George T. Howard, Complaintant,
vs:
Elizabeth G. Howard, Defendant

In The Circuit Court for Cecil County, Equity No. 5339

The object of this Bill is to secure a decree divorcing the Complainant a vinculo matrimonii from the said Defendant.

The Bill states that the Complainant was married to the Defendant on the 26th day of March, 1907, with whom he lived in the City of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, until the ninth day of May, 1930; that the Complainant and Defendant have voluntarily lived separate and apart, without any cohabitation for more than five consecutive years, prior to the filing of his Bill of Complaint and said separation is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation. That four children were born to this marriage. That the Complainant has resided in Cecil County, for more than two years before the filing of this Bill. The Bill then asks for a decree divorcing the Complainant from the Defendant a vinculo matrimonii and for such other and further relief as her case may require.

It is thereupon, this 15th day of December, 1938, by the Circuit Court for Cecil County, in equity, ordered that the Complainant cause a copy of this order with the object and sustance of the Bill to be inserted in some newspaper published in Cecil County once a week for four successive weeks, before the 16th day of January, 1939, giving notice to the Defendant, who is a non-resident of the State of Maryland, to appear in this Court either in person or by solicitor on or before the 6th day of February, 1939, to answer the premises and to abide by and perform such decree as may be passed herein.

BOWLING

The qualifying deadline for the $50,000 Red Crown Sweepstakes, world's record-breaking bowling classic, has been extended to midnight of January 8, 1939, officials at the central headquarters of the sweepstakes announced here today.

With literally thousands of entries pouring in from every section of the country, it became evident, the officials said, that certain teams have been handicapped by the sweepstakes 21-game qualifying round rule.

In announcing the extension of the deadline, the Red Crown officials stated that the unusually mild weather of last Fall delayed the opening of A. B. C. sanctioned league play in many parts of the country, with the result that scores of five-man teams, bowling for qualification in the sweep failed to complete the required twenty-one games in time for the original deadline, December 17.

"It is our desire to work no hardship on any team in any league," the announcement read. "While the mild Fall weather delayed league play, we have found, in some cases, that illness, injury, changes in working hours and other unforeseen complications made it impossible for deserving teams to complete their twenty-one game qualifying schedule by December 17.

"We are, therefore, changing rule No. 3 which allows for the extension of the qualifying deadline to January 8."

The great interest in this bowling event is further proof that the 1938-1939 season will be one of the greatest in the history of the sport, it was pointed out.

Prize play in the Red Crown will be held between January 22nd and February 11. More than $50,000 in merchandise awards—or 9,045 prizes—will be allotted to bowlers in three ability classifications in four geographical sections of the country.

Two hot teams from Baltimore for feature matches will be the high spot this Saturday night at the Community Alleys as the second half of the season swings into its stride. The visitors will come from the Charles Bowling Center, and both contests will be return games.

The Coca-Cola Bottle Babies will engage the Charles Lucky Strikers, five young ladies from the Social Security offices. In their first meeting at Baltimore a few weeks back the Coca Cola stars piled up a huge total to snow the Baltimore Belles under completely. But the team has improved a lot since then and a much tighter game is expected. The girls from the big town make up the only ten-pin team of women in that section and it is the intention of the Charles Alleys to develop these girls as the Coca Cola girls have been developed here.

The Big Five, the Community Alley star aggregation, will be seen against the Bromo-Seltzers, and the visitors are out to avenge the defeat they suffered on their home boards recently when the Community boys won by the narrow margin of thirty-five or so pins.

The results of last week's matches showed a couple of surprises. The Chester West End No. 1 team mowed down the Big Five mercilessly while the Roamers defeated the Chester No. 2 rollers. The Elkton Odd Fellows triumphed over their Wilmington rivals, the Jefferson Lodge from that city.

Among the women, the Coca Cola quintet against starred by rolling up 2,080 pins to smother the DuPont Girls. Nellie Mc Daniel's 187 pins was the high score of the night and won her the West End Diner's steaks while Alma Fritsch, of the DuPonts, won a compact for her tops. Grace Yewell's OTW Specials lost to the Chester Women, but not without putting up a terrific fight that had the gals from the Uplands pretty much scared for a while.

U. of Delaware Alumni Conference

A one-day conference of various representatives of the University of Delaware Alumni Association will be held in Old College, Newark, on Saturday, February 4.

Invitations to this meeting have been extended to members of the Association's Executive Committee, standing committees, local club officers, and class secretaries.

The purpose of the conference is to outline to the representatives who attend the work which the Association has already undertaken and its plans for further expansion, and also to secure the suggestions and cooperation of these various alumni officers and committeemen.

At the first morning session the general topic will deal with the organization and finances of the Association. Immediately following this there will be another session which will discuss the Alumni program in relation to the welfare of the University. After lunch the group will meet again for discussion of the Alumni program in relation to the welfare of the Alumni Association.

