Chestertown Transcript.

THURSDAY, MARCH 2, 1882.

Subscription $1.50 per year; 75 cents for six months in advance.

Advertising Rates.

Transient advertising will be charged at the rate of one dollar per square for first three insertions, and twenty-five cents per square for each subsequent insertion. A space equal to eight lines of brevier, constitutes a square. Figure-work will be charged fifty cents per square additional for first three insertions.

Simple notices of marriages and deaths, inserted free. Obituary notices will be charged at the rate of five cents per line.

JOB WORK.

Handbills, large and small, flyers, dodgers, letterheads, billheads, envelopes, cards, tags, programmes, and other kinds of job work will be done neatly and reasonably.

Correspondence upon matters of local interest desired. Anonymous communications will not be inserted.

It is desirable that communications be in by Saturday night if possible, and in any case not later than Monday night or Tuesday morning.

The roads are getting solid.

March came in more like a marine animal, than like either a lion or a lamb.

An Exchange remarks, that the wise merchant about now planteth his spring advertisement.

County Commissioners give formal notice elsewhere of sitting to make transfers and correct assessments.

Delegates.—Messrs. W. J. Hurlock and Hyson Dill, are delegates from the Kennedyville M. P. Church to the coming conference.

The first of this week was as balmy as May. A continuance of such weather would cause both peach buds and spring poets to blossom in time for the latter frosts.

The Conferences of both the M. E. and M. P. Churches, meet Wednesday of next week,—the former in Middletown, Del., the latter in Baltimore, Maryland.

Swan have been unusually abundant in the Chestertown market this season. Mr. R. B. Wilson brought up seven with him on Tuesday, from East Neck Island.

A Brickyard, we understand, is to be started on a lot north of the College, by a Mr. Smith from Easton. The lot has been leased for the purpose from Mr. Alec Taylor.

The New Band, now known as the "Excelsior," went out a serenading last week. They complimented Mr. W. N. E. Wickes with some good music, and were hospititably entertained.

Three Brass Bands in Chestertown. We know this statement will excite the envy of our esteemed contemporary of the Middletown Transcript. Next to an oyster pie, he loves a brass band.

Poems dedicated to Oscar Wilde, are not a desirable form of literature, to the Transcript. It left out one last week, and will have to leave out another this. Our friends might send them direct to Oscar.

Fish are becoming more abundant. Yellow and white perch have been in the market for some time. Herring have not yet made their appearance in Chestertown, but will undoubtedly soon be along if the mild weather holds.

Work was commenced on Monday, preparing the ground for the factory buildings for the manufacture of strawboard. Preliminary arrangements are being completed, and the main building will probably be commenced about the first of April.

Nearly 20,000 bushels of oyster shells have already been put on our town streets. We are informed that the good work is to go on, until the roads of Chestertown are made permanently solid. Probably as many as 100,000 bushels of shells will be used, altogether.

Baltimore Grain Market.—The markket for Southern Wheat is quiet and steady, with a moderate supply and demand. Fultz sold in small lots at 1.30a$1.33, and long-berry at 1.35 a$1.38 for good to prime. Southern Corn is in better supply, and the market is slightly easy, with sales of white at 78 cents and of yellow at 68 cts.

Public Sales.—On Saturday the 11th. instant R. Hynson Esq. as executor of Jacob Highly deceased will sell personal property of deceased at Kennedyville. See advertisement elsewhere.

On Wednesday the 15th. instant Mr. Wm. Ford, as administrator of Joseph C Shriver deceased, will sell at Airy Hill farm, personal property of the deceased. See advertisement elsewhere.

A Drowned Babe.—A newborn babe was found floating in Rock Hall Creek on Sunday afternoon, by Mr. Robert Urie, who drew it ashore. He informed Justice Rollison of the discovery, and the justice, through Constable Wheatley, on Monday morning summoned the following jury of inquest,—Richard S. Diehl, foreman, James A. Casey, Wm. Scoone, B. F. Legg, John M. Rodney, Mathew Cantwell, Jos. Downey, George Satterfield, James Urie, James P. Rodney, Robt. Urie, William T. Whaland. The child was a white male, well developed and had no marks of violence upon it. There was no clothing of any kind upon it when found. The jury rendered a verdict that the child came to its death in a manner unknown to them.

There is no suspicion in the neighborhood as to the parentage of the child.

Longfellow's Birthday was observed by the Chestertown public school on Monday afternoon, with fitting exercises. A sketch of the poet's life was memorized and recited in parts by the pupils. A number of his poems were also read or recited. The pupils entered into the occasion with a great deal of enthusiasm. The boys especially seemed so full of poetic ardor or of some other sort of ardor, that they could not keep their exuberance within bounds. Every reading or recitation, they applauded, until the sound of their feet was like a mighty roar of thunder. The boys were, to be sure, a little noisy, but nobody who has ever been a boy can find much fault with them for that. The principal toward the last, put a stop to the applause. This was a very sad blow to the boys.

