HAVRE DE GRACE EDITOR LOOMS UP AS NEXT HOUSE SPEAKER

With the convening of the 1939 session of the Maryland General Assembly but five weeks away, leaders in the Democratic party are drawing their lines in both the Counties and City in preparation for the fight over the leadership in the House and Senate.

With both branches dominately Democratic, naturally both the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House will come from that party, and while there has been no outspoken candidate for either office up to this time, it is a foregone conclusion that several favorite sons will be put into nomination.

While the lines of battle have not been drawn to the point of a real battle at this date, it has been assured by a large group of couny leaders, and they also have the backing of a large contingent from Baltimore City, that Le M. Moore, Delegate from Harford Co is at this time out in front for the Speakership. Mr. Moore, editor and publisher of the Democratic Ledger at Havre de Grace, was a leading member of the House during the sessions o 1934, 1935 and 1937 and was credited with splendid work on the various committees on which he served. In the session of 1935 he served on four important committees including aviation, Chesapeake Bay and Tributaries Claim and Education, and during th regular and special sessions of 1937 served with distinction on all important Ways and Means Committee.

In addition to his fine work in the House of Deleggres, Mr. Moore has served his State and County in many other directions and his wide experience has gained him such knowledg as to the needs of the State. He has always been active in civic and political affaire in his own county, Harford, and is well known throughout the State through his connections with various civic and fraternal organizations.

Well known and highly honored by the newspaper fraternity, Mr. Moore served two terms as president of the Maryland Press Association and is highly regarded among that profession for his many activities in behalf of the county press. He also served one term as president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association and much of the credit is due him for advancing the cause of volunteer firemen all over the State. He is a past president of the Havre de Grace Rotary Club and is at the present time president of the Susquehanna Hose Company, a Position he held for two terms ten years ago, having once more been called to the leadership of this organization.

He organized the Havre de Grac Hospital, and is now one of the directors of that fine institution in his home city, Havre de Grace. Mr Moore is a former director of the First National Bank of Havre de Grace and at one time was connected with the New Home Building and Loan Association of Havre de Grace. In Septembe 1907, Mr. Moore bought the Democratic Ledger at Havre de Grace, and he continued as its owner and editor since that date.

In casting for a Speaker, it is generally conceded by a great majority of former members as well as a great many of the new men who will make up the House during the 1939 session. that Mr. Moore, long recognized as on of the leading members from the counties, will make the ideal speaker at the coming session.

BE SURE YOU TACKLE ONLY HEALTHY SPECIMENS

With the hunting season under way, and with rabbits on the menu again, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, cautions hunters, market men, housewives and cooks, and any others who have occasion to handle the game, to be sure they bag, or buy, healthy specimens, only, and to exercise special care in skinning the rabbits and in preparing the meat for the market or for the table. Cooks and housewives are advised that all rabbit meat prepared for the table should be cooked thoroughly.

All of these precautions are urged. Dr. Riley continued, as safeguards against contracting rabbit fever. If you are a hunter or food handler you probably have heard of the disease and know that it is contracted in handling diseased rabbits — wild rabbits, particularly. While it is familiarly known as rabbit fever, it is also listed in the text books as Tuleremia, from the place in California in which it was first identified.

The disease spreads from animal to animal through the bite of infected ticks, or of certain kinds of flies. It attacks wild rabbits(particularly. Domestic rabbits, as a rule, are free from it, probably because they are not exposed to ticks. Human beings contract the disease either in handling, skinning, or cutting up the meat of the infected animals, through the bite of infected ticks, or in crushing the ticks. The infection can be absorbed into the system through an open cut, or even the merest scratch in the skin. Severe cases have occured through rubbing the infectious material into the eyes, while preparing the meat for the table. The disease has even been contracted in handling the fur of infected animals.

Fortunately not all wild rabbits are infected and sportsmen are warned to be on their guard against the animals that move slowly or that seem to be sick, and to kill only those that are lively and alert and that move quickly.

If you handle the game or prepare the meat for the market or the table use the following precautions:

Use rubber gloves. Don't handle the game with bare hands. If it is impossible to use rubber gloves, wash the hands thoroughly with soap and water after handling a rabbit.

Don't allow the meat or fur to come in contact with any scratch or open cut in your skin. Keep your hands away from your face and your eyes.

Burn all papers or wrappings that have been in contact with the game.

Be careful in handling rabbit fur. Don't give the fuzzy tails or 'the left hind foot' to the children to play with.

If you buy the rabbit meat for the table, have the rabbits skinned for you. Cook the meat thoroughly, Complete cooking destroys the germs of the disease.

State Policeman, H. F. Shultheis, traced two cars of whiskey to Havre de Grace, which are supposed to be part of the loot taken from Cecil Hotel. Perryiville, which was reported to have been robbed on Friday of several cases of whiskey. Warrants for suspects have been issued.

CLOSING THE OLD SUSQUEHANNA BRIDGE

After many years of bickering the State bought the present two-decked bridge and removed all toll charges, both personal and vehicular.

Both Havre de Grace and Perryivlle felt the beneficial effects at once as did also the surrounding country. Partiicularly in the above mentioned towns was the effect be noticeable

Now the plans for building a new bridge comes the word that the old structure is to be torn down and a cross river toll established on the new bridge. The citizens and town authorities on both sides of the river are up in arms at the increased cost and probable loss of trade.

Particularly incensed are the employes in the Government Hospital at Perry Point. The long detour necessary for pedestrians of over a mile. more than at present and toll additonal is infuriating when the present route is so short, direct and free.

Nothing has been heard up to the present about the bridge being unsafe; inadequate, Yes, but unsafe, NO.

It looks as though all the State Officers will have some explaining to do from Gov. Nice down t hrough all departments of both Annapolis and the State Roads Offices at Baltimore for not being more direct in their statement of necessary changes.

Both Nice and O'Conor are being questioned as to previous promises and present plans, which do not match up at all.

SQUIERS FOR PRESIDENCY OF STATE SENATE

Senator C. Clyde Squier's name is being mentioned for the Presidency of of the Maryland Senate. After his long membership of the General Assembly of Maryland, twice as a member of the House of Delegates and two terms in the Maryland State Senate, he is thoroughly conversant with the duties of Presiding Officer, and stands second to none of members-elect of the Maryland Senate.

His knowledge of Parliamentary Procedure and Practice will stand him in good stead, if he is chosen as President of Maryland Senate, by members-elect. And if chosen he will discharge the duties of that Office in a fearles manner, which will reflect credit both on the Maryland Senate and himself also the State of Maryland. He is both courageous and honest. He will have no friends to reward or enemies to punish, as he is free of factional political entanglements.
