Our Mails

Are still managed very carelessly and, without the slightest regard to the comfort and needs of the community. Two days of last week we missed the New York mail and in this the same occurrence took place Tuesday. Inconvenient as is the reception of our mails, the delivery of our letters to distant correspondents is worse. This is is a great country. The best government under the cope of Heaven cannot protect its citizens who dwell within a stone's throw of Washington Our one horse Rail Road may be a blessing in disguise; but to a human eye it is an unmixed source of annoyance and public disappointment.

All letters will be promptly answered.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C. January, 21st 1878.

The Presidents first public levee was not in point of numbers a success, as compared with those given by Grant Johnson and Lincoln, and as Mrs. Hayes is a pattern of simplicity in dress, there was a very noticeable change in the character of the costumes worn by the ladies. Every nation has its representatives there, all the diplomats however were in plain black suits and not in the gaudy trumpery of court dress. They will then wear only at the State dinners. The Russian and Turkish ministers are indulging in no hospitality or society amusements this winter owing to the terrible war which is being waged by their respective countries The equestrian statue of General Green, the quaker soldier, has been placed in position in Stanton Place and is another added attraction to the works of art that beautify the Capital Mrs. Thompson a wealthy lady of New York has purchased F. B. Carpenter's painting of "Lincoln and the Emancipation Proclamation" will present it to Congress on Lincolns birthday February 12th, Hon Alexander H Stevens will make the speech of acceptance in reply to Mr Garfields presentation address. Among the prominent persons in the city is General George Williams of Indiana, who six years ago went to Japan to introduce there the American system of Internal Revenue. He has now returned to this country having been highly honored by the Japanese government. The proposition to reduce the tax on whiskey and tobacco is meeting with great opposition here, from the distillers and tobacco manufacturers as their business is at a perfect stand still and will be until the matters is settled by Congress. They say they cannot effect sales now because the buyers say "we will wait till the tax is reduced and then purchase cheaper. Congress seems to have an uncomfortable habit of dabbling into a thing just enough to unsettle the interests of every one connected with it and then either dropping the whole matter or refering it to some committee, who lay it on the table, and seldom take it up again. Jay Gould the keen eyed Wall Street broker is in the city looking after the interests of the Union Pacific Railroad. He is a good coppyist and has a good reputation here in the line of a scheme. The value of a penny is being demonstrated by Roberts the gossipy writer of the Sunday Capital, a "Penn Lunch Room" has been opened by her and is doing a splendid business. Tickets are sold to the public at a cent each and these are given to the poor instead of money, and for one of them will be given a plate of soup, a piece of meat, a cup of coffee, bread and butter, or a boiled potato. The same plan has been acted upon by the 'Labor Exchange' an institution peculiar to Washington. Hon. John Hitz, consul General of the Swiss Government, is the prime mover in the city in philanthropic movements, and gives great share of time and money in helping the poor. His wife a lovely woman works at his side in every charitable undertaking. If we had a few more persons like this gentleman there would be a deal less suffering by the poor, it is a foreigner who teaches us charity.

Nearly two hundred millions was lost last year by business failures, and the future outlook should awaken the immediate attention of congress. The conflicts, in relation to currency should be settled as soon as possible. It would seem that a silver dollar should be coined of equal value with gold, and be made receivable in payments of all debts, such action would stimulate the courage of silver and prevent speculations, in gold, a proposition has been made which is receiving consideration among the hard money men. It is to coin a dollar from both gold and silver combined, which would form a material called "goloed." The dollar piece would contain 222 grains of silver, 25 grains copper and 9 grains gold. The representatives of the measure claim that it is practical and possible to unite the two metals form one which would be popular, honest and convenient Dr Linderman the superintendent of the mint says that the only objection he can see to the new metal is that it will be easier to counterfeit than gold or silver. This may yet be the compromise between the two factions of hard money advocates.

PAX

THE BRADLEY PROMETHOR.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW MOTOR—INTERVIEWED WITH THE INVENTOR—PROBABLE REVOLUTION IN MOTIVE POWER, &c.

A reporter of the Evening Bulletin had an interview at Cambridge, with Mr. Bradley, the inventor of the Bradley Promethor, recently patented, and an invention which, it is claimed, will revolutionize the motive power of the world.

The principal points of superiority over all other motors are said to be economy in space and fuel absolute safety, and promptness of action, it being capable of generating from one to a thousand pounds of pressure to the square inch in a minute. It has not the slightest connection with the steam power so extensively in present use The modus operandi of the apparatus is a fac simile of the human lungs It is based on physiological principles and is constructed on the cellular system.

