An Arthur Boom.

Undoubtedly our distinguished president, Mr. Chester A. Arthur, has his eye upon the Republican nomination in 1884, and there is also being made an effort on the part of his admirers to work up his prospects. The News, of Chicago, has taken the trouble to write to all the delegates to the last Republican presidential convention, and to other prominent Republicans, to obtain their views upon Mr. Arthur's administration, and recently, on the occasion of the visit of Mr. Arthur to Chicago, fifteen solid columns of these opinions were published. Strange to say, in all the hundreds of these letters, there are only two or three that do not espouse Mr Arthur. As these presidential delegates may be presumed to understand the popular sentiment throughout the country, and as they may also be presumed to be honest in their praise of Mr. Arthur, it would appear that the Republican party, taken as a whole, would be perfectly satisfied with Mr. Arthur for a candidate.

Among other opinions regarding Mr. Arthur and his administration, we note that of Mr. Chas. T. Westcott, of this town, who says: "President Arthur has shown marked ability in his administration of affairs, and a continuance of his conservative efforts to harmonize and solidify the Republican party will not only contribute to his reputation as a skillful leader, but greatly popularize him for the nomination of 1884."

MR. BANNON SPEAKS AGAIN.

Mr. Michael Bannon while delivering a piece of invective against the Democratic party recently gave expression to the following:—

"I flatter myself that I have done a good deal for my party—would have been $100,000 better off today if I had let politics alone altogether; but I was ambitious for my party, although they tried to kick me out in 1878, when I was in Europe; but they found they couldn't do without me—the county would be lost to them as it will be this time, and they would willingly have put me on the ticket now if such overtures had been made to them."

A bill of particulars would be exceedingly interesting. How has Mr. Bannon managed to get rid of $100,000 to his party? Surely this great apostle of purity and reform never contributed funds for the purposes of bribery.

OUR Republican fellow citizens are to make their ticket next Tuesday. Nine-tenths of the Republican voters of this county are colored people. At every election they have come up faithfully and have voted the straight Republican ticket. While the few white Republicans have pulled the political wires and have hitherto monopolized the places upon the ticket, the colored people have been content to do the voting. When the ticket is made next Tuesday are the colored people to be ignored? Will the name of any colored man appear upon that ticket? If not, why not?

SULLIVAN, the noted pugilist, met Slade, the Australian Maori, in a boxing match on last Monday evening. Though the fight was with gloves, Sullivan had no difficulty in knocking Slade out in three rounds. The much-vaunted powers of the Maori made but feeble resistance before the onslaught of the Boston "Slugger." Slade fared even worse than the little Englishman, Mitchell.

MR. MICHAEL BANNON has declared his purpose to bolt and to work against the ticket nominated by the Democrats in Anne Arundel county. There does not appear on the face of things to be any justification of this course. We believe that Mr. Bannon may very appropriately be numbered with that political class known as sore-heads.

IN last Monday's Baltimore American there was a statement reporting that Mr. Henry W. Archer had written to a friend in this county saying he would not allow his name to be used as a gubernatorial candidate. This report from inquiry appears to be false. What Mr. Archer really wrote, was that he would not seek the office.

THE telegraphers' strike continues and still attracts wide-spread interest. Both sides are keeping up a firm front. The Brotherhood has within the last few days attempted to strengthen its position by ordering out the telegraphers along the lines of the railroads.

HARFORD county held her primaries last Saturday, on the Crawford county plan. Everything was fair and orderly and there was a large vote polled. The ticket nominated is said to be a strong one. The delegates to the gubernatorial convention were not voted for.

BALTIMORE is in trouble over her new Post Office. Supervising Architect Hill, since he has been investigated, has shown a disposition to cut down cost by building a less imposing structure for the Baltimore P. O.

IN the Cecil county primaries, the ticket supported by Senator Groome was successful over that supported by Mr. Constable, the Groome interests carrying six out of nine districts. The delegates to the gubernatorial convention were not voted for.

Three Important Points.

From the Baltimore Day.

