Stock Well Watered is Half Fed.

The I. X. L.

IS THE BEST

GOVERNED

MILL.

Manufactured.

IT IS THE STRONGEST, MOST POWERFUL, and will run in lighter wind than any Mill made.

Read the following and be convinced:

MR. J. H. IRELAND—SIR: The I. X. L. Wind Mill I bought from you last fall gives perfect satisfaction. It is put up out of First-Class material, and I have never been without water since it was erected. I can safely say it is the best Mill I ever saw, and do not hesitate to recommend it to my friends. Yours respectfully,

SAMUEL A. MERRITT.

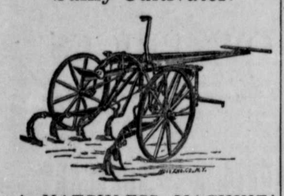
FARMERS ECONOMIZE LABOR

BY USING THE CELEBRATED

LITTLE DIAMOND

Sulky Cultivator.



A MATCHLESS MACHINE!

1. INDEPENDENT TOOTH. The only cultivator in which the tooth next to the plant has a perfectly free vertical and lateral movement.
2. DIRECT HITCH. A perfectly simple device for keeping the teeth uniformly deep in heavy and light soils. No springs, no clap trap devices to break and wear out.
3. SIMPLICITY. Simplest in construction.
4. ADJUSTABILITY. Can be instantly adjusted for width, for depth, for furrowing, a Harrow, a Plow, a Cultivator, a Double Shovel or a Marker.
5. WORK. Tills both sides of row at once and does it better than it can be done by hand. The highest kind of cultivation. It don't scratch, it pulverizes. As a plow it cannot be excelled.

Read the following testimonial:

CHESTERVILLE, April 15, 1889.

Messrs. Smith & Clements:—This is to certify that I have used the Diamond Cultivator for three years, and have raised more corn than when worked with one-horse cultivators, and by using two cultivators save the labor of two men.

CHARLES H. B. SPRY.

The Little Diamond is a perfect cultivator and the greatest labor-saving implement of the age.

We also have for sale the unequaled

THE POETRY OF SHOELEATHER.

Is there nothing I can do for you?
Says I to Johnny Stout.
Yes, I want to see that Douglas Shoe
I hear so much about.

If all the papers say is true,
Which I've no right to doubt;
Surely this noted Douglas Shoe
Must be the best thing out.

They are sold throughout America
And other countries too,
And people who have worn them say,
They are a First-Class Shoe.

But if you doubt what neighbors say,
To prove them false or true,
A small amount you'll surely pay
To test the Douglas Shoe.

And if I sell a pair to you,
Another friend I make
To that most excellent wearing Shoe
We advise you all to take.

The above Shoes in gentlemen's and ladies' wear are kept in stock by JAMES A. SHAW.

ALSO, AGENT FOR

The Huber Engine and Thresher.

I would call your attention to the line of goods manufactured by each of these parties as being fully up to the standard of excellence claimed. P. P. Mast and Co.'s goods represent the following:

Buggies, Phaetons, Daytons, Road Carts, &c.

In Implements·

Drills, Cultivators, Cider Mills, Force Pumps, Lift Pumps, Wind Mills, &c.

D. M. OSBORN'S

BINDER AND MOWER!

are Standard Machines, which are fully up to the times. The Huber Engine and Thresher is a new departure in threshing machines. Saving at least one-half the fuel and water necessary to work the old style fire-box engines, besides a perfect traction, and will pass over soft ground without burying, making them the coming engine. I will personally attend to all these goods, and guarantee them to fill the bill.

Thanking you for past favors, solicit a fair share of your patronage.

LOVE'S GOLDEN CIRCLE.

Lives there a woman with heart so dead who never to herself hath said, I mean some day to get married? This phase is turning the patriotic masculine outburst about one's "native land," familiar to every schoolboy, into a new, absurd rendering. The publication of a series of love letters from famous men and women puts one "in touch," as it were, with the subject of marriage, as this is or should be the outcome of love's effusions. Whether or no "marriage is a failure," the young men and women who go sweethearting are usually disposed to solve the problem in their own obstinate way. Marriage is a tolerably serious business at its rosiest reckoning. No man, save in rare, exceptional instances, is fit to marry under six-and-thirty years of age. No woman amounts to much save in similar exceptional instances, who is less than thirty. Prior to these respective ages they surely are in their "salad days," and wofully "green in judgment." But what is the use of talking? The boys and girls of 13 to 19 will get married, and enjoy happiness thereby or be sorrowed thereby, as the case may be, proving how truly in this, as in all else, life's history repeats itself. Let us then admit the gracious fashion of marriage and proceeded to look up some of its curious English observances, handed down by long generations.

