Arthur and Conkling.

From the Chicago News.

The correspondent asked if it was true that Conkling is angry or displeased with Arthur.

'No; not in the strict sense of the word. Conkling has a high regard for Arthur. He regards him as a man of unusual ability. He said he was a very fine lawyer, and as a healer of dissensions among factions Arthur has no equal among the politicians of the country. But while Conkling willingly and freely pays tribute to the ability and honesty of Arthur, he yet thinks the President has made several mistakes. He does not go and see him any more—not because he is angry with Arthur, but because he does not care to give advice when the President has in several instances gone against his judgment. Mr. Conkling does not put this forward in any egotistical sense. He was called into consultation, but when he saw a line of policy was being pursued foreign to his taste, he just withdrew from his intimacy with Arthur, though if the latter should call upon him for any favor he would cheerfully respond.'

'With what was Mr. Conkling especially displeased?'

'With the taking of William E. Chandler into the Cabinet. Conkling could not see how Arthur could have Chandler about him. Why, when Arthur went to Albany to assist in the re-election of Conkling, Chandler went to New York as Blaine's agent. He was a regular firebrand, and contributed largely to the stirring up of the feeling against Conkling. After having fought him at Albany, Mr. Conkling, who is a hard hitter and not much given to reconciliation, could not understand the selection of Chandler, who is more of a trickster than a man of genuine ability.'

'What else does Conkling criticise?'

'Well, he thinks Arthur should have had a stronger Cabinet. He thinks Folger an old fogy, Brewster an old fool, Lincoln a worthy but uninteresting young man, Chandler a small trickster, while with Teller and Gresham he finds no fault. Then Conkling thinks the administration thus far has missed a great opportunity. He thinks well of Secretary Frelinghuysen, but regards it as very strange that he should have permitted England to crowd our ports with the paupers and suspects of the United Kingdom. Conkling says that is going to be a ringing issue in this country—the question of the exclusion of this most worthless class of emigrants—and that the Administration could have made a great point and strength for itself by taking an early and bold stand upon this question.'

THE Philadelphia Times, an independent journal with Republican leanings, comments upon Gov. Hamilton's letter as follows.—

The long and fierce letter in which Governor Hamilton, of Maryland, has just arraigned his party for its many sins must be viewed in connection with his own relations to it. He entered the United States Senate in 1869 and left in 1875, being defeated for re-election. Failing to secure the next succession he was strong enough to dictate his own nomination for Governor in 1879 and he was elected by a majority of more than twenty-two thousand.

He makes strong general charges against men who are not named. From this it would appear that things were in rather a bad shape when he was elected and that the first Legislature with which he was compelled to deal was not so earnest in the matter of reform as it might have been. But that of 1882 appears to have done almost everything the Governor asked, and something more. He says it passed a fair registration law; placed primary meetings under the protection of law; reduced the cost of State printing from $38,000 to $25,000 for the session, and abolished a number of useless offices. For a small and conservative State like Maryland this would appear to be a pretty good showing; but the Governor labors with true Quixotic vigor through several columns after this admission of usefulness to convict some unarmed enemies of very serious offenses.

At this distance the impression given by such a formidable midsummer document is that Governor Hamilton wants something more than he has, or that he means to seek his present place again. His letter has the appearance of a factional utterance. There are no doubt abuses in Maryland, both in party and State management, but accoruing to his own showing the Governor has reformed many of them and may finish the work if he will keep his temper and be patient. If such an appeal will send him back to the Senate for another six years, well and good, though neither the country nor his own State seems to be over-anxious on this question. It is to be hoped there is nothing of the fish-wife in Governor Hamilton's make-up.

TWELVE or fifteen years ago, when the first team of English cricketers went to Australia, they were accompanied by two hangers-on named Spiers and Pond, who landed at Sydney with only a penny apiece in their pockets. They closely followed the cricketers, however, and managed to earn enough money to buy small lots of refreshments. The cricket fields were noted for the poverty of refreshment stands. Spiers and Pond invested their little capital in food and drink. They coined guinea after guinea, until at last they were strong in pocket, and confident in their ability to open up a wider range of business. They took leases of railroad companies to maintain buffets at the stations along the lines of travel in England and Scotland. For years there had been great complaint. One by one the small beginners opened new places, and one by one they established drinking palaces in London, until their business grew to enormous proportions. A short time ago Pond died, leaving property worth $3,000,000. The firm has employed nearly 10,000 girls since its start, and now gives employment to nearly 3,000 barmaids, who are under discipline as strict as that of the regular army.

