A Latter-day Conversion.

The venerable George Colton, who in times past has figured as a boss among bosses, who has ever been ready to defend boss issues with tongue and pen, who indeed, according to general repute, has grown rich in the defense of bossism, has suddenly grown weary of his past associations and has turned reformer. Three years ago, Mr. Colton was deeply in love with Senator Gorman, and was anything but a lover of Gov. Hamilton. In editorials touched with the highest poetic sentiment and adorned with rarest figurative learning drawn from Egypt, Judea and Jerusalem, the venerable journalist dwelt upon the beauty of character and the exalted statesmanship of Arthur P. Gorman. When the presidency of the Chesapeake & Ohio canal passed along and Mr. Colton was left in the cold, he no longer admired Senator Gorman. Indeed, since that event, the Annapolis Republican has not ceased to pour maledictions bitter and unceasing upon Messrs. Gorman & Co. Mr. Colton has gone over with a great deal of energy to M. Bannon and Gov. Hamilton. He stuck to his old friends as long as he conscientiously could, that is to say, as long as his old friends panned out as handsomely as he thought they should; but that canal business was a piece of immorality that entirely destroyed his faith in the Gormanites. Since then it would really seem to be a matter of some doubt as to which was the Hamilton organ, the Annapolis Republican or the Hagerstown Mail. Vigorous as Mr. Colton is making his warfare in favor of reform and change rulers, the people may possibly fail to place implicit faith in him. They may call to mind his past record and may remember some of his past utterances, and most especially the immediate cause of his conversion, and they may say, 'Verily, be we putting away bosses when we have George Colton to rule over us?'

OUR Republican friends, or enemies as the case may be, seem to be taking a more than usual interest in the governor question this year. Usually the gubernatorial nomination on the Republican side goes a begging. But the Republicans this year seem animated by a spark of hope that they may pull through. This is evidenced by the fact that numerous sections have hunted up a favorite for governor. The hope that animates our Republican fellow citizens is probably as for lorn as usual. They will most likely bring forward this fall some man whom they consider strong, and go through with a prescribed course of speech-making. After the election is over, however, they will as usual find that they have been left in the cold. At the same time it does not behoove the Democratic party to count upon a too easily won victory. There have been dissensions in the party in the past few years, and a little too much bossism. To the convention which meets for nominating candidates, the counties should send fairly elected, unpledged delegates, and such candidates should be put in nomination as will unite and harmonize the party. There should be no Whyte, Gorman or Hamilton colar around the neck of the candidates that are placed before the people this fall. Place before the people a candidate who represents Democratic sentiments pure and simple, and who represents no faction, and the party will show up as strong as a stone wall.

AN Irish land league convention, of national importance, began a session in Philadelphia yesterday. Delegates from all over the United States, from Canada and other foreign parts are to be present. The object of the convention is to discuss ways and means by which Ireland shall be given national self government. The questions of home rule and land law freedom, together with what constitutes the best policy to be pursued in order to gain these, will be the main subjects of discussion. It is authoritatively announced that O'Donovan Rossa and the dynamite element is not to control the convention. The platform to be adopted by the Convention, it is said, will look to action of a peaceable nature in securing Ireland's demands. To day the convention will be open to a hearing of the representatives of secret societies, and it is expected that O'Donovan Rossa and his likes will have a voice, but will exercise little influence upon the deliberations of the convention.

THE need for increased farm labor is growing more pressing in our own county every year. On parts of the Peninsula, German and other foreign labor is being extensively introduced. The great difficulty with foreigh labor is in keeping it. Most of the immigrants come to this country with the purpose of taking up a government land grant, and as soon as possible they find their way to the West. We heard it suggested by a thoughtful farmer the other day that in order to retain foreign labor, farmers should club together and at convenient central points should build clusters of small comfortable houses. A half dozen farmers might thus unite and build a dozen houses, costing, say $200 each. A dozen families brought thus into close neighborliness with each other, would be more contented, and more likely to stay. Farmers will be compelled in the near future to meet the question of labor in some manner or other, and the feasibility of colonizing foreign labor in villages is well worthy of consideration.

THE Baltimore baseball nine was expected this season to make for itself a better record than it made last season. It was understood that none but crack players were to have a place upon the nine. But so far, the Baltimore nine has not given much encouragement to those who take an interest in the national game and who would like to see the Baltimores make at least a respectable showing.

JUST now there seems to be a lull in Maryland Democratic politics. The animated discussions as to who shall be governor have subsided. Perhaps the reason of the lull is to watch what the young Democratic association of Baltimore proposes to do. And then again perhaps there is a lull because the governor question is about talked dry.

