The Transcript,

CHESTERTOWN, MD.,

Thursday Morning Dec. 13, 1883

C. G. WOODALL
Editor and Proprietor.

THE peninsular ship canal has again been brought before Congress in a Senatorial bill, introduced by Mr. Groome. It is not likely, however, that the bill will come even as near to passing this session as it did last.

BALTIMORE is to be before the Legislature again this winter, with a bill asking that she be given her belt. Indeed we think Baltimore should have her belt, and we hope she may find enough Legislators outside Baltimore county to vote for giving her her belt. The 80,000 people who live on the outskirts of Baltimore are enjoying city privileges, and there seems to be no good reason why they should not be counted in when the bills have to be paid.

BALTIMORE appears to be talking in real earnest about a great building for permanent exhibition purposes. Indeed the plan has so far taken shape that committees have been appointed, and a subscription fund is being raised. It is proposed to spend a million and a half of dollars upon the site and the building. Baltimore is getting to be, in these latter days, a very enterprising town. It is getting to be that she can do big things, as well as talk about doing big things.

THE greatest danger that attends the Democratic party in its contest next year for the Presidency is that it will pursue a cowardly course of neutrality. Already there is a disposition on the part of some leaders to dodge the meaning of Carlisle's election to the Speakership, and in a manner to apologize for the stand the party has taken upon the question of tariff. The Democratic party can never win unless it takes a decided stand upon a decided issue. No man nor no party ever yet succeeded by being afraid. The Democratic party cannot hope to win by standing with one foot upon tariff for revenue only and one foot upon protection to home industries. Such a position is not only weak, but is ridiculous.

AND why does the Baltimore American no longer shed the light of its countenance upon us? Since the Transcript took occasion to note the American's untruthful statements regarding the Kent county election, that valuable publication has no longer reached us. This is of course a great deprivation, and a very cruel stroke on the part of the American. However, we shall try and survive the blow and go right along as if nothing had happened to us. We hope the American will, in future in consideration of its own good, mend its ways and learn to be trustworthy in its statements. We take it that a daily paper cannot for long be successfully run upon news that is manufactured in the top story, more especially if the statements happen to be libelous upon a class of citizens or a section of country.

THERE is an opinion that has more or less prevalence among orthodox Christians, that that region of the great hereafter known as hell, is located in the interior of this earth. The future home of the wicked is supposed to abound in fire and brimstone, and as the volcanos which break through the earth's crust, belch forth fire and brimstone, the opinion that the interior of the earth is a real good place for wicked souls, is thus strengthened. Those who believe that the future home for the damned is in the interior of the earth, will be interested in learning that a Yankee company has just entered into a contract by which it expects to secure a supply of brimstone for earthly uses directly from these infernal dominions. That is to say, this Yankee company has purchased the South American Volcano Pocacatapetl, and expects to make an incision into its side through which they expect to obtain a supply of brimstone. Truly modern enterprise is very enterprising.

IT IS quite astonishing what a crop of candidates for the Eastern Shore Senatorship have sprung up. Nearly every county has its candidate, and some counties have several candidates. Casually, one might think the Eastern Shore to be fairly alive with statesmen. We say with statesmen, because he who aspires to occupy a seat in the United States Senate, should be liberally educated, widely informed and broad-minded enough to be estimated as a statesman in the best and highest meaning accorded that term. Certainly no intellectually small man should be selected for the position. We think the peninsula can furnish, perhaps more than one candidate, who if given the opportunity, could make his personality felt in the United States Senate. There are quite a number, however, whose names have been paraded as seekers after senatorial honors, who could never hope under any circumstances to exercise that influence and leadership in the shaping of public measures, which the people of Maryland should desire to have exercised by the men who represent them in the national legislature. The man whom the State legislature selects this winter, should not be a man who is too small for the place.

AN ISLAND BORN IN FLAME.

NEWS OF A GREAT VOLCANIC DISTURBANCE ON THE KAMSCHATKAN COAST.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

The latest advices from Ounalaska, which arrived by the steamer Dora, just down from that island, contain an interesting description of wonderful volcanic disturbances, which are said to have occurred near there lately. Captain Hogue, of the Dora, was called on by a Chronicle reporter yesterday afternoon. He was found at an assay office, he being an experimentalist in this branch of science. Laying aside his blow pipe and metal, the captain said, in answer to the first inquiry: 'Yes; I was at Bogosloy twice during the past season and I did see something most extraordinary. Sit down and I'll tell you all about it.'

The reporter complied with the request and the Captain went on:

'When I say that I was at Bogosloy you must not take it for granted that I landed there.'

'It is not a habitable island?' asked the reporter.

'At certain seasons, perhaps, but at the time I saw it there was nothing visible there but a mass of flame and smoke, with pieces of red-hot rocks issuing from the great centre of the mass and great quantities of lava running down to the sea.'

'How near did you approach?'

'I stood off about a mile and a half, not daring to venture nearer. It was the grandest scene I ever witnessed, and I have been pretty nearly everywhere.'

'How long did the eruption last?'

