Chestertown Transcript.

THURSDAY, NOV. 10, 1881.

Election Day passed off quietly in Kent.

T. H. Horsey advertises in this issue, furniture, stoves, carpets, &c., at city prices, at his Galena store.

Vennor says, it may snow, or it may not snow on New Year's day. That's the kind of a prophecy to bet on.

Personal Property to be Sold.—Mrs. Catherine A. Lusby advertises elsewhere a large amount of valuable personal property to be sold at her residence near Chesterville.

The Kent Cornet Band seems to be in a quiescent state. It made its appearance at the mass meeting last Thursday evening, however. The town and county should take some pride in the band and encourage it.

Baltimore Grain Market—Tuesday's Quotations.—Southern Wheat is quiet and prices are lower, especially for shipping grades. The sales embrace Fultz at 1 35a$1 40 and long-berry at 1 41a$1 50, closing 1 and 2 cents lower on outside figures. The market for Southern corn is steady under moderate arrivals: sales of white at 71a72 cents for old and 68a71 cents for new, and yellow at 68 cents for new.

Gone Into Matrimony.—Another Peninsula Editor has committed matrimony. Mr. Chas. A. Busteed, junior editor of the Centreville Observer, was married on Thursday of last week to Miss Mollie G. Wilkinson, daughter of Capt. John Wilkinson. Charles has our congratulations. Henceforth he will have to provide enough turnips for two, spend all of his patent medicine funds for spring bonnets, and be in every night before nine o'clock.

The Result of a Military Salute.—Stedman T. Wickes, son of Judge Wickes of this town, was recently one of the sufferers from a serious accident. He is a student at the military school at West Chester, Pennsylvania, and on the occasion of the French visitors passing through to Philadelphia recently, a military salute was fired by the students. Wickes was one of a squad of four to manage one of the guns. The young man whose charge it was to swab the gun neglected his duty. On reloading, the cartridge exploded prematurely, tearing off both the arms of the young man who rammed down the cartridge. Wickes, whose charge was to keep his finger over the fuse hole, fortunately escaped with the dislocation of his right thumb.

The Mass Meeting of the Democracy, last Thursday evening, notwithstanding the bad weather, was well attended and enthusiastic.

M. deK. Smith, Esq., proposed the following officers, who were unanimously elected:

President—James A. Pearce.

Vice-Presidents—First District, James J. Spear, James R. Jones; second, William T. Hepbron, Dennis J. Nowland; third, J. Wrightson Howard, Capt. Thos. H. Kennard; fourth, Wm. S. Walker, Stephen Lecates; fifth, Benjamin F. Beck, Richard W Jones.

Secretaries—Dr. J. Horton Kelley, Samuel H. Crawford.

All present were pleased with the eloquent speeches of Messrs. Compton and McClure.

An Unsolved Mystery.—Last Friday morning Edward Lambert was engaged in catching shrimp with a net, along the Chestertown side of Chester river. About midway between Taylor's wharf and the Chester river bridge, he saw something white lying in shallow water, within twenty feet of the shore. With some difficulty he finally succeeded in bringing it within reach. On examination he found it to be a child, sewed up in a flour sack. He conveyed it to the vacant lot next to the bridge, and notified the coroner.

Coroner Bordley summoned a jury of inquest. Dr. C. W. Whaland was summoned, and made a post mortem examination of the child. It was a well developed white male. The doctor said that there were evidences that the child had been born alive, and there were also evidences that it had not lived long after its birth. He thought it had probably been in the water for about five days.

The sack in which it was found was a common twenty-five pound flour sack, with the name of the manufacturer—Robertson—stamped on it in red letters. It was sewed up with paper twine.

The jury had no testimony that gave any solution of the matter, and rendered a verdict that the child came to its death in a manner unknown to the jury. There was not much doubt in the minds of the jury or of others that, there had been foul play. But there was no clue to point suspicion. It is hardly probable that the child was born in Chestertown. It is hardly possible in so small a town, that a child could be born at maturity and made away with, without some suspicion being attracted to the mother. The whole matter remains a mystery.

