Still Pond M. E. Church made a narrow escape from destruction by fire Monday of last week. The church is being remodeled and extensively improved, and on the day named workmen were engaged on the roof, when, unnoticed by any one a live coal from a furnace used by the tinners was blown out and into a crivice of the roof. The wood-work of the roof took fire and was in a blaze when fortunately it was discovered and put out.

Fatal Accident.—Our Millington correspondent, "Traveler," sends the following:

It is with regret I note an accident which occurred on Wednesday last on the public road from Massey's to Blackiston X Roads, which proved fatal on the next evening by the death of Mr. John Whittington, Jr. He had been to Massey's with a load of grain, and on his return homeward his mules started to run, and not having hold of his reins he stepped out on the wagon tongue and attempted to straddle one of his mules in order to check them from running, but he lost his balance and fell over the mules and both wheels of the wagon ran over him, violently injuring him internally. Drs. Clark and Todd were summoned, but his injuries were so serious that they could do but little for him. He was a single man, about 21 years of age, and lived on the "Eutaw" farm near Massey's.—News.

House Burned.—On Saturday morning last, at about seven o'clock, the roof of the dwelling on the farm of Mr. J. H. Edes, at Edesville, was discovered to be on fire. The fire after breaking out made rapid progress, the dry wood of the roof burning like a tinder-box. It is said that on the previous Friday evening, the family before going to bed, were led to suspect that there was fire on the premises. A crackling noise as of fire was heard, but diligent search failed to discover any fire, and the suspicions of the family were thus allayed. It is now surmised that there may have been a smouldering fire as early as Friday evening. The family are utterly at a loss to account for its origin. Most of the property of Mr. J. H. Edes was saved, but his son, Mr. J. P. Edes, sustained a considerable loss of household property. The total loss may be estimated at from $1,200 to $1,500. The house was insured for $600.

A Young Men's Debating Club.—An effort is being made by some of the young men of Chestertown to establish a literary and debating club. The organization will, of course, be not very pretentious. Its object will be to stimulate thought and study concerning some of the living issues of the day. It is also believed that it will be a pleasant, as well as instructive, manner of passing some of the long winter evenings that are to come. It proposes to hold weekly meetings, and as it grows stronger may add to its programme other features than a debate. Though the effort to organize is being made by the young men, it is hoped that those who are older, more experienced and wiser will not object to lend a helding hand. Chestertown has abundant material to support such an organization. Other smaller towns have booming literary societies, surely, our town is not so dead that it cannot sustain one. We may have more to say about this debating club next week.

The Straw-board Mill.—Hundreds of tons of machinery have been put in place at the straw-board mill. The opening-day is now not far off. To the eye of an inexperienced looker-on, it would seem that there is nothing more to be done but to build a fire and start the wheels, but there is yet a considerable amount of detail work before the whistle blows for beginning manufacturing. Mr. R. A. Austen, the superintendent, seems to be about 100 lbs. of personified energy. He seems anxious for opening-day to come, and is pushing matters as rapidly as possible. The company now has stacked about 400 tons of straw, and is still hauling. It is estimated that the capacity of the mill will be such as to turn out at least 8 tons of straw-board per day. This is about one-third greater than the daily product of the Easton mill. Between 40 and 50 hands will be employed, most of whom we understand to have been already engaged.

The company, we are informed, has under consideration the feasability of lighting the building with electricity. As manufacturing operations will be carried on night and day, it is of course desirable to have good light for night work.

Already four neat brick dwellings have been erected near the mill, and others will probably be built as they are needed.

Orphans' Court, Tuesday, Nov. 28, 1882.—Present, Judges Nicholson, Shallcross and Willson.

On application, letters of administration upon the personal estate of E. M. Wilkins, late of Kent county, deceased, were granted and committed unto Mary A. Wilkins and Richard Hynson, who filed their bond in the penal sum of $6,000 with approved security.

James M. Vandyke, guardian to Olivia P., Walter J., Ida P., and Cora V. Vandyke, returned his first and final administration account, which was examined, passed as stated and ordered to be recorded.

"NOTES BY THE WAY."

