1938

PROCLAMATION OF THE GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND PROPOSING AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION OF THE STATE

WHEREAS, at the January session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1935, an Act was passed, to wit: Chapter 482 proposing an amendment to repeal Section 36 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," said section prohibiting the General Assembly from authorizing a lottery, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection; and

WHEREAS, at the January session of the General Assembly of Maryland, held in the year 1937, an Act was passed, to wit: Chapter 525 proposing an amendment to Article 15 of the Declaration of Rights of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Taxation," said section authorizing the General Assembly to impose taxes on income, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection; in words and figures as follows:

CHAPTER 482—1935

AN ACT to propose an amendment to repeal Section 36 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," and section prohibiting the General Assembly from authorizing a lottery, and providing for the submission of said amendment to the qualified voters of the State of Maryland for adoption or rejection.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the General Assembly of Maryland (three-fifths of all the members of each of the two Houses concurring), That Section 36 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, title "Legislative Department," prohibiting the General Assembly from authorizing a lottery, be and it is hereby repealed, if adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That the aforesaid amendment to the Constitution of the State of Maryland shall, if the same be adopted by the legally qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, be deemed and taken to be a part of the Constitution of said State, and shall be published in pursuance of the directions contained in Article 14 of the Constitution of the State of Maryland, and at the said general election and in the manner and form prescribed by the laws of said State, and if adopted by the said qualified voters of the State, as herein provided, it shall supersede and stand in place of the section and of the Article as aforesaid.

Sec. 3. For each of the said circuits, excepting the eighth, the second, the third and the fourth, there shall be one judge and two associate judges, to be elected respectively as hereinafter provided, and for the second circuit, the third circuit and the sixth circuit, there shall be one judge and three associate judges to be elected respectively as hereinafter provided, and for or appointed as hereinafter provided, for any of said circuits, in the manner and for any of said circuits, shall, at the time of their election or appointment, be residents of the county for which they may have been elected or appointed, respectively, and, if any two or more judges in the same county in any of the circuits, shall be elected or appointed in any of said circuits, that one only in said county shall be elected or appointed, in order that no one county may be entitled to more than one judge, and that the associate judges in any of the said circuits, excepting the third and sixth circuits, residing in the same county shall have, in the aggregate, a population greater than any other candidates for associate judgeships in any of said circuits, in any of the counties of said circuit, and the associate judge, but the person residing in any county of the third circuit and who has the highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and the other shall be declared and be the judge of the Orphans' Court of Howard County, and the associate judges of the Orphans' Court of Howard County, composing the three associate judges of said circuit, for now or may hereafter be prescribed to which power shall be conferred in accordance with the laws of Howard; and in those counties where only one judge is to be elected, the person having the second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be two judges to be elected, the person having the third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be three judges to be elected, the person having the fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be four judges to be elected, the person having the fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be five judges to be elected, the person having the sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be six judges to be elected, the person having the seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seven judges to be elected, the person having the eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eight judges to be elected, the person having the ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be nine judges to be elected, the person having the tenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ten judges to be elected, the person having the eleventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eleven judges to be elected, the person having the twelfth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twelve judges to be elected, the person having the thirteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirteen judges to be elected, the person having the fourteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fourteen judges to be elected, the person having the fifteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifteen judges to be elected, the person having the sixteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixteen judges to be elected, the person having the seventeenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventeen judges to be elected, the person having the eighteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighteen judges to be elected, the person having the nineteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be nineteen judges to be elected, the person having the twentieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-one judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-two judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-three judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-four judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-five judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-six judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-eight judges to be elected, the person having the twenty-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be twenty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the thirtieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-one judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-two judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-three judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-four judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-five judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-six judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be thirty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the thirty-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty judges to be elected, the person having the fortieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-one judges to be elected, the person having the forty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-two judges to be elected, the person having the forty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-three judges to be elected, the person having the forty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-four judges to be elected, the person having the forty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-five judges to be elected, the person having the forty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-six judges to be elected, the person having the forty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the forty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-eight judges to be elected, the person having the forty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be forty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the forty-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty judges to be elected, the person having the fiftieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-one judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-two judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-three judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-four judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-five judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-six judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be fifty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the fifty-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty judges to be elected, the person having the sixtieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-one judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-two judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-three judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-four judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-five judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-six judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be sixty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the sixty-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy judges to be elected, the person having the seventieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-one judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-two judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-three judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-four judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-five judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-six judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-seven judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-eight judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be seventy-nine judges to be elected, the person having the seventy-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-one judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-two judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-three judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-four judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-five judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-six judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be eighty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the eighty-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety judges to be elected, the person having the ninetieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-one judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-two judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-three judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-four judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-five judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-six judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-seven judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be ninety-nine judges to be elected, the person having the ninety-ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eight judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and tenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ten judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eleventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eleven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twelfth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twelve judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirteen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fourteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fourteen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifteen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixteen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventeenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventeen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighteen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and nineteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and nineteen judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twentieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and twenty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and twenty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirtieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and thirty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and thirty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fortieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and forty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and forty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fiftieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and fifty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and fifty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixtieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and sixty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and sixty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and seventy-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and seventy-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighteenth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-second highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and eighty-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and eighty-nine judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninetieth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-one judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-first highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-two judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-third highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-three judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-fourth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-four judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-fifth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-five judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-sixth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-six judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-seventh highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety-seven judges to be elected, the person having the one hundred and ninety-eighth highest number of votes shall be declared elected, and in the counties where there may be one hundred and ninety