The Young Democratic Move in Baltimore.

The Young Democratic Association of Baltimore has announced its executive and advisory committees, and is now prepared for work. They are as follows:

Executive Committee—Robert T. Baldwin, J. Hall Pleasants, Richard M. Venable, Bernard Carter, Chas. D. Fisher, A. Leo Knott, Skipwith Wilmer, Samuel W. Regester, D. Meredith Reese, William Keyser, Thomas McCosker, James Bond, Thomas S. Baer, L. W. Counellman.

Ex officio—John E. Hurst, president; Geo. May, treasurer.

Advisory Committee—First Ward, C. C. Homer; second, Thomas Peterson; third, William Cowan; fourth, James B. Corbett; fifth, Dr. Milton N. Taylor, sixth, George W. Bond; seventh, John T. McGlone; eigth, Alexander H. Robertson, ninth, S. Teackle Wallis, Jr.; tenth, Dr. G. W. Massamore; eleventh, J. McHenry Howard; twelfth, Levi S. White; thirteenth, Milton N. Pope; fourteenth, John N. Conway; fifteenth, Dr. Dennis I. McKew; sixteenth, Thomas White; seventeenth, Philip McAdam! eighteenth, Chas. E. Keys; nineteenth, Asa H. Smith; twentieth, S. P. Morton.

The gentlemen actively interested in the promotion of the aims which called the organization into existence have joined in a statement concerning its objects. The statement is as follows:

'Much curiosity is felt as to the purposes of this association; but so far no one has been authorized to act and speak for it. Indeed, it is intended that the organization shall speak and act for itself, and that in all matters of special and public interest its membership is to determine its action. Nor does it arrogate to itself the authority to speak for the democratic party in Baltimore. Its very existence is a protest against any man or set of men attempting to forestall or stifle public opinion, and it is primarily intended to secure an honest and untrammeled expression of the will of a majority of the party.

'But while no one is the mouthpiece of the association, there is a general concurrence of opinion amongst those active in its organization as to its purposes and intentions.

'First and foremost, as a democratic organization, its exertions will be directed to securing the success of that party. A large majority of the people of this State are democrats, and yet the supremacy of the party in the State is jeopardized by mismanagement and factional strife. Many of those who profess to be leaders of the party have usurped leadership by fraudulent means, and it is more important to them to retain control than that the party itself should succeed. Their policy is to rule or ruin.

'Many of those interested in the association believe that it is practicable to lift the party from the bog in which it is floundering, and that to do this there must be a reform in the party itself. They do not dream that there is to be any such thing as ideal honesty and fair dealing in a field where there are such sharp collisions of selfishness as in politics; but they do believe that public opinion is ripe for some considerable advance on the practices and sentiments heretofore prevalent in politics. The public schools and private schools have in the last twenty years been greatly enlarged and improved, and the standard of cultivation amongst the younger generation of men is higher than that which preceded it. It would be a melancholy reflection to think that a higher standard of morality and of conduct had not been engendered by this improved intelligence. It is to this younger generation that the association intends to appeal; it is the aid of this generation that it intends particularly to invite. To secure its co-operation it is believed that a higher tone of morality and honesty in the conduct of politics is essential. The primaries and elections are to be made fair and honest, as far as that is practicable, by putting around them every guarantee against fraud; and, as a means to secure this end, all those who are determined to continue the practices and methods heretofore prevailing which have almost wrecked the party, shall be remorselessly kept out of public life.

'Another reform is called for: The ownership of members of the Legislature and city council by political bosses, and the sale of legislation by these bosses should be stopped. It is notorious that large sums have in this way passed into the hands of these bosses, and that the fund thus arising has been partitioned amongst them. Every one who prostitutes his political position for such base ends should be invited to the rear and kept there. The gilded prosperity of these corruptionists is a scandal and a public shame. Besides these reforms, there are many others which will require the activity of the association. But these points present clear, definite, personal issues on matters of common honesty, and the time has arrived when the party is prepared to act on these issues.

'The methods which the association propose to adopt for the accomplishment of these purposes are the accumulation and dissemination of information in reference to men and measures, and an organization to protect the primaries and elections and arouse and bring out the people. It certainly is not too much to hope that the association will meet with a large measure of success. Similar associations have been successful in Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Buffalo and other cities.'

The veil is rent, the soul has fled,
One more has joined the throng
Of saints who praise their living head
In swet and rapturous song.
While friends from grief cannot refrain,
But mourn the absent one,
Their loss is his eternal gain,
'Twas Jesus called him home.