The remains of Mrs. Isabella Price, wife of Rev. B. F. Price, were interred at Still Pond M. E. Church last Wednesday. The deceased has been a sufferer for four years, and during that time, was treated by a number of eminent physicians for Anurism of one of the large arteries near the heart. The post-mortem examination revealed the heart and arteries to be perfectly normal. It is supposed she had Brights disease.

By the death of Mr. Daniel Crew last Wednesday, our community lost one of its best citizens, and the M. E. Church one of its purest members. Mr. Crew had recovered from an attack of malarial fever, (during which his life was almost despaired of) and had been out several times attending to farm matters, when he had a relapse which terminated fatally.

The ladies realized about one hundred and forty dollars from the Japanese tea party held here last week.

The cemetery at this place has been tastefully laid out and seeded in grass. This week it will be enclosed by a wire fence. A number of lots have been sold.

Messrs. Copper and Harding are erecting a wheelwright and blacksmith shop at Stanley.

The colored people are having a school house erected at Still Pond.

Mrs. Geary is having a neat dwelling erected at Kennedyville.

A. J. Hackett found his horse and carriage on Saturday, at North Wales, Penna., by telegraph.

Robert Comly, near Locust Grove, is said to have the largest and most complete barn in the county. Its capacity for hay alone is seventy-five tons.

A number of farmers around Locust Grove have raised from sixty to eighty bushels of corn per acre, this year.

The fall of snow yesterday will benefit the wheat if followed by warm weather. The ground has been very dry.

Whale oil soap will effectually destroy the borer in peach trees. It should be applied spring and fall, after the borers have been removed.

Navigation on the upper Chesapeake was closed by ice on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 27th, 1845.

W. H. Bowers has bought the Kelley farm near Still Pond, for $7,000.

Mrs. Stokes has bought the Gray property of Miss Mary Harris, for $2600.

T. J. Willis will move back to his farm near Lynch's, at Christmas.

Still Pond, Nov. 27th, 1882.

Worton and Vicinity.

Ed. Transcript:—The growing village of Worton Station, on the Kent county R. R., deserves a passing notice. The enterprise of its citizens has been wonderful for the short time of its existance. Mr. George Porter, an industrious mechanic who owns part of the estate of his father, the late Joseph Porter, has built and sold and is still building a good class of houses. The village is prettily laid out, and contains three stores, a postoffice, the large carriage factory of Messrs. Beck & Pell, and the blacksmith and wheelwright shops of the Messrs. Pote & Sons. G. G. Fiddis is post-master, a very enterprising and obliging citizen. During the peach season business is brisker. More people are around and matters are more lively. Harry Cooper has a fine drying-house, but just now it looks rather dull. It well paid for itself the past season.

The Kent county agricultural association owns the property opposite the village, and with a very few dollars could make a handsome improvement to their entrance gate, which could be an ornament to the neighborhood, growing fast in population. We know of several families wishing to move there, but they cannot get dwellings. We learn that Mr. Pennell has purchased some 10 acres in the village. We hope that he will build, and do not doubt but that it would be a paying investment.

Our recent collector, Mr. Daniel E. Jewell, owns a pretty property just outside the limits, and perhaps, will in time lay off lots and build. If the property holders would not be so extravagant in their prices for land, there would be now double the number of houses. Worton is growing very fast, and "Dux" will have to be elected mayor. Mr. William Ivens, the agent for Adams Express and the railroad, is always to be found at his post of duty.

We learn the neighborhood is making arrangements to build a Presbyterian church. The promoters are very successful in getting assistance. We hope soon to see the church built, and a large congregation in attendance. At present the members meet in the Worton club room. Services of Sunday morning and night. Those interested are making arrangements for a festival on a grand scale. Turkeys, oysters, &c., in abundance. See advertisement—which will shortly make its appearance.

I am sorry to have to report a very serious accident. Last Saturday evening, about 7 o'clock, the daughter of Mr. T. Gore, age 18 months, fell over backward into a pot of boiling lard. Mr. White, who was standing near at the time, quickly drew the child out, but it was seriously burnt from the arms down around its body. Mr. White was himself badly scalded about his hands. At the time of writing the child is believed to be improving under treatment of Dr. Merritt.

