C. G. WOODALL,
EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MANNING has been stricken with paralysis, and now lies at his home in Washington in a helpless condition. It is not thought that he will be able to resume his duties. Paralysis came from constant overwork.

THE present session of the State Legislature adjourns next Monday, the 5th day of April. There will now be no new legislation introduced. The Baltimore city park tax bill, general oyster bill and the canal bill are among the important bills yet to be disposed of.

THE Centreville Record this week will come out on Saturday, and will be enlarged to nine columns. A nine-column country paper is a piece of enterprise that makes the knowing smile. At the same time we congratulate our esteemed contemporary, as we suppose that is the proper thing to do. Long may the nine columns wave. And may it never be found necessary to run dead or inflated advertising to keep them waving.

MR. H. H. Keedy, of Hagerstown, Maryland, recently made an open attack upon Comptroller Turner condemning him for not paying off the $100,000 due on the Deaf and Dumb Asylum loan, for the paying off of which there is a sufficiently accrued sinking fund. Mr. Turner replied, and gave Mr. Keedy an open reason which should be satisfactory to him and to the people of the State. The Deaf and Dumb Asylum sinking fund is invested in B. & O. Railroad bonds, which pay an annual interest of six per centum, while the loan can be refunded at three per centum, thus creating a balance in favor of the State of $3,000 per annum.

THE great Southwestern Railway strike, in which about 12,000 men were involved, has been brought to an end by arbitration between Mr. Jay Gould, the president of the system, and Mr. T. V. Powderly, the head of the Knights of Labor organization. The strike seems in the first place, to have come from a trivial cause—the discharge of a single man. It seems to have been undertaken without the advice and consent of the head of the organization. The shutting off of traffic was being sorely felt in St. Louis and other cities dependent upon the Gould system. Prices had begun to raise for all sorts of commodities.

Since the above was written, there has been a hitch in negotiations, and the great strike still continues.

—The organization known as the "Knights of Labor" and other labor organizations are destined to exert a great influence in the political and social systems of the near future.—He who reads the history of the times understandingly, cannot fail to be convinced of this. These organizations are springing up in every city and large town, and they are gradually connecting with each other, so as to form one great national organization, that shall act upon any given occasion in unison throughout the entire nation. This great organized labor power is undoubtedly destined to do many things through ignorance that will entail suffering and disaster upon labor as well as upon capital. But all the same, it will in time work a great change in the systems of this world.

The Following Bills Have Been Signed by the Governor.

Senate bills: The Lane constitutional convention bill; the Peter tobacco inspection bill; authorizing the issue of bonds by Wicomico county; providing for indexing the records in the Circuit Court for Queen Anne's county; authorizing the appointment of two additional magistrates in Baltimore county; appropriating a sum of money to pay ex-State's Attorney Matthews, of Charles county; sanctioning the bequest of Susan Gallaude; amending the salvage corps charter; to refund certain money to the estate of Isabella Fahey; sanctioning certain sales, conveyances and deeds to sundry religious orders and denominations; relating to the sheriff of Baltimore county; amending the charter of the Baltimore Eye, Ear and Throat Charity Hospital; relating to indexing the records of Charles county.

Moore; extending the incorporation act of the Washington Fire Insurance Co.; refunding overpaid taxes to Adam Thompson; empowering the mayor and city council of Baltimore to levy certain sums of money to pay James M. Munroe and Edgar H. Gans for prosecuting Captain Hance; to pay the Wicomico school commissioners a sum of money; to refund $43.97 to David Routzahn; authorizing the Garrett county commissioners to pay for certain printing; authorizing the sheriff of Prince George's county to appoint a guard for the jail; to encourage the destruction of crows, hawks and owls in Wicomico and Worcester; repealing the Worcester county wild fowl law; re-enacting the Worcester oyster law; changing the name of Dividing creek, Talbot co., to La Trappe river; to refund to John N. Heuman $469.61 overpaid taxes to the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia Railroad Company; amending the charter of the Montgomery Mutual Fire Insurance Co.; providing for the erection of a police station at Catonsville, Baltimore co. regulating the trial of cases before magistrates in Garrett county, authorizing the change of the dividing lines of election districts in Harford county; authorizing the erection of a school house at Lafayette avenue and Bloomingdale road, Baltimore county; amending the charter of the Mutual Insurance Co. of Washington county; amending the Washington Grove Camp charter; requiring the coal companies of Allegany and Garrett counties to pay their employes semi-monthly, regulating the width of roads of the Triadelphia Turnpike Co., incorporating the Atlantic Hotel Co., to better protect the residents of Brooklyn, Anne Arundel county, to appoint an additional magistrate in the 4th district of St. Mary's county, extending the powers of the bailiff of Easton, ratifying and confirming the agreement between the county commissioners of Washington county and the Western Maryland Railroad Co. relative to certain bonds, incorporating Catonsville, Baltimore co., incorporating the Catonsville Water Co., incorporating the Carib Guano Co., amending the charter of the Thomas Mining Co., and to extend the time of ex-County Clerk Prettyman, of Montgomery county, to finish up the business of his late office.

