BOWLING

Just when it looked like everything was in the bag for Jack Ward's Highwaymen in the manner of bowling honors, announcement was made this week that the road workers will give the badly battered Community Alley Big Five a chance to redeem themselves for their showing of last Saturday night. The state road aggregation, given only an outside chance by the experts, came through with flying colors under pressure last week-end and smothered the Big Five under an avalanche of maples. The Highwaymen won by 125 pins after going into that much lead in the first and second game, and then rolling a tie score of 841 for the third session. No roll-off was necessary to break that tie, however, because the steam shovel and the big roller had done heavy duty and the Big Five went down.

This Saturday night attention will focus here on the match between the Roamers and the Grady Alley Stars, of Wilmington. At the same time the Coca-Cola Bottle Babies, together with the Community Alleys and the O. T. W.'s will be the attraction at the Grady runways.

The Bottle Babies stayed up to their average last Saturday in their match with the Du Pont Office Girls when they rolled 2,203 for an easy victory, but their third game in the contest was way off. Nellie McDaniel's 184 earned her the West End Diner's two steak dinners for high prize and the visitor's prize went to Alma Fritsch for her 151. The Elkton fems had one good game in the match, rolling 826.

League honors for the week in individual play were divided between Marion Slonaker and Cas Dunbar for three games rolling with 637 each. Kenmore's 2,692 was the best team three-game and Co. E.'s 939 was single team tops.

In the Red Crown Sweepstakes, the twelve national winners for the first week were announced as follows:

5 man—"Palace Barbers," Wilkes Barra, Pa, 3475 pins.

"Trotters Sanitarium," Kansas City 3326 pins.

"Shurks Laddies," Akron, Ohio, 3258 pins.

"Hoosier Beers," South Bend, Ind., 3257 pins.

The Red Crown Sweepstakes with a $50000 purse for division at the end of the contest has drawn a tremendous amount of interest from the keglers all over the land.

Two more weeks of play will be necessary before the final winners and scores are available.

The Red Crown sweepstakes in its second week turned in some remarkable scores. The following were reported:

The Heil Quality Products Team, Milwaukee — 3647, making highest number of pins to date and leading in section two.

Monichs of Fremont, Neb. — 3267.

Canton Pure Milk, Canton, O.—3387.

Richard Motor Freights, Avoca, Pa. — 3412.

Classes B and C showed the following scores (Sections 1, 2 3 and 4).

Class B, Schlitz Beers, Council Bluffs, Ia. — 3072.

Class C, Meyer's Bar-B-Q's, St. Louis, Mo. — 2948.

Class B, Vliets' Offices, Greendale, Wis. — 3058.

Class C, Low Price Gases, Richmond, Ind. — 2741.

Class B, Hall Funeral Homes, Detroit, Mich. — 3070.

Class C, Westminister Drugs, Detroit, Mich. — 2907.

Class B, N. J. Highways, Trenton, N. J. — 3162.

Class C, Little Oak Taverns, Guttenberg, N. J. — 2790.

Determining Sex In Baby Chicks

"At the National Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., it has been found that such external characteristics as down color, down striping, beak and shank color are good indicators of sex with some breeds and crossbreeds," he pointed out.

When Rhode Island Red males were crossed with Barred Plymouth Rock hens the Bureau workers observed that chicks with a white spot on the head were males. Those without white spots on the head proved to be females. This method proved almost 99% correct in determining sex.

A study of purebred Barred Plymouth Rocks showed that female chicks have an intense black down and shank, and a small white spot on the head. The males have a larger white spot on the head, grayish-black down, and yellow shanks. Based on these characteristics, sexing was 91.8 per cent correct.

The Bureau scientists also have been successful in sexing Rhode Island Red chicks, finding that 84.9 per cent of the striped and spotted chicks were female and 77.8 per cent of the nonspotted, nonstriped chicks were males. The same general characteristics hold true for the New Hampshire Reds.

Studies have been made of White Plymouth Rocks, Jersey Black Giants and Jersey White Giants. So far the scientists have not found a reliable sex indicator for these breeds.

Don't Neglect That Cold

"Just a cold," often opens the way for pneumonia. If you develop a cold, don't let it run on. Don't waste time on prescribing for yourself. See your doctor, or have him come to see you. And obey his orders.

Pneumonia is always a matter of special concern to physicians and health officers during the colder months. Cases may develop at any time of the year, but the flare-up usually begins in the fall and the peak comes during the winter months. The decline begins in the spring and the disease reaches its lowest ebb, for both sickness and death, during the summer. Very often a neglected cold or an attack of grippe or influenza opens the way for the more serious disease, and there is always danger of it in connection with measles.

Pneumonia hits hardest at very young children and at persons from fifteen years old and upward, on through the older age groups. The best way to prevent it is through careful, hygienic living, avoidance of colds, and the strengthening of the powers of resistance to disease. The best way to combat it, is through prompt and continuous medical attention, laboratory tests to show the type of the disease, and careful and efficient nursing.