Off at the mention of his name,
Tears shall unbidden start;
Then, love with an intenser flame,
Shall warm the lonely heart,
And faith on rapid wings shall fly
Up to that heavenly place
Where he in purest ecstacy
Beholds the Saviour's face.

O, God, the precious grace supply,
Now in this time of need;
For who can see a loved one die
And not the heart to bleed.
If Jesus wept, his servants may
Thus manifest their grief;
But O, how sweet when we can say,
In Christ we find relief.

Father, mother, brother, sister, friends,
In reverence meekly bow;
God for some good this sorrow sends,
Though all seems gloomy now.
Your loved one lives and sings to-day,
And dwells in Jesus sight:
Cheer up, for surely o'er your way
Shall shine the heavenly light.* A.

TUESDAY, MAY 29th, 1883,

AT 11 O'CLOCK A. M.,

At the Voshell House in Chestertown, Maryland, all the REAL ESTATE of the said Dr. THOMAS C. KENNARD, embracing

THREE SPLENDID FARMS
In a High State of Improvement.

No. 1—is known as the

"Webster Farm,"

and contains, as now held and laid out,

142 ACRES,

MORE OR LESS.

It is situated at Turner's Creek Cross Roads, adjoining the lands of William Archibald, Mrs. Hannah, and others; about 1½ miles from Kennedyville, and about the same distance from Turner's Creek landing. This is a beautiful compact tract of land, nearly a square, and bounded on two sides by the public road.

The Improvements consist of a small FRAME DWELLING, a good Barn and Stabling in fair condition, both ample for the use of the farm. The whole of this tract is under cultivation, and no better opportunity is offered to persons desiring a small, productive and finely located farm in Kent county.

No. 2—is known as

'THE HOME FARM'

and contains, as now held and laid out,

370 ACRES,

MORE OR LESS.

It adjoins the Webster Farm, and lies on the road leading from Still Pond to Kennedyville, adjoining the lands of Lewis C. Justis, Mrs. Raymond and others.

This has been well known for many years as one of the finest tracts of land and most desirable residences in the county, and is now in a high state of cultivation, and the improvements in excellent condition.

THE DWELLING
IS A
HANDSOME BRICK BUILDING

with front of about 80 feet, press brick, and containing 15 rooms, and attic over the main building. This house is built in the most substantial manner, the partition walls being of brick, and the arrangement throughout being thoroughly convenient. There is a large cellar running the whole length of the building, and fine pump of water at the kitchen door. The house stands in a large yard, surrounded with fine shade trees, and has a large lawn running to the public road.

There is an unusually large and well arranged vegetable and flower garden in the rear of the house running back to a large and elegant

Apple Orchard.

All the enclosures are substantial and neat, and there are many attractions about the place.

There is a comfortable

TENANT HOUSE

conveniently located—not far from the dwelling—and all conveniences such as meat-house, ice-house, poultry yard and house, &c.

The Barn is unusually large and substantial and in good order. The first story is of stone, containing stalls and feed room for a large number of horses and other stock. The superstructure is frame with ample room for grain and hay. Adjoining this there are other stables and sheds for stock, also a pump of good water in the barnyard. There is a

Peach Orchard of about 1,000 Trees,

about six or seven years old.

No. 3—Is known as

"RICH NECK,"

or the Boulden farm, and contains as now laid out,

210 ACRES,

MORE OR LESS,

and lies immediately adjoining the Home farm, on the public roads leading from Turner's creek cross roads to still Pond, and also to Chestertown. The Improvements consist of a comforble

Frame Dwelling
WITH NEW AND AMPLE OUT-BUILDINGS

for the purposes of the farm; the water is excellent. There is some fine CHESTNUT TIMBER upon the tract—sufficient to keep the fencing up for many years. There is on this place a FINE ORCHARD of

of select varieties.

These lands are all of fine quality—have been long and highly improved—are now in excellent state of cultivation, and are as desirably located as any lands in the county, being within about 2 miles from Railroad Station at Still Pond and same distance from daily steamer at Turner's Creek Landing. Persons desiring to purchase are invited to examine the lands.

No. 4—is a lot known as

'Kennard's Corner,'

at the intersection of the roads leading to Still Pond and Chestertown, and

Contains 1½ Acres,

more or less. There is on this lot a Comfortable

FRAME DWELLING
AND

and connected with it a fine early garden of nearly an acre, and a stable and carriage house. There is also a good pump of water here.

The sum of $4,833.33⅓ to be payably in five years from the day of sale and to be secured by mortgage on the Boulden farm; the sum of $4,333.33⅓ to be payable in five years from day of sale and to be secured by mortgage on the Webster farm, interest on both mortgages to be paid semi-annually, commencing January 1, 1884.