The girls seemed to enter into the occasion with as much enthusiasm, though they showed their enjoyment more by their bright faces, than by their rattling heels. There were several solos sung, and a number of other selections were sung by the whole school, all of which were very pretty. The closing part of the exercises were in honor of the memory of George Washington.

It impressed the Transcript reporter, that the observing of a day in school in honor of some great name in literature, is a good thing. It impresses the author's name and importance upon the young student's mind, as nothing else can do. Once a month would not be too often for such an exercise. Indeed, once a week would not be too often, were it not that by its frequency a day so set apart might lose its power to impress. Every Maryland boy and girl should know Edgar Allen Poe, who for the excellence of the comparatively little he has left ranks behind no American poet, living or dead. There are many other names in American literature, such as Bryant, Irving, Hawthorne, Holmes, Whittier, Lowell, which are well worthy of honor. And to go across the ocean, the names of great lights are almost endless.

Every child should be taught a knowledge of literature, and the observance of an "author's day" is a good way of teaching it.

Orphans' Court, TUESDAY, February 28, 1882.—Present, Judges Nicholson, Shallcross and Willson.

David E. Shriver and Wm. Ford, administrators of Joseph C. Shriver, deceased, returned the inventory and appraisement of the personal estate of said deceased, which was received and ordered to be recorded.

On application, letters of administration on the personal estate of Augustus L. Vannort, deceased, were granted and committed unto Arlita A. Vannort, who filed her bond in the sum of $300, which was approved and ordered to be recorded, and Capt. Thos. H. Kennard and O. P. Beck were appointed to appraise the said estate.

James A. Skirven, executor of Araminta W. Skirven, deceased, filed his release from Ida S. Stephens, which was received and ordered to be recorded.

Sam'l W. Cole, administrator of Lewis F. Cole, deceased, returned his account of sales of the personal estate of said deceased, which was received and ordered to be recorded.

H. Clay Lusby, guardian to Samuel H. Lusby, returned his guardian account, which was examined, passed as stated and ordered to be recorded.

Chas. H. Baker, administrator of Zoa Baker, deceased, returned his second and final admin. account and distribution, which was examined, passed as stated and ordered to be recorded.

CHESTERTOWN Feb. 28. 1882.

At a meeting of the Kent Guards held this date at their armory, the following vote of thanks was unanimously adopted.

First that the sincere thanks of the officers and members of the Kent Guards are extended to the Rev. F. T. Little of Hanesville, Kent county Maryland, for his eloquent address before the Kent Guards on Washington's birthday the 22 inst. at the Court House in Chestertown Md.

Second, that the Chestertown Transcript and Kent News be requested to publish the foregoing vote of thanks, By order.

T. S. BORDLEY, Captain
GEO. VICKERS, Secretary.

From a Little Worton Damsel

WHO HAS A KEEN EYE AND APPARENTLY A SYMPATHETIC HEART FOR THE DOINGS OF GROWN-UP PEOPLE.

Mr. Editor:—I thought I would write you a few lines. I am a little girl, not so many feet high, but don't think because I am so little that I don't hear and see all that is going on.

We have had very good sleighing this winter, and could hear bells all around us. I, not being a large girl, could not go. I do wish some of the little boys would get sleighs, so as to take the little ladies riding. One sleigh full started to church during the snow and got up set. The ladies were seen setting on the fence like buzzards.

We were sorry to hear of our neighbor's death. He will be sadly missed. The family has general sympathy.

We have been watching Mr. J. for some time; we wish we could find something out, don't you?

We went to surprise Mr. and Mrs. J. Gale last week, on the 5th anniversary of their wedding. We were received cordially, and were made feel at home directly. They received some very nice presents.

We have been to surprise our new neighbor, Mr. Alrich, but we don't think it was much of a surprise, for they had a very nice repast set. We were furnished with music on the violin by Mr. Ben, and on the piano by Mr. Lou, then we had some singing by Miss W., Miss U., and Miss S., which was very sweet. This was all very nice, but the dancing was better. The way they racquet!

Why are those young gents going across the way? There must be some attraction for them.

We forgot to say anything about the masque party we had at Mr. W. B. S. We rushed in upon Master Will and almost scared him to death. We were such hideous sights.

Has Mr ——— turned the corner at the church to go see Miss ———? He ought to go. You don't know what you are missing Mr. ———.

Shall we soon lose our minister? I think we had better take a strong rope and tie the doors so that he can't get out, don't you think that would be a good way?