The various county conventions which are to assemble in the course of a few weeks for the selection of delegates to the Democratic State convention should use the occasion for a very general expression of opinion on three points:

1. The party is of more consequence than any person in it, and will not serve as the tug to pull any stranded candidate off the sands and drag him out into the channel, where both may sink together.

2. Harmony of all genuine Democrats on the historic principles of the party is not only possible but easy the moment certain elements of division and discord are dropped; and harmony at the present time is necessary to success and a duty to the State.

3. No candidates who cannot unite all true Democrats and have the hearty support of the Democracy in all sections of the State will be seriously thought of by those who have the interests of the party and the public at heart.

THE order rendering the study of Arabic compulsory in the Spanish Staff School is suggestive. Germany has French handy phrases taught even to enlisted men; and this acquisition would be useful to them in invading France. American officers at West Point have long paid special attention to Spanish, the language spoken in Mexico. The Anglo-Indian army offers rewards to officers for proficiency in the native tongues of the East Indies, and has just added such a reward for the hill dialects of Assam. Spain's military outlook is evidently toward Morocco, and hence the education of her staff officers in Arabic.

The President Should not Loaf.

The Chicago Herald thus discusseth President Arthur's share in the sports of Rufus Hatch's great circus:

"The more the President travels about, is entertained by the people, the more the position is exalted, and the greater is his power for good.'

'What,' asked an inquiring youth, 'what is flapdoodle?'

'My son,' answered the sage, 'it is the stuff that fools are fed on.'

The powers and duties of the President are defined by the Constitution of the United States, and in that authoritative instrument not one of the soft considerations which have weight with our Chicago contemporary, is admitted or even referred to.

But, listen to the rule of Executive duty as laid down by an old-time President. The words are those of James K. Polk; and they are found in his letter to James Buchanan, offering him the post of Secretary of State:

"I disapprove the practice which has sometimes prevailed of Cabinet officers absenting themselves for long periods of time from the seat of government and leaving the management of their departments to chief clerks or less responsible persons than themselves. I expect myself to remain constantly at Washington, unless it may be that no public duty demands my presence, when I may be occasionally absent, but then only for a short time. It is by conforming to this rule that the President and his Cabinet can have any assurance that absence will be prevented, and that the subordinate executive officers connected with them respectively will faithfully perform their duty."

The pretence that a President ought to travel about when he can, and learn the wants of the country, is pure humbug. No man who does not know the wants of the country and of all its parts, is fit to be elected President, and no President who finds time to travel about and amuse himself after he has assumed the office, is fit to remain in it.

The Presidency is not a sinecure for the enjoyment of a lazy pleasure seeker, and it is not exalted in the eyes of any but the fools, when its occupant does anything besides attending faithfully and industriously to its momentous obligations.—N. Y. Sun.

Where the Bonds are Held.

In view of the fact that only a few years ago it was estimated that more than a thousand millions of United States Government bonds were held by foreign holders, a recent bulletin issued by the Census Department, showing the distribution of the registered bonds at the present time, is not without interest. The total amount of outstanding registered bonds is $1,773,749,250. Of these private individuals hold $417,538,850; savings banks, insurance and trust companies, $227,451,550; national banks, as security for circulation, $319,937,800, and foreign holders only $27,894,350. The figures given above do not include the three and three and a half per cent. bonds, which were not classified and located at the time the bulletin was issued.

The interesting and gratifying feature of this exhibit, of course, is the fact that the bonds are nearly all held by American holders at the present time. Uniformly good crops and a continued favorable balance of trade for the past few years have had the effect to bring these evidences of indebtedness into our own hands and relieve us as a nation from the load of foreign indebtedness.

The location of these bonds furnish an index of the relative accumulation of surplus capital in the various sections of the country. Thirty-six per cent. of the holders reside in New England, forty-two per cent. in the Middle States, three and a half per cent. in the South, fifteen per cent. in the Western States and three and a half per cent in the Pacific States. Massachusetts contains the greatest number of bondholders. New York stands second in the list, Pennsylvania third, Ohio fourth and Illinois fifth. Oregon brings up the rear, with only fourteen bondholders. The District of Columbia in proportion to population holds more bonds than any of the States. Among the bondholders are 29,325 women, with average holdings of a little over $3,000 each. The average amount held by the 42,262 male holders is $7,741.84, while the average holding of corporations is $148,953.20.