The Galena Thieves Captured.—On Thursday night, the 18th of last October, thieves broke into the store of Mr. Thomas H. Horsey of Galena, and stole a large lot of goods. Two horses belonging to Mr. George W. Crisfield were taken the same night, but were found shortly after. A clue was finally obtained, that led to the belief that the thieves were Robert Allen and Henry Rasin, two Wilmington negroes of well known bad character. The clue was quietly worked up, and sufficient evidence of guilt was obtained to warrant their arrest. On last Saturday, sheriff Gooding, together with Mr. Horsey, went to Wilmington, and made inquiries for the desired parties at police headquarters. The Wilmington detectives were very well acquainted with both men, and knew exactly where to find them. The arrest was made, and on search some of the goods which Mr. Horsey recognized as his, was found in the trunk of one of the prisoners. The men were brought to Chestertown, and lodged in jail last Saturday evening.

Allen is a powerfully built negro, black skin, well shaped head, and a face that indicates a power to be a more than ordinary scoundrel. He is spotted as an ex-convict of the New Jersey penitentiary, and as having recently escaped from the jail of Georgetown, Sussex county, Delaware, where there is yet due him a part of an unexpired term of imprisonment. Allen bears the reputation of being a professional cracksman.

Rasin is a smaller negro, with a brighter skin, a flat topped head and low forehead. He doesn't look as though he had the ability to plan skillful thievery for himself, but he looks as though he might be fool enough to follow implicitly the directions of his associate. He lived in the neighborhood of Galena about eight years ago.

It is believed that these two are responsible for a number of robberies that have taken place in Galena and Millington in the last few years.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

THE WHEAT—FARM WORK—FRUIT TREE PLANTING—A DWELLING BURNED—PERSONAL MATTERS—SCARCITY OF PARTRIDGES AND RABBITS, ETC.

November sky is chill and drear,
November leaf is red and sear.—Scott.

If Vennor's predictions are verified the weather this month will be balmy as spring.

The wheat is well rooted.

The farmer is nearly through with his year's work.

Those having fruit trees to plant could not have a better time than the present.

The Kieffer pear trees have been delivered, and a good many people have been humbugged in getting them. Next autumn they will be sold for thirty dollars per hundred. It is a shame for people to be imposed upon in such a manner.

George E. Owens's dwelling (with clothing and furniture) was destroyed by fire on Friday. Mr. Owens is one of Betterton's best citizens, and as there was no insurance on the property, the earnings of his life time are gone. Subscriptions have been started and there is a general impulse to aid him in his adversity.

James Crew (of Betterton) arrived home a few days ago with his bride. Though unexpected, his many friends are gratified and wish him a life of perpetual sunshine.

L. C. Justis has returned home improved in health. By the way, there is a report that "Charlie" is on the matrimonial list, and that it will be consummated at an early day.

Dr. Jacobs is convalescing.

J. B. Parrott, J. R. Beck and Alex. Bostic are very sick with malarial fever. This disease is confined, at present, mostly to middle aged males.

Partridges and rabbits are so scarce that it is a shame to hunt them, but our gunners think it is best to exterminate them. There are three gunners for every bird this season.

The absence of political excitement renders this an auspicious season for religious revivals. The great trouble in getting up revivals now-a-days, is to make people believe they are sinners. Sinners say they are as good as the saints, and many of them will never believe otherwise, until they get in his satanic majesty's embrace, and then it will be too late. People should get their matters fixed in health, for sickness and death will come. Sick-bed repentance generally lasts until the doctor is discharged and the cook is called in.

Lynch's and Kennedyville have two new babies. Still Pond has none.

Mr. Charles Pearson (from near Chesterville) is attending lectures at the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

A beet sugar factory, steam grist mill, cheese factory and canning house, are all needed in this county. We are a hundred years behind some of our neighbors in enterprise. It is a terrible way to live and die in the same old ruts our ancestors made. There is a plenty of capital here, what we lack is the enterprise.

November 7th, 1881.

Peninsula News.

Worcester county has a colored juryman.

A new paper is to be started in Salisbury to be known as the "Bachelor."

It is reported that 250 horses have died with blind staggers in Queen Anne's county.

Wilmington Conference holds its next session at Middletown, Del., March 8, 1882. Bishop J. F. Hurst will preside.