'I can't exactly say as to that, as I found the cone in a disturbed condition and left it next day still in a state of eruption. I have learned that it had been throwing out lava for several weeks and that it had still continued to do so up to the date of my departure from Ounalaska. But what was most remarkable and most singular to behold was a new feature which was then visible in the scene. A new island had sprung up not far distant from Bogosloy since my previous voyage to that spot. At first I could not believe my senses and thought I had made a miscalculation in taking my surroundings, but there it was, a new island, with a cone shaped peak in the centre 500 to 800 feet high and lying only a short distance from where we stood, that portion of its irregular outline nearest to Bogosloy being but a few miles away from the old island.'

A remarkable assertion in this connection and one which will probably not be credited by some is in regard to the sea-lions. Many of them were reported as having been killed by the volcanic eruptions and the sea was said to be swarming with these animals. The greater portion of those still alive were hairless, the heat to which they had been subjected having removed their outer fur, rendering those caught in this vicinity of no value to the hunter.

Some of the ashes which fell at Ounalaska were examined by the reporter. They were peculiar in their lightness and cottony appearance and the statement of their having been borne thirty miles in the air by a light wind may be easily credited.

Gossip From Washington.

SCENES AT THE OPENING OF CONGRESS—THE HOUSE THE FAVORITE WITH VISTIORS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Promptly at 12 o'clock on Monday the flags were run up over the north and south wings of the Capitol; the House and Senate had assembled. The day was cold and beautifully clear. The Capitol never looked more beautiful. Inside everything was freshened up, and the presence of a crowd of not less than 3,000 persons gave liveliness to the scene. By 9 o'clock the galleries began to fill, and by 10 they had overflowed into the corridors. The private galleries were crowded, even the sottly carpeted steps being filled with well dressed women. The diplomatic gallery was thrown open, and only the press and Executive galleries were reserved from the tide of human beings that surged through the corridors. The Senate and House chambers both looked resplendent with new carpets, new varnish, polished chandeliers, and freshened walls and cornices. When the bouquets, and ships, and anchors, and gavels, and chairs, and horseshoes of flowers began to pour in, the effect was charming. Nearly every other desk was decorated with gigantic bouquets, and it was thought that Speaker Carlisle would have to ask his friends to send no more flowers. The chief interest of the multitude centred in the House. It is strange how the public realizes what custom and etiquette have somewhat obscured, that the House of Representatives is the ranking body in Congress. The monopoly of originating money bills fixes it, and it is only necessary to compare the relative positions of the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate to know which is the real Big Injun. Consequently only those drifted over to the Senate wing who stood no chance of hearing or seeing anything going on in the House, excepting, of course, the Senators' families. But those who went were enough to fill the Senate wing too.

Mr. Randall was the coolest and most composed man in the House, and Mr. Cox the most good-natured. Mr. Cox seemed to enjoy the freedom from the wear and tear of the last two weeks. When Mr. Randall's vote was reached for Speaker he answered, in a loud, clear voice, "John G. Carlisle," instead of simply "Carlisle," as the other members had done. Then Mr. Randall and Mr. Keifer met in the main aisle, having been appointed to fetch Mr. Carlisle. Keifer seemed surprised at finding himself in such good company, and cast a furtive look at the press gallery. In a few minutes an expectant hush succeeded the buzz of conversation, and Mr. Carlisle, as white as a sheet, and looking like a prisoner between two constables, appeared. He glanced up on entering the chamber and caught the eye of Tiger Tom, the Texas Terror, glaring upon him. That finished it; he clung to Mr. Randall and the ancient Keifer desperately, and got out of Tiger Tom's neighborhood as fast as he could. It seems that Tiger Tom didn't want Carlisle, Randall, or Cox for Speaker, so he trotted out a candidate of his own, and with a large Texas scowl voted for his choice.

The new member was present, appended by his buttonhole to a large nosegay. When Messrs. Randall and Keifer were appointed to escort Mr. Carlisle to the Chair, the new member groaned.

"Now, I call that rough on rats," he said. "Ain't that rubbin' it in, though?"

"You had better watch Randall," whispered Mr. Randolph Tucker, who sat next to him. "He isn't the man to put up with that kind of thing. Why, when Kerr was elected over him, and he was asked to bring him in, he picked up a whacking big bouquet."

"He didn't, though?"

"And banged away at the fellow in the chair. Then he followed it up with an inkstand and a chair, and—"

Just then the trio applauded. The new member watched them apprehensively, and breathed a sigh of relief when Mr. Randall rturned quietly to his seat.

Meanwhile Mr. Carlisle began speaking in a deliberate voice. When he got to the part of his speech in which he deprecated violent changes in the tariff, a ripple of applause went around, which swelled into a burst and then into a roar. The Democrats breathed freer.

