre. In fact, the number of solvent tenants is diminished by three fourths, and is contracting still more."

THE EMBARRASSMENTS OF IRELAND,

Have been very generally imputed by the inhabitants to the union with England. This impression is sinking deeper and spreading wider; and perfidious England may yet be chastised by that long degraded and much injured portion of her empire.

A gentleman of Baltimore has politely favored the editor with the following extract from a letter written to him by an intelligent tradesman of Dublin, and received by the Fredonia, dated Dublin, August 2.

"You had scarcely reached your destination, before all credit and confidence received such a shock, that an almost general bankruptcy ensued:—the merchant, the manufacturer of cotton, of silk, of woollen, the shop keepers of every description, were all as if by some invisible hand, sunk in ruin. There have not been less than 500 insolvencies in this city within the last 4 months; and to complete our destruction; Mr. Foster's catamaran of new taxes exploded at an evil hour on unhappy Ireland. There are 50 per centum additional tax on windows; 1s per lb. on tea; an heavy addition on stamps; on wine, on raisins, on newspapers, and also on the advertisements in them—on shop and hand-bills. In short, if I had room to explain the destructive operation of this perverse man's new system, it would terrify you. Suffice it to tell you, that the great body of tradesmen are roving through the streets without employment—and at the same time provisions are rising."

Suppose the yeomanry and militia of Ireland league with the revolutionary party, to rescue their country from a corrupt and ruinous despotism, could they not raise funds for the purpose from the estates of the church, the nobles, &c? Ireland contains great strength and resources, if her inhabitants knew how to combine them, and call them into action. [Whig.

A Belfast paper mentions; that within these few weeks past there have been no less than 1660 boxes of linen of 80 pieces each, shipped from Dublin for America; or about 100,000 pieces of 25 yards each, being two millions five hundred thousand yards, which, at the average of 2s. 6d. per yard, amount to more than 250,000*l.* sterling.

A whole family was lately poisoned at Dresden, by some Hemlock, which the servant cooked, under the idea of its being Parsley. The husband and wife died in the greatest agony in 24 hours after.

Interesting. The Georgia Journal (the state paper) of the 29th ult. published at Milledgeville, contains the following article:

A letter has been received by a gentleman in this place from an officer of the U. States army in the Mississippi territory, dated 22d ult. which states, that "all officers on fourlough are ordered to be at head quarters by the 15th Sept. for the avowed purpose of taking possession of Pensacola."

Infamy rewarded!!!

A PUBLIC LOAN.

We understand that a loan has been obtained by government from the bank of the United States, for 3,750,000 dollars—pursuant to an act of Congress passed the last session, authorising the President to borrow a sum not exceeding 8,000,000. The money borrowed is to bear an interest of six per cent. per annum, and to be reimbursed on the 31st December, 1811—unless Congress shall refuse to grant a charter to the bank of the United States; in which case the sum loaned is to be reimbursed within 3 months after the bank shall demand the same! Spirit of '76.

CENSUS.

The census completed in the towns of Brunswick and Harpswell, gives the following as their population, with the number of looms employed in each town, and quantity of woollen and cotton cloth, produced the year past.

In Brunswick the total amount of population is 2,635; of which 1,332 are males, and 1,303 females. Number of looms, 160; yards of cloth wove last year, 31,571.

In Harpswell, total of population, 1,174; males 584; females 590. Looms 106; one year's production of cloth 19,320 yards.

It must be highly gratifying to the citizens of this district and to the community at large, to witness the advance of those two small towns, in the manufacture of cloth.—Their industry merits the applause of the friends of real independence.—Eastern Arg

APPOINTMENTS

By the Governor and Council of Maryland, October 3, 1810.

Joseph Harwood, Esq. Judge of the Orphans Court, Anne Arundel county, vice Jonathan Sellman, deceased.

Peter Sybert, Major of a Batallion in the twenty-fourth Regiment of the Militia of this state, in Washington county, vice J. Beard, resigned.

Boston, Sept. 24.

Misfortune. We are sorry to state that on Friday night Messrs. Coolidge & Co. lost 24 of their full blooded Merino sheep, by death. It was supposed at first that some hardened villain, or villains, had scaled the inclosure, and in mere wanton barbarity had murdered them; afterwards it was imagined that dogs might have been the occasion of their death; since then we have not heard what conclusion is drawn from all the circumstances of the case. At all events, the casualty is to be regretted as a national misfortune.

The British brig Moselle, capt. Boys, which had the rencontre with the Vixen, a short time since, has put into the Havanna in distress, having been ashore on the Bahama Bank, and was only got off by throwing her guns overboard, and cutting her mainmast.
