Big Hauls, Low Prices

Rock Hall.—Fishermen from Rock Hall, Tolchester, Betterton and other places on the bay have made big hauls of rock in nets the past week. Nearly every truck in lower Kent took a load to Baltimore one day this week. Williams Bros. had 56 barrels on his truck.

It was a beautiful sight to see the rock dipped from the nets most of them being fair size. The price, however, was very low—4 cents being the prevailing sum paid. The consumer, however, had to pay twice this price.

Denton.—Benjamin F. Johnson, of Denton, was elected president and Elias W. Nuttle, of the same place, was made secretatry of the Past Masters' Association of Caroline and Dorchester counties at a banquet held in the Masonic Temple, Cambridge, January 9.

Addresses were rendered by State Senator Wilmer Fell Davis, of Federalsburg, and Fred R. Waddell, of Hurlock. The following worshipful Masters of 1936 were initiated into the association: Augustus Stewart, of Cambridge Lodge; W. W. Harper, of East New Market Lodge; J. Wm. Davis, Temple Lodge, Denton; and William Liden, of Federalsburg.

Chestertown Firemen Elect

Chestertown.—Mr. R. Clark Davis was elected President of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company at the annual meeting held on Monday evening of this week. He succeeds Mr. W. L. Fowler who has served in that capacity for the past four years and who was not a candidate for re-election.

Celebrate 25th Wedding Anniversary

Trumpington.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Ernest Willson, of Trumpington, in Eastern Neck, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedning anniversary last Saturday, Jan. 11. Their lovely old home, built by Thomas Smythe in 1722, and always held by his descendants, was filled with a happy crowd of relatives and friends, many of whom had been guests at their wedding reception, a sumptious supper was served and the evening spent in games, music and dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Willson received many beautiful and handsome gifts and all wished them many years of happiness yet to come.

Mail Robbed At Crisfield

Crisfield.—Some of the mail sacks coming to Crisfield Wednesday morning had been split open with a sharp instrument and robbed of contents, it was reported when the truck bringing the mail from Baltimore reached here.

Since the interrupted bay traffic of the B. C. & O. Railway Company which handles the mail directly between Crisfield and Baltimore, the company's truck has been handling the delivery. It is supposed that someone climbed into the back of the truck which is not entirely closed, and perpetrated the robbery, while the cargo was en route. The sacks opened contained Parcel Post An investigation has been started.

New Factory At Ridgely

Ridgely.—Ridgely's new shirt factory, operated by Morris Weinman & Son, of Baltimore, will open sometime next week. About thirty operators will be employed. This company also operates a large factory at Hurlock.

The machinery has been installed in the building owned by the town. Mr. A. G. Satterfield, of Denton, is manager of the local plant.

Kent Relief Figures

Chestertown.—Kent county contributed approximately three times as much to the State emergency relief fund, thru the one per cent gross receipts tax, as was spent in the county for relief. Figures just released show that from April 1 to December 31 Kent paid into the State fund a total of $21,801.46 while only $7,646.78 was expended in the county for relief.

Corn Show At Sudlersville

Sudlersville.—The Sudlersville and Church Hill Chapters of the F. F. A. will have their second annual corn show at Sudlersville, Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, January 24 and 25. The young farmers hope to have a larger show than last year and will be glad to have exhibits from all over the country.

There will be two classes in each type of corn, one for the members of any chapter of the F. F. A. or 4-H Club in the county, and the other an open class in which anybody in the county may exhibit.

The types of corn and classes are as follows: ten ear and single ear samples in White corn, Yellow corn, Popcorn, Lancaster County Sure Crop and White Cap corn.

Winter Break Sign

Plum Point.—Expert fishermen claim that the recent big hauls of fish indicate that the winter is broke. They state that fish are leaving the deep waters and may be found as far up as Plum Point.

The fisherman says, "Of course we'll have some more snow and ice, but there will be no long continued freeze."

WPA Project Under Way

Sudlersville.—Tar - bound macadam surfacing of three streets in Sudlersville got underway Monday morning as a WPA project. The three dirt streets to be improved are Maple, Linden and Miller ovenues at a total cost of approximately $5,000 with WPA furnishing the labor and around one-third of the cost of materials.

The Board of Town Commissioners contemplate financing their part of the improvements without raising the town tax rate. The project will be paid for, it was stated, out of the county's allotment to incorporated towns.

Man Badly Injured

Ridgely.—Courtland Matthews an employe at The Plains, the Mother House of the Sisters of the Benedictine Order, was seriously injured Monday when he was caught between an empty coal car and a truck which was shoving the car along a railroad siding. Matthews was severely injured about the chest. After receiving treatment at the local hospital, he was taken to the Emergency Hospital in Easton.

