DEATH OF THE KING OF ENGLAND.

A letter from Bath, (Me.) Sept. 13, mentions the arrival there of the Sarah-Maria, Morgan, 50 days from Dublin, bringing London dates to the 1st Aug. Captain M. states, that the day previous to his sailing, an express arrived from London, stating that the King of England was dead. Captain M. spoke a vessel on her passage, which sailed from Dublin 4 days after him, the captain of which confirmed the above news.

We understand that orders have been issued from the Navy department, to put in commission an additional number of gun-boats, forthwith: twenty to be stationed in the harbor of New-York; ten at Norfolk; and three at Wilmington, North-Carolina. These are intended and no doubt will have the effect to strengthen the land batteries and enable them more effectually to repel any attack which might be made; though we incline to the opinion that none will be attempted.—Nat. Intel.

MORE OF THE LITTLE BELT.

A London paper of July 24, says that the Ann had arrived at Falmouth, from Halifax, and brought a British seaman who acted in the capacity of quarter gunner on board the President during the action with the Little Belt—that this man leaped overboard from the President after her return to New York and swam to the Ann—that his evidence fully confirms the statement Capt. B. (which, it seems, before, wanted confirmation)—that he further reports, that the crew of the President consisted of 560 men, of which, upwards of 300 were English, Irish and Scotch, all of whom are ready to attest that the American frigate fired the first gun! If all this be true, his majesty's subjects may yet get the better of us—in a swearing match!

REPUBLICAN DINNER.

On Tuesday, at 4 o'clock, after the election of the Senate, a large and respectable portion of the republicans of Annapolis assembled at Mr. Brewer's tavern, to partake of a splendid entertainment given in compliment to the Democratic Electors of the Senate of Maryland. The Governor being called to the chair as President, and Gen. Nelson as Vice President, the company sat down to dinner, and after regaling sumptuously, and the cloth being removed, the following extempore toasts were drank, interspersed with patriotic and sentimental songs:

1. By the Governor.—The people.
2. By Gen. Nelson.—The Democratic State of Maryland.
3. By N. Brewer.—The Senate elect—five years guarrantee of the people's rights.
4. By the Governor.—The triumph of reason and principle over feasting and faction.
5. By Gen. Nelson.—Liberal salaries, frequent elections, and universal suffrage.
6. By Capt. Moore.—The spirit and principles of '76.
7. By Gen. Gassaway.—May those who love monarchy best, be quickly wafted from the American shores.
8. By E. Johnson.—The State of Maryland. May American principles ever continue triumphant.
9. By Dr. Kent.—The great republican family throughout the United States.
10. By Dr. Mitchell.—Our country, and those who fought for its independence.
11. By S. Sprigg.—A liberal exchange,—three tories for one impressed American seaman.
12. By the Chancellor.—Commodore Rogers.
13. By H. G. S. Key.—The Constitution of the United States, redeemed under the auspices of republicanism, may it be transmitted entire to posterity.
14. By the Governor.—Harmony in the republican ranks throughout the Union.

"Out of the fullness of his heart his mouth speaketh."

FROM THE FEDERAL REPUBLICAN OF AUGUST 23.

"These fellows [the democrats] have mistaken their dispositions and characters. In prosperity, a democrat is proud, saucy and domineering; in adversity, they are humble, mean and submissive.—Let the federalists succeed, which they must do if they will it, and there will be little difficulty in keeping these bravadoes in order. They will be as tame and obsequious as Spaniels. They will lick the dust from our shoes to be allowed to hold their offices; aye, and the coodies too, will then come out like fine fellows, and claim much merit for the share they took in obtaining the glorious triumph!"

Let it not be said that the above extract is the language merely of a single individual of the federal party, it is no such thing, it manifests that implacable spirit of intolerance and persecution which glows with malignant fervor in the bosoms of those nabobs who would have had the exclusive controul and management of affairs in case of federal success; "men as well as measures" would have been changed; many mild looking federal gentlemen whose countenances indicate a lamb like meekness of soul, had already betrayed their determination to make a general indiscriminate sweep, from the governor down to the lowest petty officer in the State. Before the "returns were received from Frederick" the three thousand offices had already been filled in advance, all with good "choice spirits;" none but men of zeal and activity, distinguished for their noble blood or contributions either in lies or money, would have passed muster under the new order of things.—The poor Coodies would have been deservedly "turned down" as the quiddies ought to be.—The Coodies of the federal party and the quiddies of the democratic hold the same rank in the estimation of virtuous disinterested politicians. We conscientiously believe that the political "notions" of those who direct the federal party are at war with the genius, and essentially destructive to the principles of republican government, and therefore think it our duty by all honorable means, in contempt of pecuniary considerations to oppose their progress. Not so the quiddies—in the presence of none but firm republicans; oh! how decided! how inflexible! how warmly they can join in reprobating of federal men and measures! let but a federalist make his appearance from whom or from whose connections he may possibly get a little custom or assistance in the way of his business or profession and to all is hushed! all is suavity and gentleness—the partizan is instantly changed into "a moderate man" and the faithful republican dwindles into a mere Quiddy.