AN old man ninety-three years of age, a native of Spain, has just returned from this country, where he has been living many years, to his native land. There is nothing remarkable about this, but the prodigious family which accompanied him back was certainly remarkable. It consisted of 16 daughters, 23 sons, 34 granddaughters, 47 grandsons, 45 great-granddaughters, 39 great-grandsons, 3 great-great-granddaughters, and 72 sons-in-law and daughters-in-law, making in all 279 persons. The old man had been three times married, and his oldest son is now seventy years of age. The ship upon which he and his astonishing family colony went to Europe belongs to him, and is commanded by one of his numerous grandsons. Notwithstanding his age the old gentleman enjoys excellent health. Every day he takes two hours gymnastic exercise, walks for two hours, and directs the education of his great-grand children. He has never used spirituous liquors in any form, and does not smoke. He will shortly be presented at the Court of Madrid.

JACK MCDONALD, who trained Heenman for his prize fights in England, nearly a quarter of a century ago, is now a needy hanger-on at London places of sporting men's resort. He is always ready to reiterate that Heenman sold out the encounter with King, and was unfairly defeated in the one with Sayers. King has become a bookmaker on English race tracks, and is wealthy.

DR. H. F. HAMILTON says that at least once a day girls should have their halters taken off, the bars let down, and be turned loose like young colts. "Calisthenics may be very genteel, and romping very ungenteel, but one is the shadow, the other the substance, of healthful exercise."

THOMAS, an English farmer and believer in beer, has backed himself for $250 to do better work in the harvest field on his favorite beverage than Richards, a neighbor, whose drink during the competition is to be oatmeal water. The Temperance Alliance have engaged a pictorial artist, and numbers of Londoners, interested in the water question, will be present.

THE telegraph strike has ended by the strikers giving in.

A DISINFECTANT introduced to the medical profession by the late Dr. Goolden has been used in London eight years. Half a drachm of nitrate of lead should be dissolved in one pint or more of boiling water, and two drachms of common salt in a bucket of water. Pour the two solutions together, and let the sediment subside. A cloth dipped in this and hung up in a room will sweeten a fetid atmosphere instantly, or the solution thrown down a drain or over a heap of rubbish will produce a like result. Clothing worn by a patient with infectious disease, or bed linen, can be put at once into this solution without injury to the material, thus destroying the risk of infection for those persons who wash the clothing. Although it is a strong poison taken internally, it does not injure the skin. A room could be scrubbed with the solution, and would be sweetened at once by the process.

Great Bankrupt Sale of $500,000 Worth of Dry Goods for a few weeks only.

Owing to the depressed state of trade in Great Britain, caused by the Irish Land League and the disturbed affairs of Ireland, the well-known firm of Darcy & Mac Donald, of Dublin, Glasgow and Manchester, having become bankrupt, Messrs. Appleby & Co., the official Assignees are dispensing of a large consignment of goods that came to this country, consisting of West of England Broad and Narrow Cloths, Scotch Tweeds, Cassimeres, &c., &c.

Messrs. Gilmartin & Doyle, importers 1 Lispenard St., N. Y., the agents for this country, have engaged the services of twenty salesmen, who will offer for inspection and sale the goods at considerably below manufacturers' prices.

As Messrs. Gilmartin & Doyle have found great difficulty in finding ready cash buyers for large lots, they adopt the unusual plan of arranging the goods in small parcels suitable for retail purchasers. It is customary in the trade to give an elaborate description of and to note particularly the reduction made in the price of the stock offered. We prefer to submit a few samples for inspection and sale, which cannot fail to convince the most inexperienced of the enormous saving to be affected by purchasing.

Very respectfully,
GILMARTIN & DOYLE,
DANCE & BYRNE,
Aug. 9. Agents for the Eastern Shore.

CHESTERTOWN, MD.

CASKETS, Burial Cases, Coffins, Fine Cloth Work, Shrouds, Burial Robes, Merino and Satin Linings, &c., of all descriptions and kinds, and all the requisites of first-class Funeral Furnishings constantly on hand, or furnished at the very lowest prices.

METALIC COFFINS and CASKETS, urnished upon short notice when desired. A full line of

SHROUDS and BURIAL ROBES.

Patent Improved

COLD AIR ICE CASKETS for the preservation of the dead; also Embalming Fluids. I have recently introduced a remarkably cheap BLACK CLOTH CASKET, which in appearance is almost equal to the finest. Remember I do not confine myself exclusively to fine and high-priced work, but have an endless variety at medium and low prices.

I have THREE HEARSES, two large ones and one small white one for children and young persons; and with my handsome new Glass Hearse and fine pair of Black Horses, can furnish as fine a Funeral Turnout as can be seen in our large cities. I am constantly adding new features and improvements to my business, in order to keep up with the times; and as there are such changes in style and kind constantly going on, and, as is generally the custom, some friend is called into the embarrassing position of ordering what he supposes may be wanted, it would be much more satisfactory to all concerned to name the price of the article wanted.

☞ ALWAYS REMEMBER that I guarantee to furnish anything in my line, of the same kind and quality, at lower prices than any other establishment of the kind. Ever grateful for the very liberal patronage heretofore extended me, I respectfully beg a continuance of the same.

☞ Residence second door above my shop.

Respectfully,
Aug10—tf. JOHN N. DODD.