MAJOR JACK.

The Magazines.—The CENTURY for December opens with a paper by E. V. Smalley, on "The Supreme Court of the United States." There is a frontispiece portrait of Chief Justice Marshall, and the entire paper is profusely illustrated. Besides giving a clear idea of the functions of the Supreme Court, the writer describes picturesquely the routine and the humor of that dignified body, and gives several anecdotes of the chief-justices. The further list of contents presents "The Christian League of Connecticut," 2d paper; "My Adventures in Zuni, by Frank H. Cushing; the second number of the "Led-horse Claim," a story, by Mary Halleck Foote; a poem, by the late Sidney Lanier, entitled "Individuality;" "The Corean Origin of Japanese Art;" 'The Taxidermal Art;' 'Rab's Friend;' 'The Point of View,' a paper by Henry James, Jr., the American novelist, which is a criticism upon American manners from the standpoint of various nationalities. The December CENTURY contains a number of other papers and other poems, and is a very beautifully illustrated number.

The December number of the ECLECTIC is at hand, and is one of the best of the entire year. The vivid sea-story, 'The 'Lady Maud,' is brought to a conclusion, and every variety of taste will find something to suit it in the table of contents, which is as follows: 'Comets,' by Richard A. Proctor; 'An Editor's Valedictory,' by John Morley; 'Songs without Words,' a curious study in natural history, by Dr. Andrew Wilson; 'Dreams,' by Walter Herries Pollock; 'A Glimpse of the United States;' 'Nottingham Lace: Its History and Manufacture;' 'A Venetian Medley,' by James Addington Symonds; 'The Work of Rivers;' 'Moslem Pirates in the Mediterranean;' 'Atheistic Scientists, by John Stuart Blackie; 'Faith and Unfaith,' by C. Kegan Paul; 'A Mystery of the Pacific;' 'Dame Autumn Hath a Mournful Face;' 'George Eliot's Children,' by Annie Matheson; 'A Glimpse of Mexico,' by F. Francis; 'The Russian Bayard: Personal Reminiscences of General Scobeleff,' by W. Kinnaird Rose; 'No Fiction,' a strange semi-supernatural story said to be true; 'The Vegetarian Animalcules of the Deep Sea;' 'In October,' by Susan K. Phillips; Literary Notes; Science and Art; and Miscellany.

Published by E. R. PELTON, 25 Bond Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year; single copy, 45 cents; Trial subscription for 3 months, $1.

The subscription price is $2.00 per annum.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE is on our table. There are two beautiful steel-engravings, a steel, double-size, colored fashion-plate; and two colored patterns, both exquisite, in a new style of work, 'Arrasen Embroidery.' A bright story, 'Prue and the Professor,' illustrated. The number contains a Supplement, with a full-size dress-pattern, and numerous patterns in embroidery. Then there are some fifty other engravings: of fashions, work-table patterns, etc.

Specimens are sent, gratis, to persons wishing to get up clubs. Address, CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia, November 20, 1882.

As the object of greatest interest to people outside, as well as inside the city limits, is Wanamaker's, and as this is so immense in extent and so varied in the character and quality of its exhibits, a resume of its contents to be carried on from week to week will no doubt be acceptable to all readers who purpose visiting or ordering by mail or express goods from its almost inexhaustible stores.

Beginning with what at this season is probably most in demand, dresses for maids and matrons, that portion of the store that will be first sought, will naturally be the ready-made suit department, where all visitors may learn of those best qualified to describe the prevailing styles and colors, together with the prices of the exquisite creations of art or the more substantial, yet equally becoming costumes designed to please sober tastes and purchasable at prices that will attract all classes of buyers. This ready-made suit department for ladies is on the corner of Chestnut and 13th streets, and is under the direction of a most tasteful and capable designer, who has only recently returned from abroad, after studying the styles presented in the great emporiums of fashion on the continent of Europe and in Great Britain.