The actual motive power is a certain kind of gas, which is evolved by mechanical disintegration, the water being forced through solid silver by hydrostatic pressure, which is automatic, and is operated by the engine. This product is introduced into small cells of one inch internal diameter, made of the best decarbonized steel, and there quickened into gas by heat, which does not need to be over the ordinary temperature to produce steam. There is no water introduced as water into the generators.

The apparatus, therefore, contains nothing but pure gas, without any likeness to a steam boiler. Three hundred pounds pressure can be had from a thimblefull of water and the pressure can be raised any degree to thousands of pounds to the square inch by regulating the supply of water The gas frequently reaches so intense a state as to show great signs of electrical action, but before being admitted to the cylinder of the engine it is oxydized, which fully prepares it to act with all the smoothness of steam on the piston.

The representative of the Bulletin was shown by Mr. Bradley a twenty-horse power generator on board of a yacht thirty five feet long, which was lying at Cambridge wharf. A successful trial trip was made on Tuesday from Medford's to Cambridge on the Ghoptank river, accomplishing the distance, fifteen miles, in one hour and a half, with several stoppages. The quantity of water consumed was about twenty gallons. The generator the reporter saw is composed of a series of five hundred and sixty cells, one inch in diameter on the interior and two inches on the exterior, the whole occupying a space of only twenty-two square inches. The first step in the motive power begins with the explosion of the water into small particles, which can no more explode a second time than powder once ignited.

A boat in running a given distance can be kept at a uniform pressure, and no boiler will work with greater regularity than this gas generator.

Mr. Bradley says that his invention is not the result of a dream or chance, but of hard search and study, based upon scientific principles, and is the outgrowth of eight years of unremitting labor and investment. The motor has now been in successful operation (in private) for two years, has been pronounced a complete success by some of the best engineers in the country who have been shown the workings of the wonderful little piece of machinery.

It is an entirely new system of engineering and not the creation of a new power, but the development and the concentration of power of the great element. The motor has already been patented in Canada, through Europe, South America and Australia.

The little yacht was to have left Cambridge last night, continuing her trip to Baltimore and is expected to reach the city, after making one or two stops, this afternoon.

Robert D. Bradley, the inventor of this promethor, is but thirty-eight years of age, and a native of Caroline county, his present residence being at Preston, in the aforesaid county. He is a local preacher, and formerly edited the Vienna (Dorchester county) Clipper

A WIFE'S REMEDY.

HOW A DELAWARE WOMAN CURED HER HUSBAND OF AN OVER FONDNESS FOR LIQUOR

[From the Dover. Del. Sentinel. Jan. 12.]

A woman residing in this town becoming tired of the constant potations of her husband determined to try a desperate remedy to cure him. One night he came staggering into the house and said that he was a very sick man, and in a moment or two he was comfortably settled on the sofa in a drunken sleep. His face was a reddish purple, his breathing heavy, and altogether, he was a pitiable object. The doctor was sent for post haste, and mustard applied to his feet and hands. When the doctor came and felt his pulse and examined him, and found that he was only drunk, he said:

"He will be all right in the morning."

But the wife insisted that he was very sick, and that severe remedies must be used. "You must shave his head and apply blisters," she urged, "or I will send for some one who will."

The husbands head was accordingly shaved closely and blisters applied. The patient lay all night in a drunken sleep, and notwithstanding the blisters, it was not till near morning that he began to beat about, disturbed by pain. About daylight he waked up to a most uncomfortable consciousness of blistered agonies.

"What does this mean?" he said, putting his hands to his bandaged head.

"Lie still—you musn't stir," said the wife, "you have been taken very sick."

"I'm not sick"

"O yes, you are; you have brain fever. We have worked with you all night."

"I should think you had," groaned the victim: "what's the matter with my feet?"

"They are blistered."

"Well, I'm better now—take off the blisters, do!" he pleaded, piteously. He was in a most uncomfortable state—his head covered with sores, and his feet and hands were still worse.

"Dear," he said, groaning, "if I should ever get sick in this way again, don't be alarmed and send for a doctor, above all; don't blister me again."

"O, indeed; I will—all that saved you were the blisters, and if you ever should have another such spell, I should be more frightened than ever, for the tendency, I am sure, is to apoplexy, and from the next attack you would be likely to die, unless there were the severest measures used." He made no further defence; suffice to say he has never had another attack since.