THE REPUBLICAN POLICY.

All Fit Nominations to be Confirmed if Made for Political Reasons.

From the N. Y. Sun.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Now that the Senate majority has declared, by the adoption of the Edmunds resolutions, its views of the relations between the executive and legislative branches of the government in respect to nominations, there will be numerous and interesting executive sessions. The nominations that have been hung up to await the end of the debate will be reported for action, and nearly all of them will be confirmed. The third resolution of the Edmunds series is interpreted to mean that nominations shall be rejected only when the cause of suspension is deemed necessary for the intelligent action of the Senate. In other words, when it is known that an official has been suspended upon charges affecting his official or personal character, the Senate will reject the nomination of his successor unless the nature of the charges is made known and he has an opportunity to vindicate himself. If any Senator shall state upon knowledge that there were no such charges against a suspended official, the papers will not be "deemed necessary" and the successor will be confirmed.

There are only a few cases in which officials have been removed upon other than political reasons; they do not number more than ten per cent, of the 643 on the entire list, and it will be conceded that offensive partisanship was the cause of suspension unless some Senator shall happen to know the contrary. In his report on the Vermont Collector of Internal Revenue, Senator Morrill acknowledges the right of the President to turn out Republicans and turn in Democrats, and this report is unanimously endorsed on both sides of the Senate, but the Republicans are unanimous in holding that men who have been accused and have not had an opportunity to answer their accusers should have a chance to be heard. Many of the Democratic Senators concede as much, and it is believed that when the Senate shows its hand the President will recognize the justice of the claims, and join that body in affording the accused persons the privilege of making a defense. He has intimated as much to Republicans who have talked with him on the subject. He has expressed a desire to be fair, and has said that where removals have been made upon what seemed to him good grounds, he has no objection to an investigation of the evidence presented to him.

The Lessons of Mr. Manning's Sickness.

From the Star.

The department of the Treasury should be divided. The labors of it are too severe for human endurance. No matter how perfect its organization may be, no matter how expert and industrious the subordinate officers are, so long as the Secretary is at his post there falls upon him an amount of work which will assuredly break down all men except those who are endowed with exceptional strength. But those who are able to stand the physical strain are still unable to do justice to the matters which come before them. The only way in which the work can be disposed of at all is by neglecting much of it and pigeonholing a great deal more. The carelessness, not only of the convenience of citizens, but of their rights, in the transactions of the Treasury, has long been a public disgrace as well as a grievous public wrong.

The Treasury should be divided into two departments. It can easily be so divided, and upon lines which are distinct and apparent. One department might deal with the raising and the collection of the revenue, the other with its disbursement. To the one would belong the customs bureau, the internal revenue, the making of loans, and the printing and the coignage of the currency; to the other would belong the whole machinery of payment and disbursements, and of the auditing of all accounts.

Both the Treasury and the Interior Departments are now overburdened, and the labors of them cannot be undertaken without risk to health, nor thoroughly well done by any one, however strong he may be.

We trust that the illness of Mr. Manning will teach a greatly needed lesson to those who are associated with him. We hear altogether too much of the industry, the labors and the long hours of the President and his Cabinet. None of these places should be laborious. On the other hand, they should all afford that leisure without which really good and useful and valuable work cannot be done. Let us hear that the President has little to do; that he can give abundant opportunity for consultation with men of thought and knowledge, and that he has time enough to do with deliberation and ease the really important work with which his great office is charged, and the proper performance of which is necessary to the Government. Overwork is the most ridiculous vice of which a man can be guilty.

Mr. Blaine's Plans for 1888.

From the Philadelphia Times.

"Politics is barred in this house. I am glad to see my friends when they do not wish to revive the old story of public life."

Thus spake Mr. Blaine to a friend of mine, who only a day or two ago called upon him at his home at Augusta.

"I have never been happier, in better health or more contented in my life," said the Plumed Knight, with a merry twinkle in his eye.