Maryland Republican.

The British Federalists cannot bear a word said nor an act done against the British Government, and they disown and denounce any of their party in such way offending.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, a warm Federalist and a great favorite with the party, was dismissed from their confidence, and loaded with their reproaches, the moment his pamphlet, exposing the aggressions of Britain and vindicating the rights of America, was published.

JOHN ADAMS formerly President of the United States by the votes of the federal party, & one of the wisest and best men in the world if their declarations then were to be believed, was no sooner found to be supporting the government and arousing the people of his country against British usurpations and intrigues, than he was villified, and slandered, as if he were the worst and weakest man in the nation.

WILLIAM PINKNEY, had been a commissioner in England under the British Treaty, and discharged his trust to the satisfaction of all, and with the highest applauses of his party, the Federalists. He was selected by President JEFFERSON as an Ambassador to England, not merely on account of his integrity and talents; but because, being a Federalist, the appointment would meet the approbation of that party, and would prove to Great Britain the sincerity of this Government. He accepted the trust—if he did not do all that was wanted, he did the best that he could—the duplicity & perfidy of Britain became so glaring, that he could not help seeing it—and, seeing it, what American could help speaking of it?——Yet as soon as it was known that he was hostile to the assumptions of the British government, and determined to support the claims of his own country, the leading Federalists denounced him as a Turn-Coat, an Apostate, &c. &c. and now pursue him with ridicule and reprobation!

Commodore ROGERS was a Federalist, in high standing with his party. Commanding a frigate under the American flag, he felt and acted like an American when his flag was insulted. He returned the fire from a British vessel, with such effect as to silence her in a few minutes, and in a few minutes more would have sunk her.——Since the affair, the British federalists disclaim and despise him!—They not only disapprove his conduct, but disbelieve his official statement! The lowest officer in the British Navy would receive more credit and be treated with more respest from these men than Commodore Rogers!

A similar fate has attended several other Federalists, who have thought it a duty to support their own government in its disputes with England as well as France. And it is now evident that the most unpardonable sin which a Federalist can commit against leaders of that party is to say a word or do a thing against Britain, or in favor of his own country!——This crime subjects the offender to excommunication from the party, and to abuse and calumny from every man in it who can wag a tongue or drive a pen.

The number of these apostates, turncoats, &c. as the British Federalists call them, is, notwithstanding, fast increasing. So flagrant have been the outrages, insults, prevarications and procrastinations of the British Government—and so exemplary have been the moderation, forbearance, patience and perseverance of the American government—that those who continue to uphold the former and decry the latter will soon be entirely deserted, and either sink into merited contempt, or provoke condign punishment.——[Tren. True Amer.

British Federalists would plunge the nation into war with France with few or no efforts to obtain redress by negociation; while with England they would not fight, even when every pacific attempt to procure satisfaction for the past and security for the future had utterly failed!—[Ib.

It is often asserted that our government is to blame for the interruptions our commerce has sustained. This is not so; and would Britain but repeal her orders as France has done her decrees, the revival and extension of our trade would soon shew that its interruption was not the fault of our government, but attributable in its continuation as well as in its commencement to the British.—[Ib.

The intent of the Embargo was not, as has been often asserted, to destroy commerce—but to withhold our property and seamen from the grasp of the tyrannical and rapacious belligerents, who had ordered and decreed the seizure of all that came within their reach; and had not treachery and delusion effected its repeal, millions of property and thousands of seamen would have been saved, which have now fallen into the jaws of France and England.—[ib.

"You are a Turn Coat," said a Federalist to one of his party, who had seen the error of his ways, and had come out in support of the government.——"And would you, (replied the other) have a man, because he put on his coat wrong side out in the morning, to wear it so all day? Or ought he to turn it as soon as he finds out his mistake?"—[Ib.

To turn from evil to good, is an honor to any man—to turn from good to evil is the only just cause of reproach.—[Ib.

Talking about Turn Coats lately, one observed, that he had rather in these times wear a turned coat, than one of British manufacture——[Ib.

Democracy is a Government of the People; and only those who dislike the People's governing, will rail against Democracy.—[Ib.

Federalism, when it was first brought into use in this country, meant attachment to the federal constitution and support of the federal government.——Those who would dissolve the Union and destroy the Government, are no Federalists, according to the true meaning of the term.—[Ib.

For a man who lives in continual opposition and hostility to our Union and Government, to call himself a Federalists, is as absurd as for one who is in the habitual practice of every vice and crime to call himself a Christian.——[Ib.

It is not the Profession a man makes, but the conduct he pursues, by which he ought to be judged. Taking this criterion, what are we to think of those men, by whatever name called, who for more than ten years have uniformly opposed their own government, and almost as uniformly advocated the conduct of the British government.—[Ib.