SHOT DEAD BY HIS WIFE.

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Lawrence Lewis Conrad, a great-great-nephew of George Washington and a gentleman widely known in legal and social circles in Baltimore, was shot and instantly killed by his wife Tuesday morning, about half-past one o'clock, while peacefully sleeping in bed at her side. The affair occurred at Montmorenci, the Worthington family mansion, which is in Worthington valley, about two miles from Glyndon, on the Western Maryland Railroad, and 16 miles from Baltimore. Mrs. Conrad was a confirmed invalid. No one was in the room when the shot was fired except her husband and herself, and although there were four members of the household on the same floor the pistol shot was not heard, and the first alarm was given by Mrs. Conrad, who rushed to her mother's room and cried out that she had "hurt Mr. Conrad." The members of the household found him breathing his last, with his face on a blood-stained pillow and a 32-calibre bullet through his head an inch and a half above the left ear. His brother-in-law, Jno. Tolley Worthington, was first to arrive at his bedside. This was about 40 seconds after the shot was fired. His pulse was feebly beating, but he never stirred or spoke. His wife has been either in convulsions or in a semi-unconscious condition since, and her life is despaired of.

The scene in the bed-room was heartrending. The aged mother sank down almost dead from the shock, and Mrs. Conrad, shrieking, tried to throw herself upon the body of her dead husband. "I killed him accidentally, said she; "I wanted to kill myself." Her brother picked her up tenderly and carried her into his room, where her ten-year-old son, Charley, was sleeping, and, putting her in bed made her stay there. The child, aroused by the noise, tried to come into the room where his father lay dead, but was kept back. The coroners jury delivered a verdict which declared its belief that the shooting was accidental.

NEARLY all of the fish eaten in America as sardines come from Maine. They are small herring. Sometimes only a bushel or two are taken at a time, and at others so many as to endanger the net. The degree of dexterity with which they are cleaned is astonishing, especially as it is done by very young children. After this they are placed on large gridirons, and suspended over a hot fire to broil. The boxes are prepared with attractive French labels indicating olive oil, but this is false, as the oil is cottonseed. The packing is another operation at which little people are expert. A fish is seized in each hand and laid lengthwise in the box, first a head at the outer end and then a tail. After the boxes are full a small quantity of oil is poured in, and then they are passed to men who solder them tightly. They are next thrown into an immense cauldron, where they are boiled two hours, thus completing the cooking process, and dissolving the bones of the fish. One of the establishments in Luebec prepares about 4,000 boxes daily, and there are nineteen such places in Eastport, besides many others at seaport towns. The actual cost per box, including all expenses, is said to be five cents.

Great Bankrupt Sale of $500,000 Worth of Dry Goods for a few weeks only.

Owing to the depressed state of trade in Great Britain, caused by the Irish Land League and the disturbed affairs of Ireland, the well-known firm of Darcy & Mac Donald, of Dublin, Glasgow and Manchester, having become bankrupt, Messrs. Appleby & Co., the official Assignees are dispensing of a large consignment of goods that came to this country, consisting of West of England Broad and Narrow Cloths, Scotch Tweeds, Cassimeres, &c., &c.

Messrs. Gilmartin & Doyle, importers 1 Lispenard St., N. Y., the agents for this country, have engaged the services of twenty salesmen, who will offer for inspection and sale the goods at considerably below manufacturers prices.

As Messrs. Gilmartin & Doyle have found great difficulty in finding ready cash buyers for large lots, they adopt the unusual plan of arranging the goods in small parcels suitable for retail purchasers. It is customary in the trade to give an elaborate description of and to note particularly the reduction made in the price of the stock offered. We prefer to submit a few samples for inspection and sale, which cannot fail to convince the most inexperienced of the enormous saving to be affected by purchasing.

Very respectfully,