Mr. Editor, I must beg your pardon for writing such a long letter. I will write again if I am not found out. I close as,

GO BANG.

As to Gubernatorial Appointments.

Mr. Editor:—In the last issue of the Transcript a small paragraph copied from the Centreville Observer was put placed in the editorial columns, and in the conventional editorial type, and therefore adopted by the editor as his own, contains a doctrine, which I ask the privilege of combating.

Speaking of the legislature you say, "the people have elected the delegation, and part of the duties imposed upon them is to recommend suitable local officers." So far as this applies to the delegates to the General Assembly it has not even a shadow of correctness. Their true and only duty is to assist in making the laws, and for this purpose only are they delegated. Under the constitution of our State, the executive branch of our government has the sole power to nominate all civil and military officers whose appointment or election is not otherwise provided for. After the nominations have been made it is then the prerogative of a senator to advise, and if he see proper, for good reasons to withhold his assent to the appointment.

I am very sure Governor Hamilton has not intimated that the wishes of the delegates from the several counties "shall not have weight with him," but I have no doubt that he did say as I see him reported elsewhere, that he will let the advice of other prominent citizens whom he may consult have equal weight.

Governor Hamilton knows as every other intelligent citizen, that the representatives in the State legislatures are often very far from being the true representatives of the people or even the party who send them. He knows very well that the results of party nominations are often determined by bribery and fraud brought about by a shrewd and untiring combination of politicians, who undertake afterwards to form the appointments for their personal advantage or ambition. The Governor does not propose to ignore the people of the counties by allowing the nominations to be made for him by a little coterie of politicians. He does propose, I am glad to see, to consult other prominent citizens in his honest effort to select proper officers.

Governor Hamilton is the people's governor. The politicians were forced to take him. They have not been able to capture him. He will doubtless make some mistakes but his administration will be an honest effort for the best interests of the people of the State. Such a course is always antagonized by the politicians, that is expected; but we have a right to expect the press to be on the side of the people.

This senatorial assumption both Federal and State, which has grown up within the last decade, is degrading the executives, both Federal and State to mere puppets, and building up a political oligarchy who dictate the laws and then try to administer them. All of our State governments are based upon the same general theory of a legislative, judicial and executive department each with their special rights and duties, and the tendency of the legislative department is to override the executive.

The attempt which Mr. Conkling made to control the late President Garfield, and which, by his resignation, he refered back to the party of his State, was not sustained by his party in the State, and received a very general condemnation by the masses of the people,—and but for the violent death of the President, which will indirectly, somehow in peoples' mind, relate back to this bold senatorial assumption,—would have effectually relegated Mr. Conkling to the walks of private life.

These remarks have not been suggested by the special local appointments for Kent county, or with reference to any individual or individuals, but because it seems about time that the people should put their stamp of disapprobation on this "anamalous and utterly indefensible" doctrine, that a Governor of a State, in nominating officers to the senate, may not consult party leaders or intelligent citizens of any party, but must submit to the suggestions of legislative delegations.

[The Transcript has no desire to enter into a discussion of the question of State appointments, but it will endeavor to answer as briefly as possible, the objections made in the above communication.

Undoubtedly the Governor has and should have the power of appointing State officers throughout the State. But it is not to be supposed that the Governor is so thoroughly acquainted all over the State as to know of himself, the men who are proper to fill the minor officers in all the counties. He must consult somebody. Whom should he consult? The answer to that question, answers the whole matter.

The senator and delegates to the legislature from a county, are the voice and the will of the county in the State government. The people entrust to them their rights and wishes in the direction of State affairs. In filling the offices for a county, whom should the Governor consult? Should he consult the members of the legislature who are the entrusted representatives of the people, or should he consult a private citizen, who is the representative of nobody but himself? The answer to us seems plain enough.

The insinuation of our correspondent, that members of the legislature often rise to their positions primarily by bribery and fraud, is not a germane argument. When members of the legislature take undisputed seats as representatives from a county, the Governor nor nobody else has a right to assume that they came to their places by improper methods.

It is a custom, we believe, that prevails in every State in the Union, for the executive to make local appointments through the local representatives. It is a custom that prevails in the national government. And to assert that the executive in making local appointments, should consult private parties, and not the chosen representatives of the people, is to assert that the will of the people in the aggregate, shall have no more weight with the Governor, than the will of a single person.

There is one condition, under which we are aware, the executive generally ignores the representatives in making his appointments, i. e. when the representatives are of a different political faith from himself. This is a custom of all parties in power, which we drop without further discussion.

In conclusion we say, like our correspondent, that we have had no personal interest in discussing the above subject, and no reference to the appointments in Kent county. We have only considered on general principles, the right or the wrong of making local appointments through local representatives.—ED. TRANSCRIPT.]