New Project For Cambridge

Cambridge.—With the new Emerson C. Harrington bridge over the Choptank already providing the long-needed highway facilities, Cambridge seems destined to become a major port and distributing center for the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula, if the million dollar harbor improvement and canal projects discussed at a hearing before Col. E. J. Dent, of the U. S. Engineers, by Cambridge leaders go through. The two projects call for a deepening of the harbor to fourteen feet, preliminary surveys for which have been completed, and linking the Little Black Water River with the harbor by means of a three-mile canal for the occomodation of heavy draught vessels.

Farm Locals Elect Officers

Barclay.—The Sudlersville and Barclay Locals of the Queen Anne's County Farm Bureau started the current year with a lively meeting in Cox Hall at Sudlersville Monday evening when officers were elected and an enjoyable program presented.

The 1936 staff for the Sudlersville local consists of John W. Smith, president; B. P. Stafford, vice-president; and Theodore J. Walbert, secretary-treasurer. E. S. Graham was chosen president of the Barclay local.

Calvary Church Burns Note

Chestertown.—A large congregation attended the morning service at Calvary M. E. Church when a cancelled note of indebtedness was publically burned. "This is not a spectacular thing," declared the pastor, Rev. Griffeth, "but I look upon it as a solemn occasion, as an act of worship to God, an expression of gratitude, that the church is now free from this burden of debt that has been upon it for several years."

Negro Gets 18 Months

Chestertown.—Jim Davis, colored, was sentenced to 18 months in the Maryland House of Correction on Monday night by Police Magistrate John T. Vickers after he was found guilty of stealing electric wire from the Chestertown Electric Light Co.

According to the evidence in the case, Davis had taken the wire, valued at $20 and hid it in the Catlin lot across the street from the plant. Davis is an old offender and has spent a great deal of his time in Maryland penal institutions.

SYMONS SUGGESTS PERMANENT PLAN FOR AGRICULTURE

Director Of Md. Extension Service Says Agriculture Should Adopt Principles Used In Marketing Milk

PLAN ADAPTABLE TO CONDITIONS

Principles used by a number of the cooperative dairy associations in marketing milk are suggested as a basis for a permanent plan for agriculture by Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the extension service. According to this plan, he states, a product is assured a definite price for a certain basic amount of production. He is free to produce as much more than his basic allotment as he may desire, but must take his own chance as to the price he will receive for any and all production beyond his so-called "base."

The principle embodied in this plan, Dr. Symons explains, is based upon the fact that a continuing milk supply must be maintained for a given market or city. To provide a uniform supply, the producer must be given assurance of a basic price that will enable him to maintain his herd and his farm and to continue in the farming business. This plan, it is stated, is sufficiently elastic that it does not prohibit increasing the herd and the production of surplus milk. It does provide for handling of surplus, which is over and above the basic quantity assigned to the producer, at a much lower price. Consequently, there is little incentive for the farmer to produce a surplus and the lower price serves as a brake on continued production in excess of the quantity that can be disposed of at the basic price.

Should Apply To Agriculture

"I can see no convincing reason," Dr. Symons declared, "why this same principle cannot be applied to all major agricultural products. I believe that a farm can be given a suitable quota for production of different major crops and that the farmer can be assured a reasonable price based upon fair exchange, or parity, for production of his basic quota. He can produce in excess any quantity he desires, for it would be sold on the common market at the so-called world or general price. He would be given the difference between the general sale price and the parity price on his basic production only." Funds for such payments, he suggested, might be raised by either special or general taxes, or other constitutional means.

In his opinion, this proposal does not differ essentially from the policy that has existed in industry in this country for years, wherein the tariff has insured to manufacturers prices that would return a profit on reasonable production. No one associated with agriculture, he asserted, and no farmer desires from the Government subsidies or benefits that are not common to other citizens. The farmer desires to maintain his freedom to act in production, as well as in other activities.

Among the advantages of the proposed plan, it was stated that it would eliminate the general criticism of possible regimentation of agriculture and control of production, and the same time avoid a return of conditions wherein the agricultural industry was seriously jeopardized. It is urged also that the plan would be readily adaptable to changing conditions.

Needs Long-Time Program

"I admit," Dr. Symons says, "that I wish we could wholly adopt the plan of marketing milk through producer-owned cooperatives to wheat, corn and other crops. This would be ideal and is the end toward which we should work, but it is too optimistic, I fear, to urge the adoption of that plan as an immediate substitute for the adjustment program. It would require the effective and immediate organization of each group into marketing cooperatives for each commodity." In this connection, he pointed to the fact that the marketing agreement provision of the Adjustment Act has not been referred to by the Court.

