The Statue of Liberty Receives an Appropriation.

The action of Congress on Friday practically settled the question as to the remainder of the money necessary for the completion of the Statue of Liberty, as well as for the amount necessary for the inauguration ceremonies next September, and for the cleaning up and ornamentation of Liberty Island. The sum asked for by the American Committee for these several purposes is $106,000. Only a few thousand dollars more than the committee already had was needed for the pedestal and the statue properly, but a large sum was requisite for the payment of expenses connected with the reception and entertainment of French visitors at the time of the inauguration and for the changes necessary on the island. A great deal of work has yet to be done before the surroundings of the great statue are in proper order.—The island has been neglected for years, and is now covered with debris. All the buildings now there will probably be removed and some new and appropriate ones erected in their stead. A new dock is also to be built. Just what the improvements are to be is yet largely a matter of conjecture, but they will no doubt make Liberty Island one of the most beautiful spots in the world. It is indeed a beautiful place now notwithstanding the neglect into which it has fallen.—From no point in the harbor is there such a superb view. Standing almost midway between Governor's Island on the one side and the Jersey shore on the other, with the lower end of New York city but two or three miles away and Staten Island and the Narrows plainly in sight, the panoramic aspect of the scene presented is marvellously fascinating. Only a little to the east is the pathway of the ships that come in from the sea and go out to the sea, and not a moment passes without the sight of some craft, great or small, passing one way or the other. It is a sort of watch-tower on the highway of nations. The island is covered now with green grass, and there are many trees to give additional beauty to the grounds.

The work on the statue is progressing very rapidly. Contractor Hind had yesterday ninety-two feet of the interior steel work up and the workmen were putting up the framework of the torch-arm in the afternoon. All the primary framework will be in place by the 4th of July and the outside pieces of the statue will then be put in place very rapidly. They are in the shape of huge copper sheets and will be rivetted together in the most careful manner. The extent of this operation may be somewhat comprehended from the statement that it will take more than 600,000 copper rivets to do this work. A great many workmen will be employed and they will have everything ready by the 3d of September, when the grandest inauguration ever seen will take place.

From now on the interest in the statue and all its surroundings will increase. It is the most interesting and celebrated work of the kind ever erected, and every feature of its history is worth treasuring.—Thousands of people are availing themselves of the opportunity to go over and see it while in process of erection. No comprehension of the size of the pedestal and height of the statue can be had by seeing them from shore. Visitors are astonished at the stupendous character of the work. Liberty Island is sure to be a favorite resort for every stranger who comes to the city and for most of those who live here.—The steamer Jud Field, which runs every hour from the Barge Office landing, foot of the elevated railways, sometimes carries over more than a hundred passengers a day. On Sundays she takes over from three to seven hundred.—N. Y. World.

For Tariff Revision.

The Philadelphia correspondent of the Philadelphia Times, writing June 16, says:

The conferences which the President has had with a few Representatives whose opinions are entitled to consideration on account of their familiarity with economical questions and their influence in the House, indicate that he is determined, if possible, to secure some decisive action in the direction of tariff revision before the adjournment of the present session of Congress. He has conversed with Speaker Carlisle, who has communicated the wishes of the administration to Mr. Morrison and his friends. He has also conversed with Mr. Randall, Mr. McAdoo, of New Jersey, and with one or two other Democrats who are opposed to the Morrison idea of tariff revision. The position of the administration as indicated in the conversations of the President with the gentlemen named and with a few close friends is presented in a very recent interview with one of the latter. The President said: "The platform presented to the people by the Democratic Convention of 1884 made certain pledges on several leading issues. One of these was a revision of the tariff. We have undertaken to carry out reforms in public expenditures and administrative methods. Now we propose to inaugurate reforms in the form and extent of taxation. There are public expenditures which still need curtailment, but that will come without legislation, as the discretion of the Executive is sufficient to meet excesses of that character; but the arrangement of tariff schedules and rates of duties upon articles of import requires concurrent action of the two houses of Congress and the approval of the President."

"It may be possible that it is late in the session to enter into any very extended revision of the rates of duty by specific legislation, but such general doctrines of tariff revision might be presented as to fairly affirm the policy of the party in accordance with its pledges. Without some affirmative action the party will be false to its duty. I have no comments to offer as to measures, but I have decided convictions as to the importance of taking a position on the question of the articles which should bear the burden of taxation and yield the bulk of the revenue of the country."

GEM
Piano and Organ
COMPANY.
WASHINGTON, N. J.

MR. EDWARD PLOTTS, who is one of the firm, is in Chestertown with four car loads of Organs and Pianos from the above well-known manufactory, and is stopping at the Voshell House. He has rented the store-room on Cross street, or the street that leads to the public school, between Chapman & Lambert's carriage factory and Hudgins' bakery, and has his teams ready to deliver Organs and Pianos in any part of the town or county. Any one wishing to examine one of these instruments or desiring to take it on trial for a few days, can have it delivered at their homes. If it does not prove entirely satisfactory they are under no obligation to keep it. Parties having old Pianos or Organs can get fair prices for them in exchange for new ones.
