Message for Virginia Governor.

About a week ago a blue and white carrier pigeon alighted at the home of J. Allen Sheckells, near Huntingtown, somewhat fatigued after an obviously long flight. There was no difficulty in getting near the pigeon, which had a message on one leg. On an aluminum band on the leg was engraved "No. 1738BTB." An iron paper placed over the band and attached to it by means of adhesive tape, was the message:

"The Honorable James H. Price, Governor of the State of Virginia:

"Your Excellency, a salute to your State of Virginia, one of America's finest. This salute has been brought to you across hundreds of miles by homing pigeon that has been trained and organized into a nation-wide network to demonstrate the practicability of their use in the public service. These heroic bird messengers are hundreds of thousands of others are able and ready to serve the country in the even of a public emergency." Signed

Seagram Pigeon Service.

New High School Favored.

By invitation of a joint committee from the Parent-Teacher Associations of the Calvert county High School and the Prince Frederick elementary school, candidates for the various county and State offices met with the committee last Monday night for consideration of a proposal of a new county high school building. The plan envisages the construction of a tile and brick fire-proof twelve-room building with auditorium, costing $97,000, as a PWA project. Forty-five per cent of the cost would be covered by a PWA grant, while the remainder would be borne by the county. The proposal also involves transferring the elementary school to the present high school building and making the present elementary building available for office space. Final adoption of the plan will depend on approval by the WPA authorities and favorable action by the County Commissioners.

After considerable discussion the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "Resolved, that it be the sense of this meeting that the program for the construction of a new fire-proof high school building with the aid of PWA funds is a wise one; and that the County Commissioners of Calvert County be urged to accept the offer of PWA aid if tendered."

A donation of a hoe was given for a prize by Goldstein's Department Store, and a spading fork was donated for a prize by Robert S. Meade Store at North Beach.