Jest A-Whittlin' An' A-Thinkin'

Sometimes us fellers here in the country feel like it's pretty rough going—all kinds of trouble and heartaches and disappointments—and we wonder why? Maybe it's like in the Bible—in the 11th Chapter of Genesis—

"And the whole earth was of one language and of one speech.

"And they said, Go let us build us a city and a tower, whose top may reach unto Heaven, and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth."

And recollect how the Lord went down and saw the tower and thought they were getting along too good and got into their heads that they could get along too well without Him and how He got 'em all to talking all kinds of languages and got 'em mixed up and they never did finish the city and the tower.

Guess it's that away now—if we got along too well we'd commence to get smart alecky and think we could get along without any belief and trust in a Higher Power.

* * *

Lots of difference in a fellow farming that has money and one who hasn't any, and wants to build up his farm, and in the meanwhile make a living for his family. Was talking to a city-farmer-fellow. He said he believed he could build up his farm faster without cattle than with them—turning under green crops all the time.

Maybe he can if he is able to set on his porch and tell the boys to put in legume crops and clovers and things, and then turn 'em under—but these crops in the ground don't produce no milk nor butter nor beef nor pork and spare-ribs and no cash crops, nor corn, nor oats, nor wheat. The idea is good and easy if the fellow didn't have to eat in the meantime, and country air works up an appetite.

Was areadin' in a book the other day—and by the way, it's a handy book for every farmer to have—it's called 'Arithmetic in Agriculture and Rural Life." It said the entire value or cost of a commercial fertilizer should not be charged against the crop to which it is applied. The beneficial effects of liming may be noted from 8 to 12 years after the application of lime; phosphates from 3 to 6 years; farm manures from 3 to 8 years; nitrates from 1 to 2 years.

"All right," says the fellow over the hill, "I hauled out 379 tons of manure from my cow barn last year; one-half of this is to be charged to first year; one-third to second year; and one-sixth to third year.

"Well, that's a question that is just about sure to come up like when you go to a Bee Convention, and the Professor is telling how to transfer bees from an old log hive to a modern patented one. He'll tell 'em how to do this and that and some little old woman back in the crowd will invariably squeak out: 'Yes, Professor, that's all right—but where are the bees all this time? Well, the bees are in your eyes and up your britches leg and popping the stuffing out of you from all angles.'"

Anyhow, the books say cow manure is 86 percent water, 12 per cent nitrogen, 3 per cent phosphorus acid, and 9 per cent potash—and a fellow who can figure at all can arrive pretty closely to the price of barn yard manure.'

Detective Group Disbands After 56 Years Service

Rising Sun Detective Association Brings Long Career To End

SEVERAL PURPOSES FOR MANY YEARS

After being in existence for a period reaching back over fifty-six years, the Rising Sun Detective Association at its annual meeting on Saturday last voted to dissolve. An established feature, immediately following the meetings of the association all these years, has been a turkey dinner.

Chartered by act of the General Assembly of Maryland, "The Rising Sun Detective Association of Cecil County" was incorporated in the year 1880. The names mentioned in the articles of incorporation were L. R. Kirk, M. D.; Alfred Kirk, Ellis P. Passmore, G. S. Dare, M. D.; James M. Evans, Joshua T. Riale and John Hammersmith.

The object of the association was to pursue and recover horses or other stolen property, belonging to any member of the association, and detect incendiaries, and to detect and secure for trial the perpetrators of such theft or incendiarism." Members of the association had the power to arrest within the limits of the State of Maryland any person or persons in whose possession stolen property was found, or where there existed a reasonable ground of suspicion that such person or persons stole the property or received it into their possession knowing it to be stolen.

The association waxed strong for years, with a membership of over one hundred, and was instrumental in the recovering of much stolen property and the arrest and conviction of several thieves.

Then came evil days for the Detective Association, when someone conceived the brilliant idea of paying for stolen property up to the sum of $300, and it was so voted. Then was the object for which the organization was incorporated, by act of the General Assembly of Maryland lost sight of completely—"detection and conconviction," of property, which if stolen, would be paid for in part.

Contentions arose every meeting over the amounts paid for losses, and membership gradually dwindled until it was represented by a mere handful of little more than twenty, as compared in previous years to over one hundred, when the real purpose of the association was adhered to strictly. The climax was reached on Saturday when it was voted to dissolve, and a committee appointed to arrange for the division of funds in the treasury, as provided for in Article XXI, which stipulates said funds "shall be divided among the members, in proportion to the time they have been members."—Midland Journal.