My friend says that his looks, manners and conversation showed that he told the truth. Despite the assurance that politics and politicians were distasteful to him, Mr. Blaine could not help touching upon current events and public men during the few hours' conversation which followed. What with his "Twenty Years in Congress" finished, no cares for the future, Mr. Blaine has a right to feel contented with himself and the world. But the fact is, that Mr. Blaine is looking out for a renomination.

He left the impression upon the gentleman who brings this news of his everyday life that he would not turn a wheel in the coming contest for the Republican Presidential nomination. He will even do less than he did before, and abide by the decision of his party. This, of course, means that he expects to be nominated or to control the nomination of the next Republican candidate. The fire of his animosity toward Mr. Conkling and the Stalwarts is being in a measure rekindled by the reappearance of New York's great ex Senator into public notoriety. His conversation develops the fact that he takes the same interest in men as ever, and expects to be in prime condition for good or evil when the Convention meets. The facts appear to be, so far as his friends can gather them, that Mr. Blaine's position is that of interesting neutrality just now. But that he holds the cards for renomination if he wants to use them no one appears to doubt. I am reminded of this by the appearance of two strong men speaking from entirely different standpoints.

Ex-Gov. Charley Foster of Ohio told me the other day that, taking the rank and file of the party in the West, nine out of every ten men in the West were in favor of Mr. Blaine's renomination. Ex Senator Henry G. Davis of West Virginia, who is a Democrat and father-in-law of Steve Elkins, said to me only a day or two before that through his spectacles Mr. Blaine was the only Republican candidate really in sight. This feeling seems to be almost universal among the Democrats here, due in a great measure perhaps to the failure of Mr. Cleveland to please those who demand the loaves and fishes and don't get them. The Irish are still hankering after the Plumed Knight.

The House Chaplain's Prayer.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Mr. Milburn, the blind chaplain of the House, now draws more visitors to the galleries than any of the statesmen on the floor. Col. Morrison, who managed Dr. Milburn's canvass in the spirited contest at the election of a chaplain, is very proud of his man, and is always on hand to hear the prayers. Dr. Milburn is a fine elocutionist, and his prayers are beautifully delivered in a deep and solemn voice. They are distinctly heard in every part of the chamber. He is confining himself entirely to current topics. To-day he prayed on the labor question as follows:

Give ear, oh God of Jacob, and awaken us to see the danger which threatens the civilized world—a revolution more tremendous than any of which history tells, in which the scenes of the Reign of Terror may be enacted in every capital of Europe and America. For long the few have mastered the many, because they understood the open secret—the tools to them that can use them; but now the many have learned the secret of organization, drill and dynamite. Rouse the rich of the world to understand that the time has come for grinding, selfish monopoly to cease, that corporations may get souls in them with justice, honor, conscience, and human kindness. Teach the rich men of this country that great fortunes are lent them by Thee for other purposes than to build and decorate palaces, to found private collections of art, to stock wine cellars, to keep racing studs and yachts and the company of hostlers, grooms and jockeys, poolsellers and bookmakers. Teach them, oh God, that it is Thee who has given them power to get these fortunes, that it is to prove them, to know what is in their hearts, whether they will keep Thy commandments or no, and that those commandments are "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself." If the rich men of our land keep these commandments the poor will follow the example, and we, at least, will be saved from the days of tribulation that are fast coming on all the world. Help us, O God, and save us.

Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., Ohio) asked unanimous consent that the prayer be printed in the Record.

Mr. James (Rep., N. Y.) objected, remarking sotto voce to gentlemen who asked him to withdraw his objection, that it was made because the prayer was an incendiary speech.

THIRZA W. SHALLCROSS, plaintiff, vs.
JACOB F. SHALLCROSS, defendant.

In the Circuit Court for Kent county, in Equity.

The object of this Bill is to procure a divorce a vinculo matrimonii of the plaintiff from the defendant.

1st—The Bill alleges that the plaintiff and defendant were married in the city of Philadelphia on the sixteenth day of September, eighteen hundred and seventy-six.

2d—That the said plaintiff and defendant have but one child, a boy of about nine years of age.

3d—That the defendant about the month of December, eighteen hundred and eighty, abandoned the complainant, leaving her at her father's residence in Kent county, Maryland, where she has ever since continued to reside with her said child, and to be with him wholly supported by her said father, her said husband contributing nothing whatever to her support.

It is thereupon ordered by the Court this thirty-first day of March, 1886, that the plaintiff cause a copy of this Order, together with the object and substance of the Bill, to be inserted in some newspaper published in Chestertown, Maryland, once a week for four successive weeks before the third day of May, 1886, giving notice to the defendant in said Bill, and warning him to appear in this court in person or by solicitor, on or before the third day of August, 1886, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree should not pass as prayed.