Some Peninsula Press Opinions.

A Florida land company is now offering forty acres of swamp to actual settlers for a nominal sum. If it would throw in a pair of alligators to start business with, the proposition might be worth considering by people who are not doing very well where they are.—Middletown Transcript.

It would puzzle the Seven Wise Men and all their successors in office to give a valid reason for the removal of Fish Commissioner Ferguson. The Fish Commission without Ferguson is Hamlet without the Prince. He has created it organized it, fostered it, vitalized it, dignified it and is in all probability indispensable to its effectiveness. If the Governor thinks the Commission should be sacrificed, it would be more manly to attack it directly. If he wishes it to develope its vast possibilities, he takes a singular course to accomplish that result when he swaps acknowledge competency for untried forces and enthusiastic stewardship for an unknown quantity.—Cecil Democrat.

A writer in the Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening suggests the consolidntion of Delaware, the nine Eastern Shore counties of Maryland and the two Eastern Shore counties of Virginia into one State. Editorially the Every Evening is not much impressed with the idea, and says that the peninsula is destined to become, from year to year, more distinctly the kitchen garden of the great cities, and that the wise farmers will for years to come concern themselves more with the extension of real railway lines throughout their little territory than with effacing the imaginary boundary lines that now mark its three political divisions.

A manufacturing business does not spring armed and equipped from the head of Jove. A factory cannot be wished into existence nor pumped into being. Only those factories that are successful,—that succeed in making some money and establishing themselves permanently are of use. To build and equip a factory, run it for a year or two at a loss and then to abandon st because it is found to be unprofitable, would be serious disaster to any of our Eastern Shore towns; it would weaken peoples faith in such enterprises and put a quietus on factory projects for a long time to come.

Between almost any kind of raw material and the manufactured fabrics ready to go upon the market there is doubtless a good profit when business is reasonably brisk. But this profit, and more too, may be all lost in the process of manufacture. It may run off in various forms of leakage, may be burnt up in the furnace, may be lost by the dawdling of the operators a few minutes each day. Everything depends upon the management of the business, and the more efficient and penetrating the management, the larger the profits.—Easton Ledger.

There is a man in Snow Hill, Md., who walks sixteen miles to see his girl.

Clayton Thackeray, living near Elkton, is making an artificial fish pond for carp raising.

A Caroline county reverend has turned his head from inventing sermons to inventing a machine for cutting down corn.

The stockholders of the Wilmington Conference Academy, will elect at the coming conference, four lay trustees, to serve eight years.

The Board of Managers of the Delaware State Fair Association, held at Dover last week, decided to have field trials of all agricultural implements entered for premiums, and to make awards upon the result of work done.

Work was commenced last Monday at two places near Wilmington on the projected Baltimore and Ohio Line between Baltimore and Philadelphia. This is done to comply with the Delaware charter, which provides that work shall be begun within one year after the granting of the charter.

The News and Advertiser of Milford, says that a man residing near that place, recently ate a meal as follows,—two large chickens, five plates of pot pie, five apple pies, one mince pie, one apple and four slices of cake. He drank with these nearly a gallon of coffee. Time of meal 70 minutes.

A lady in Elkton, who is noted for excellence in fine fancy work, recently presented her admirer with a beautiful pair of fancy knit pulse warmers, and another girl having heard of the present and wishing to see them pulled at his cuffs and was much surprised to find she had pulled down about half a yard of the sleeve of his colored undershirt.

A Smyrna physician inoculated three young heifers with bovine lymph, and thus secured pure vaccine matter for his use.

Many fine cottages are to be built at Rehoboth in time for the warm season, and the outlook for the future growth of the place is promising.

Miss Alice Polk, of Milford, was badly burned on the hands and arms, Monday, while cleaning a pair of gloves with vesta oil. She had the gloves upon her hands and was holding them near the stove, when the oil ignited.

The Middletown Transcript says:

"Attempting to make jokes to order, is what is filling the country with bald-headed humorists."

We told Bro. Way last summer, that this was the cause of his loss of hair. At that time he would not assent to this view of the matter, but insinuated that his loss of hair was owing to his getting in late o' nights, and consequent family misunderstandings.

Henry Hutchinson, of Kent county, Del., has caused a sensation in the neighborhood of Hazlettville, where he resided, by eloping with his wife's young and pretty sister. He has been married over thirteen years and has a child about 12 years of age. The girl with whom he eloped is about 18. He had been preparing for the elopement for some time, having disposed of all his property and pocketed the cash. Early one morning he drove to the house of his father-in-law and departed with the daughter, taking the cars at Moorton.