Middletown, Del., has a flourishing literary society, which charges five cents admission to outsiders at its regular meetings.

A Georgetown, Del., bailiff got his thumb chewed off by a ruffian. The magistrate estimated the bailiff's chewed off thumb to be worth ten dollars, and fined the rough that amount.

Peter Truax, of Kent county, Delaware, one night recently found a thief in his corn field. The thief ran, leaving a horse and wagon behind, which Peter holds till the owner calls for it.

The bald-headed editor of the Middletown Transcript gets off in his last issue, a nine column joke. It's a $250 joke. It brings into play the 7x9 smile of the bald-headed every time he casts his eye over it.

When William J. Handy of Somerset County, Md., lost his slaves by the war, he declared that he would never employ hired labor. His farm became a wilderness, and it was a struggle to reach his house. Last week he was sent to an insane asylum.

Probably there was never so much timber cut on the Peninsula in one year as this. Larger quantities than usual have been used in building dwellings and vessels, and for piling, telegraph poles, and railroad ties, &c. The quantity has been enormous.

Some of our Peninsula exchanges are quoting Vennor as authority for this winter's weather. Humbugs usually hold on tenaciously, even after they are proved to be humbugs, and Vennor is no exception. The newspaper man who wants reliable information, as to the coming winter, will have to fall back on the persimmon crop.

The novelty of a lady gunner was witnessed in the person of Mrs. Childs of Philadelphia, who with her husband arrived at Straughn's hotel fully equipped for bird shooting. She enjoyed the sport for several days, and, it is said, is a good shot, bringing her bird down as frequently as the majority of the gentlemen.—Centreville Observer.

The Conference Worker, of Wilmington, tells a thrilling story about a young lawyer of Talbot county, who was attacked by a copperhead snake, but who valiantly made war on the reptile, and finally slew him.

This of course was very heroic on the part of the young lawyer, the only drawback being that there are no copperhead snakes in Talbot county. The monster was probably one of the ordinary black and yellow snakes which are perfectly harmless and of which every ten year old country boy has slain his dozens.

The trial of Arrants for the murder of Voelker, which was begun in Elkton, Monday of last week, at a special sitting of the court, was concluded on Thursday, and a verdict of not guilty was brought in by the jury after being out ten minutes. The Cecil Democrat thus describes the scene in the court room when the jury rendered their verdict:

The Court then instructed the jury as to how their verdict must be worded and as to the different verdicts that could be rendered, and at a quarter of two the jury went out.

The jury were out just ten minutes and when they came down the crowd, which had partly left the Court room, rushed back and filled it to its utmost capacity. Amidst the utmost silence the Clerk called over the jury and asked them the usual questions when they rendered a verdict of "not guilty." The sister of Arrants burst into tears and threw her arms around him, while his wife fainted away; the aged mother clasped her hands and in a loud voice thanked God for His mercy. Arrants himself was moved to tears and this is the first time he has broken down during the continuance of this remarkable trial. Every one in the Court room was much affected and many were moved to tears. Arrants left in the afternoon with his wife and children for Elk Neck, and it is learned that for the present he will live with his father-in-law. His old home is broken up, all his property having been sold during his imprisonment in jail. This has been a remarkable case from beginning to end, and the murder of old Voelker is now more than ever a deep mystery.

THE WHITE HOUSE CRANK.

DR. NOETLING'S CAREER.

Mifflinburg, Pa., November 5.

People living in Union and Snyder counties were eager readers of the papers of the 1st instant, which brought them the news that one Dr. John Noetling had the day before attempted to inaugurate himself President of the United States, under authority from "Almighty God," and the people of Mifflinburg in particular recognized the "signature" to the certificate presented at the White House as proof that the person who had there demanded admission and is now safely lodged in a Washington asylum was the same Dr. Noetling who formerly lived in their midst. The father of Dr. Noetling was an itinerant German doctor who lived years ago in this town, afterward removing to Snyder county, where he died; and tradition among the families he served credits him with some remarkable cures. He, too, was a character. It is said of him that he once came to a dress-maker here to have a "frock" made for his wife, and on being told that he must bring her to be measured he replied, in his native tongue: "Measure me; what would fit me would fit my wife," and insisted upon being measured. Dr. John has two brothers, William, a professor in the Bloomsburg Normal School in this State, and Charles, a prominent lawyer and business man of Belleville, Illinois.