The conference will conclude with a dinner at 6:00 P. M. At that time Dr. Walter Hullihen, President of the University, will address the group on the subject "The University—A Look Ahead, and the Field of the Alumni Association in the University Future" Following this, Milton L. Draper, President of the Alumni Association, will give a summation of the day's discussion by talking on "The Task Before Us and the Objectives of the Alumni Association."

University of Delaware Notes

Mid-year examinations will start at the University of Delaware Thursday of next week and end on January 26. All students will register for the new term on January 30.

Because of the mid-year examinations there will be but one more athletic event at the University of Delaware after this week until February. Delaware plays Western Maryland College basketball Saturday night of this week and will play Washington College in Newark next Tuesday night.

The Alumni Association of Delaware College, University of Delaware will hold the mid-winter reunion at the University on February 25. An interesting program, which will include a banquetin Old College early in the evening, is being arranged. That evening Delaware will play P. M. C. basketball in Taylor gymnasium.

Fair progress is being made in the work on the new administration and class room building at the University of Delaware. This project with the addition to the University library will later give work to a large number of skilled workmen during the summer and fall months. The total cost of the projects, including furnishings of the two buildings, will total more than $500,000 and the entire amount is provided by PWA and gifts by friends of the institution.

Maryland VS. Washington State Oysters

Washington State oysters received at the Government House for Governor O'Conor from Governor Clarence D. Martin of Washington State yesterday. The chefs of Maryland are in consternation.

How does Governor Martin get that way? Why the small Washington sort when we already have the large, fresh juicy, luscious, mouth-filling flavorious Maryland bilalve.

Well probably the Washington Governor has never tasted a Maryland oyster and dont know what they are like. The chefs of Maryland thing his gastronomic education needs attending to and will issue issue an invitation to come east probably in February when real Maryland cookery will be served and incidentally oysters.

If Governor Martin only knew what was in store for him he could hardly wait.

Feeding Turkeys

Newark, Del., Jan. 12.—Breeding turkeys loose weight steadily during laying season. They can stand this loss if they are fed liberally through the winter so that they will be in prime condition when the laying season starts, says H. L. Richardson, extension poultry specialist of the University of Delaware.

Too, most turkey growers select young hens and young toms from the spring flock to hold over as breeders. Only by liberal feeding do they reach full growth by the time the laying season starts.

Richardson calls attention to breeding flock feeding studies by Stanley J. Marsden, turkey specialist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Under ordinary winter conditions in all but the northernmost sections of the United States, with some green feed such as hay and plenty of sunshine, he found that breeding birds kept in good condition if they had all they wanted of good growing mash, the same as fed for finishing holiday market birds, together with scratch grain, plenty of water and gravel or some other insoluble grit.

A recommended mash is: Bran, 12 parts; middlings, 12 parts; ground oats, 12 parts; ground yellow corn, 33 parts; alalfa leaf meal, 6 parts; meat scraps 13 parts; dried milk, 10 parts; salt, 1 part. This ration, together with scratch grain, water and grit, should be continued until at least one month before the hens are expected to start laying, after which time a laying ration should be provided.

When winter weather is severe and birds must be confined the growing mash should contain 1 per cent cod-liver oil, it should not be mixed with the mash for more than two weeks in advance—one week is better.

Yacht Basin To Be Aired

Tact

(A Poem from Punch)

I said that it was simply shocking—
Would make her look a dreadful fright.
I said she'd set the neighbours rocking
With their laughter half the night
I said that if she dared to wear it
Boldly in a crowded street
Strong men would howl at it and tear it,
Trample it beneath their feet.
I said it made her eyes look badly
And her ears stick out too wide.
I said it proved that she was greedy,
Filled with envy, puffed with pride
All these things and more I told her
As I took it from the shelf;
But, because I daren't be bolder,
I said them dumbly to myself.
I praised her woman's intuition,
Saying, as she bought the hat
(After all, we get commission):
"Modom looks divine in that."

Woman Buys, Will Run 30-Story Hotel

THE thirty-story, 1,400-room Hotel Lincoln in New York has been bought and will be operated by a woman—Mrs. Maria Kramer, who thus becomes the "First Lady" of the hotel industry. The feminine touch appeared in one of her first acts as owner, when she headed straight for the hotel kitchens and, as the photo shows, tried out for herself the quality of the chef's coffee.

She'll live up to it with an

ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

From the looks of things above, it's a safe bet the little lady will induce Friend Husband to get an Electric Water Heater . . . and end all lukewarm water woes.

If you are struggling along with a non-automatic heater and suffering "lukewarm-water-itis", we suggest you, too, get an Electric Water Heater. And remember on our low off-peak rate, you pay only 1¼c per kilowatt-hour to heat your water electrically. (Minimum monthly bill $1.)