On entering this department will be found on one side of the store an immense stock of coats, pelisses, dolmans, etc., while on the other side fur wraps of every description are displayed for inspection. In woolen garments light mixed cloth coats of excellent shape, with seal cloth collars and cuffs, are in all sizes for $5 each, as are also plain cloth trimmed with plush, for $6. Imported ulsterettes, in seven different styles of cloth and ornamentation, very stylish and pretty, some with plush trimmings and others with astrachan and braid at $20 and $25. These are of a very superior make and sold at such prices are greatly below value.

Silk damasse coats trimmed with plush, very fine and beautiful, are $30, while wool matalasse, almost as handsome as a silk, trimmed with fur, which forms both collar and muff, entirely new and original in design, may be bought for $25.

French coats, profusely trimmed with braid and in a variety of colors—sage, terra cotta, gendarme blue for the youthful, as well as more sober tints for those of maturer years—can be obtained for $20 and $25. The exquisite material, work and trimmings on these coats are particularly worthy of notice.

Ulsters of heavy cloth, in quiet checks, than which nothing can be more comfortable, are from $14 to $16, while the most desirable of all the imported cloth wraps is one which in style is something between a dolman and ulsterette, unobtrusive though elegant, at $35.

The cloth pelisce, by some called redingotes, trimmed with a ruching of the same material, may be found here of every quality and in prices ranging from $12 to $30.

If something in the fur line is deemed desirable the shopper can turn to the opposite side of the store and inspect some or all of the many fashionable fur garments, which, owing to the immense demand for them this winter, are here in the richest profusion and at moderate prices.

At this department they will learn that the seal holds its own as the leading favorite in the world of fashion, although the natural beaver is highly esteemed, and the ever-beautiful chinchilla is hardly behind them in the eyes of those who know its value.

Satin Rhadames and gros-grain, fur-lined circulars may be had at $22 and upward to $120. Seal coats, slightly longer than last year's styles, can be had from $75 up to $250, while dolmans, coachman's capes and tippets are here varying in size and quality and price; fur trimmings, which sell by the yard, from 40 cents to $20, are also to be had for ornamenting wraps of every kind. After seeing all that is worth looking at on the first floor the shopper will ascend to the second story, where the stock room for ready-made suits is situated. Here all the new styles in wool and novelty goods are found from simple and tightly trimmed skirts and basques of all-wool flannel, plainly and neatly made for $5 up to elaborate costumes in cashmere, silk and other woolen fabrics at $35, $40 and $50. On this floor, too, are exhibited shawls of every description, the chief, wool, Scotch and Broche from $5 to $50, with imitation Indias from $25 to $125, and the superb Valley Indias that cost anywhere from $200 to $2,000. Less expensive Indias of the Chudda, Decca, etc., range from $35 to $200.

Passing out of this room into the next one will be found a magnificent assortment of fringes, laces, buttons and the like, not for sale there, however, although their duplicates may be found in the various departments on the main floor; but these are to be used on the elegant dresses exhibited here—costumes fit for an empress, or better still, for the representative American woman of more than royal grace and beauty.

These magnificent robes are generally combinations of plain and brocaded velvet and silk, richly trimmed with real lace or other costly ornamentation and are in price from $100 to $250. But the most attractive portion of this department is that recently opened, consisting of parlors, exhibition and fitting rooms, devoted to ordered work. These parlors, covered with Wilton carpet, furnished with ebony, richly upholstered, are brightened and beautified with the open-tiled fireplace, brass andirons, shovel, tongs and fender, the whole surmounted by a carved oaken mantel. Scattered throughout the rooms are antique ebony cabinets and tables, while the dull richness of the paper-hanging brings out to perfection the pleasing pictures upon the walls.

Opening out of the large parlor are other charming bijous of rooms, among which is a dark one, the floor of which is covered with a handsome sage-colored carpet, with the furniture of pale blue satin, and the walls from floor to ceiling composed of French plate mirrors, and which is brilliantly lighted for the exhibition of evening colors, and a study of the effect of such colors by gaslight. An entrance to this little parlor seems to be uninitiated like a veritable visit to Fairyland, inasmuch as the visitors find themselves duplicated and reduplicated so many times that the miniature apartment seems transformed into a vast saloon, and they in the midst of a crowd of people. Nothing better could ever be devised for showing American queens how they look in royal robes.