A BUCHANAN GRADUATE.

Some time after receiving a diploma from Buchanan's Eclectic Medical College in Philadelphia, which was about the year 1867, Noetling practiced medicine with comparative success in this place, where he also married. He then removed to Illinois, and after becoming greatly reduced in circumstances returned with his family to Mifflinburg, about five years ago. Here he again undertook the practice of his profession, but with no success whatever. His mental resources had evidently failed in the general wreck of fortune. Then began in real earnest those "communications"—first dreamed of in Illinois, perhaps—which have now at last found him a refuge. He is a man somewhat above medium height, would weigh a hundred and sixty, has a clean-cut mouth, and intelligent face, wears gray chin-whiskers, is a brisk walker and about fifty years old. As most frequently seen on our streets, he wore in summer a long linen duster, and a long frock overcoat, almost sweeping the ground, in winter. He was a quiet and apparently inoffensive man, of good habits and attended to his own business, if he had any. But it was not long after his return from Illinois that the rumor spread that he was one of those indefinable persons called Spiritualists and the evidence grew that his mind was slightly unhinged. He was known to sit for hours at his front door, as if examining the tombstone, until his eyes would run up to the top of the nearest post in sight—perhaps a spirit sat on the post—and at last the communication would come. Here is one of them, verbatim, written in a good business hand and enclosed in an envelope on which was the personal address to the Justice, to whom it was delivered by the doctor himself:

TO THE JUSTICE OF THE PEACE OF MIFFLINBURG, PA.

The following charges have been preferred against G. N. Youngman: That I was a fool and a madman in 1852, and subsequently, at various periods, insane. Almighty God, communicated by Lord De Corpe, St. Ng. Confirmed by the Holy Spirit as a correct copy.

JOHN NOETLING.

DEMANDS UPON THE BANKS.

This was in April, 1879. He had evidently begun to think the people considered him insane and were talking about him to his injury. From 1878 to the spring of 1880, when he left the town, he made various large demands upon the banks and express company for funds which his mysterious informant assured him would come at his bidding. Fortified with a letter, of which the following, enclosed to "Cashier, Mifflinburg Bank, Pa.," is a sample, he would approach the counter of the bank:

Dr. John Noetling: You have eighty thousand dollars in bank number five in Mifflinburg, Pa. Please give notice.

ALMIGHTY GOD.

Communicated by H. S.

Some months later the cashier received the following:

In 1878 I left you a communication relating to money. Why did you not send me an acknowledgment?

At the uniformly polite refusals of the cashier to honor the doctor's drafts for want of funds he would express some surprise, but would soon retire quietly as he came and hopeful of success another day. In 1879 he consulted an attorney of this place, who is now in the Treasury Department at Washington, relative to the prosecution of certain persons for infraction of the United States statutes in "tampering with the mails," as he expressed it, and preventing important letters from reaching through the Post Office here. At the first interview he carefully avoided any expression which would have led one unacquainted with him to suppose he was laboring under hallucination, but at subsequent visits stated that the intercepted communications were from the spirit land.

THE DOCTOR'S PISTOL.

While there was much to arouse the sympathy of those who came in contact with the doctor in these transactions, yet the quiet manner and evident seriousness of the man were amusing. No one, however, seems to have looked upon him as a dangerous person or as likely to become so, and, judging from his character and habits while a citizen of this town, it is generally believed that the attempt to draw his revolver when arrested in Washington was rather for defense against imagined personal harm and would not have been aggressively used to enforce his demand for admission to the White House. That revolver is doubtless the same he has owned for years. His wife, it is said, once had it away, fearing that in some freak he might shoot her or some one else, but he soon demanded it back and got it, though it is well known that she did have some reason for her fears and that he did at times become excited and threaten violence in his own home. His utter inability under the circumstances to support his family, their dependence upon friends here for what they needed and the alleged acts of violence towards his wife certainly were enough to render "her condition intolerable and life burdensome," and a divorce followed about a year ago in the courts of this county. After his departure in the early part of last year the doctor was not heard of until he suddenly turned up last week in a new field of illusion.