It is hard to tell which is the more pleased—Congress to be back in Washington or Washington to have Congress back again, and for the long session, too. Even the pigeons that build in the east front of the Capitol chirp and coo more cheerfully now that Congress is here. Senator Edmunds is not happy. Indeed, he looks more saturnine than ever, and is the gloomiest man that ever sat in the President's chair. The other old fellows are very jolly. They can't do any work for two or three weeks, so they can sit around and listen to Senator Vest's vivid romances and Senator Vance's blood-curdling stories, and have a nice quiet time while the House is wrangling and struggling and breaking in the legislative colts. But there is one thing rather startling about the United States Senate. It is heard at every turn—"Only a rich man can be a Senator." It is estimated that seventeen out of the seventy-eight Senators are millionaires, and all but three or four of these have been elected within the last four years. Look at the Western Senators—Jones, Fair, Sabin, Palmer, Miller, Hill, Bowen. What is the proportion of brains to money among these men?—N. Y. Sun.

THE Indian may dwell with the Caucasian for years, and live as the white lives, but on returning to his tribe he will fall into the habits of savage life, and will prefer that life,' Indian Agent Gardner said, in an interview with a reporter for the Denver Tribune. And he instanced Chipeta, the wife of the Colorado Chief Ouray. She had little communication with the whites, but her husband taught her to live as they do. Her house was well furnished, and provided with many conveniences that are luxuries in border life. She always had her cook, and her table was supplied with good food, well cooked, served in an elegant platter, and eaten with knives, forks, and spoons. Ouray died in 1880. About a year ago Chipeta married again, and returned to the old ways of her childhood among her tribe. She has three trunks full of valuables stored away in the agency storehouse. One of them is filled with silverware presented to her by the ladies in the city of Washington. For these she has no use.

Trustee's Sale

—OF—

SOME OF THE BEST LOCATED AND MOST VALUABLE RESIDENCE and STORE HOUSE

PROPERTY

IN CHESTERTOWN.

BY virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Kent county as a Court of Equity, passed in a cause in said Court wherein Elizabeth R. Wickes and others are complainants and Ellen S. Wickes and others are defendants, being No. 661 on the Chancery docket of said Court, the undersigned as Trustee will offer at Public Sale at the Voshell House porch, on

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 2, 1884

AT 11½ O'CLOCK A. M.,

ALL THAT PROPERTY,

SITUATED ON HIGH STREET IN CHESTERTOWN opposite the Market House, of which the late SIMON WICKES died seized, fronting 61 feet 1 inch on High street, with a depth of about 132 feet, and with an eight foot right of way thereto from Cross street.

The Improvements

consist of a Handsome, Commodious

BRICK DWELLING

AND STORE ROOM

under one roof, two stories and attic, press brick front, all in good order, the dwelling being occupied by Mr. James S. Bradley and the store room by Mr. Thomas W. Wickes as a drug store.

—ALSO—

Another Store Room AND HOUSE,

with two-story brick front, being occupied by Wickes & Bro. in their mercantile business.

This property is well known as one of the oldest and best locations for business purposes in the town—the Drug business having been continuously and successfully carried on there for more than fifty years on the same spot, and general merchandising having been successfully prosecuted by one or the other of the firm of Wickes & Bro. upon the premises they now occupy for over 40 years.

Persons wishing to engage in business have here an opportunity rarely offered in Chestertown, and the excellent residence connected with it adds to the value of the property, which will be offered as a whole and in THREE PARCELS, as follows:

NO. 1,

adjoins the old Canady property, fronting on High Street 20 feet, 1 inch with a depth of 132 feet, and comprises occupied by the drug store of T. W. Wickes on the ground floor, with all that part of the house above the drug store, it being separated from the rest of the house by a solid brick wall.

That Part of the Brick Building

No. 2,

is immediately above No. 1, and comprises all the residue of said dwelling house, fronting 26 feet on High street, with a depth of 132 feet. This lot from the back wall of the dwelling to the rear of the lot will be 20 in. less in width so as to give room for the window shutters and eaves of the building on No. 3.

No. 3,

is immediately above No. 2, and fronts on High street, 15 feet, with a depth of 132 feet.

The existing right of way from Cross street to this whole property—eight feet wide—will be continued across Lots Nos. 1 and 2, so as to give lot No. 3 the benefit of this right of way, and lots Nos. 1 and 2 will be sold subject to such right of way.

The whole of this property except a rectangle 20x50 feet, on the South East corner, is subject to an annual ground rent of $25, and also to an annual rent of six dollars for the use of said right of way; said ground rent of $25 being renewable at the end of 99 years from the year 1850, and being redeemable at the pleasure of the purchaser upon payment of the sum of $400 to the holder of said ground rent.

As between the purchasers the said annual ground rent of $6 will be apportioned equally upon all three parcels, and the said annual ground rent of $25 will be apportioned according to the prices respectively obtained for the three parcels.

TERMS OF SALE:

The terms of sale prescribed by the decree are as follows: One-third of the purchase money on each parcel to be paid in cash on the day of sale, or in thirty days thereafter at the option of the Trustee, and the residue in two equal annual payments, with interest from January 1st, 1884, to be secured to the satisfaction of the trustee.

All taxes to be paid to Jan. 1, 1884, and possession given upon ratification of the sale. A plot of each parcel will be exhibited at the sale.