Descriptions can give but a vague and unsatisfactory idea of all that is to be seen and purchased in this most complete department of its kind in Philadelphia—or perhaps in the world.

HOLIDAY PRESENTS.—It is the custom of all who can afford it to make presents to friends and loved ones at least once a year, and a real good habit it is. The only matter that bothers givers is what to buy. We come to the rescue, and suggest, is there anything more useful than a suit for your boy or husband, especially when you can get quality, fit and the lowest prices in the State from C. N. Oehm & Son, Hanover and Pratt Sts., Baltimore.

VERY CROOKED.—The crookedest of crooked work, and yet that which has grace and elegance in every crook, may be seen in the Noyes Dictionary Holder and Noyes Handy Tables. In them the fact is clearly demonstrated that if the inventor has not made the crooked straight, he has made the straight crooked, and thereby increased its beauty and utility. People in search of holiday presents will appreciate his success. A fine illustrated circular may be had free by addressing L. W. Noyes, 99 West Monroe St., Chicago. The prices have been greatly reduced.

"THE BEST PRACTICAL ART MAGAZINE."—THE ART AMATEUR for 1883, judging from the publisher's announcement, will amply maintain its high reputation as the "best practical art magazine" of the day. To an abundance of beautiful, full-size working designs for painting, embroidery, wood-carving, and other art work, with copious practical instructions for all classes of amateur artists, it will continue to add a profusion of charming illustrations of porcelain, furniture, needlework, and brica-brac, together with an endless supply of entertaining information on decorative and Industrial art. Numerous artists' sketches will be published as usual; the leading exhibitions will be largely illustrated and piquantly criticised, and artists of merit will be biographically noticed. A series of beautiful embroidery designs from the South Kensington Royal School of Art Needlework, and a number of articles on china painting by Miss McLaughlin of Cincinnati, will be published during the year. It is not too much to declare, with the London Academy (which places it above any magazine of the kind in England), that THE ART AMATEUR is a "marvel of variety, beauty, and cheapness." This opinion may be readily verified by sending thirty-five cents for a specimen copy to Montague Marks, Publisher, 23 Union Square, New York. The subscription price is $4 a year.

A RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.—We desire to call the attention of our readers to one of the largest, ablest, and most popular religious newspapers published—one that secures the best writers in this country and Europe, regardless of expense; has the best and fullest book reviews of any paper in the country; has able articles upon financial and commercial subjects; has departments edited by specialists and devoted to Fine Arts, Science, Religious Intelligence, Missions, School and College, News of the Week, Hymn Notes, the Sunday-school, Legal and Sanitary questions, Biblical Research (something that cannot be found in any other newspaper in the United States), Farm and Garden, Insurance, Weekly Market Reports, etc.—in fact, a newspaper which, with its twenty-two distinct departments, is suited to the requirements of every family, containing a fund of information which cannot be had in any other shape, and having a wide circulation all over the country and in Europe. We refer to THE INDEPENDENT, of New York, now called "The largest, the ablest, the best." See advertisement, in another column, and send a postal card for free specimen copy.

BARRETT, NEPHEWS & CO., of 43 North Charles street, formerly No. 110 West Baltimore street, the old established dyeing house, is prepared to do all kinds of work in their line with neatness, cheapness and dispatch. In dress goods of all wool and also of cotton and wool, etc., their success is greatly superior to that of a year ago.

The firm lay aside every year a certain amount of their profit to buy the most improved machinery, and during their existence have expended over one half million of dollars in that department alone. This firm calls especial attention to the rapid advances made by them during the past few years in the art of dyeing.

It has been the desire and aim to present to their customers work perfect in every respect.

The Best Time

To buy Autumn and Winter Clothing at Oak Hall is at the first of the season, when the stock is full and before cold weather creates a rush of buyers. The woolen market is so short of good materials that the low prices with which we open will be the lowest of the season. One million dollars' worth of clothing and materials await your command. You are equally welcome for a $5 boys' suit or the most liberal custom order.
