Renewal ax to hit old AME landmark

ST. LOUIS — Memorial African Methodist Episcopal Church, described as historic colored landmark in this city held its final services in the structure last Sunday.

The building, in the Mill Creek Valley redevelopment area, is owned by the Land Clearance Authority, is to be demolished to make way for a housing project. Faye P. Everett, principal of Eugene Field School, has been leading an apparently futile movement to preserve the structure, built in 1890.

He said it was the only church in St. Louis that was built by and for a colored congregation, and that it was the first colored Methodist church west of the Mississippi River.

"All 17 of our children have one thing in common," declares Mrs. Carrie W. Green (front center). "They love to eat!" Mrs. Green was a cafeteria manager before her marriage—that helps. One of her favorite desserts is sweet potato pie made with Carnation (see recipe at right). Mr. Shade A. Green (second from right, front), was selected Businessman of the Year for 1963 by the Washington, D.C. Observer. All but one of the Green children are shown in this photograph.
This well-known accountant, Businessman of the Year, has 17 exemptions
Every single one a Carnation baby!
Shade A. Green, all-state fullback at North Carolina College and later a government auditor, left the Treasury Department in 1946 to establish his accounting firm in Washington, D.C. A minister's son, he is a deacon at Matthews Baptist Church. He teaches accounting and coaches basketball at Cortez Peters Business College. And he finds time to be active in the Chamber of Commerce.
Mr. Green's business and family "grew up" together—by leaps and bounds! The oldest boy, Shade Jr., 21, majors in psychology at North Carolina College. The baby, Angelette, is 1½.
"The doctor recommended Carnation for every one of the babies' formulas," Mrs. Green declares. Carnation in the red-and-white can is the world's leader for infant feeding—the milk every doctor knows.

Angelette and Bruce, at play in the always lively recreation room of the Green home. "Angelette has just graduated from the bottle to the cup," Mrs. Green explains, "and of course we keep her on Carnation, mixed with water." Carnation is the milk with extra Vitamin D, for sound teeth and bones. Even when you add an equal amount of water, it is richer than sweet, whole milk.*
