The Primary Election.

The Primary Election in Calvert last Monday brought to the polls more voters than at any primary or election in this county for some time past. Interest was divided between the gubernatorial contest and that of United States Senator of both political parties and the local offices where there were more than the required number of candidates for nomination.

On the Democratic ticket, State Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer carried the county by a large majority over his opponents for the nomination for Governor, Howard W. Jackson, Herbert R. O'Conor and William S. Gordy, as did Millard E. Tydings, opposed by David J. Lewis as candidates for nomination for United States Senator. Senator Tydings led the ticket in Calvert. Willis R. Jackson won a large majority over the other candidates for Attorney General; Milano G. Tawes for Comptroller; Jas. A. Young for Clerk of the Court of Appeals, and Congressman Gambrill, as usual, left far behind his perennial opponent John William Klemm.

On the county Democratic ticket, Samuel C. Cox won the nomination for treasurer over the other candidates; William L. Somervell, and John S. Williams defeated Henry W. Robinson for the nomination for Sheriff. Gordon Gibson, Benjamin Hance and Grace R. Mead were elected members of the State Central Committee, and Allen S. Bowen, J. Briscoe Bunting and H. Clare Briscoe delegates to the State Convention.

On the Republican ticket only three offices were voted for. Governor Harry W. Nice, candidate for renomination, won by a large majority in the county over Harry Phoebus, and Oscar Leser over Galen L. Tait for United States Senator by a small majority. On the county ticket the only contest was over the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court, the nomination for which was won by the present incumbent, Arthur A. Harkness, over his opponent, Perry G. Bowen.

Due to the fact that two sets of tickets had to be counted, one of which—the Democratic—was extra long, and because of the complications involved in properly recording the first and second choice candidates for State offices, the election officials found their work more tedious and difficult than usual. Few precincts, and they only where the smaller percentage of votes are cast, were able to finish the work of recording until the night was far advanced, and at one polling place this was not accomplished until about sunrise the following morning.

We publish the returns in tabulated form in this issue.

The Poland China Hog.

The Poland China hog originated in Butler and Warren counties, Ohio. In the seventies two farmers, A. C. Moore, of Canton, and D. M. Magin, of Ohio, developed a widespread reputation for their hogs and advertised them quite extensively. Their hogs were known at that time, respectively, as the Moore and Magie hogs. From the Moore and Magie hogs was developed the breed now known as the Poland China.

The early Poland China was a large, rugged, coarse-eared, prolific, spotted animal that attained a good market weight, but was not of the easiest feeding type. During the last decade of the nineteenth century and the first decade of the twentieth many Poland China breeders, especially those breeding for the show ring, followed what may be termed a fad in their breeding operations. The fashionable type was a short legged, small, compact bodied hog popularly known as the "hot blood." It had six white points, namely, four white feet and a white splash on the end of the tail and at the point of the nose. The sows were neither prolific nor very good sucklers.

During the last twenty-five years the type of the Poland China hog has changed materially. A large proportion of growers of Poland Chinas now keep the hog type. This is the type that has become by far the most popular because of its great utility. The boars have big, heavy bone, are rugged; possess plenty of length and depth, and with it all have gone quality. In breeding condition aged boars should weigh from 650 pounds up, and sows from 500 pounds up. The sows are prolific, good sucklers and are capable of raising good sized litters. They have plenty of length, are smooth, with good full shoulders and well rounded hams. They are naturally active, take plenty of exercise and are capable of producing strong litters at farrowing time. The color of the present day Poland China generally is black. Many of them have white spots on different parts of the body.

The Poland China is not surpassed by any breed in producing a finished carcass at an early age. The meat finds ready sale on the market. Pigs of this breed may be made to weigh 200 pounds at six months of age.

William H. Bowen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice P. Bowen, is the proud owner of a purebred Poland China sow and seven pigs, which he secured from S. G. Jones, of Ellicott City, Md. When they were eight weeks old "Bill" had arranged to sell these pigs to fellow 4-H members and farmers of Calvert county. He is a vocational agricultural student of the Calvert County High School.