The word "wedding" is pure Anglo-Saxon, and signifies "a pledge." From time immemorial this recognized "pledge" consists of a ring, and is used as indicative that the man will perform his part of this free contrct. The ancient English wedding ring is a thread-like band of deep yellow guinea gold. In primitive times the coin called "a guinea," now out of date and valued at 21s., was used to melt up into wedding rings. This is the sort of ring the Queen of the realm wears, likewise the costermonger, if she be married. On a level all wives meet in England, in this if in no other observance. Latterly the fashion permits of a wider band, but the great, vugar belts of gold so popular in America have never found favor on this side of the "herring pond." The ring is never removed and is buried with the wife. Long years wear it nearly in two. Sometimes it breaks apart. Then it is mended—never replaced by a new one.

In the early English marriage service the man puts the ring on with this dedication: "With this ring I wed thee; with my body I thee worship," &c. It is a pity the latter phrase has been eliminated from general use. What can be more sublimely, more tenderly loyal than an open declaration of "body worship?" 'Tis this quaint phrase which lifts the husband far above the temporary lover. 'Tis this which transforms sexuality into sacredness. However, some couples still insist on the ancient formula.

The wedding ring is always "hall marked." This mark is the symbol of the goldsmith's craft. It is proof positive of solid ware, whether of gold of silver. The Goldsmiths' Hall stamps this, and to counterfeit such a stamp involves the smith in heavy penalties, imprisonment and fines, with his trade insignia taken from him forever. In early days death was the penalty or lifelong penal servitude. But the wise march of time has naturally somewhat relaxed this Spartan law of punishment.—Annie Wakeman, in San Francisco Chronicle.

Circumstances the Test of Men—Grant, Lincoln, Cromwell.

The nature of every man is so mysterious, so immeasurable and unfathomable, that what seems to others the narrowest mental organization may contain within itself unexpected resources. This is the hidden cause of the invariable appearance of great men in times of national trial and disturbance. At such times, quiet unpretending individuals come to the front by the forces of nature that formerly lay concealed within them, and they win fame, perhaps immortal fame, like Cromwell, Grant and Lincoln, for qualities that would scarcely have attracted notice in common life and in ordinary times. The fact of such appearances of great men ought to warn us all against the presumption of setting bounds to the future of any one, except in matters where technical excellence is a necessity. If a man cannot play the fiddle at thirty years of age we may safely predict that he will never become an accomplished violinist, but when there is no technical obstacle the limits cannot be fixed. Scott fell into novel-writing accidentally, and a very trivial circumstance (a search for fishing-tackle that made him stumble upon the unfinished manuscript of "Waverly") caused him to resume it after a first abandonment. George Eliot spent her time in translating German philosophical books, not at all suspecting the existence of her own gifts as a novelist, until Lewes urged her to make experiments. A possible external cause in these cases would have left the gift dormant forever. If Byron had not appeared Scott would have remained the first poet, so that he would not have turned to prose; for Shelley and Keats counted for hardly anything in those days, and Wordsworth was unpopular. If Miss Evans had married a rich ordinary man the intellectual side of her nature would have overshadowed the artistic, and she never would have been anything more than a student and expounder of philosophy.

Unthinking people express an astonishment at examples of this kind which is in itself unreasonable. They think it very surprising that anyone should succeed in a pursuit for which he has not been trained, but that never happens.—From "Past, Present and Future," by Philip Gilbert Hamerton, in June Scribner's.

Consumption Surely Cured.

To the Editor—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and postoffice address. Respectfully.

COUNT ON US

WHY?

Because we are constantly on the lookout for the best possible value for the least amount of money, to offer you. Now, in order to ascertain whether or not we have accomplished our aim, stop in and look at our line of

LADIES SHOES

AT $1.50.

We have several dressy styles in them, and they wear well, too—so the wearer says. Then our good old city-made Shoe, at $2 00, lays them all out. We can truly say ti's the

BEST $2.00 LADIES' SHOE IN THE COUNTY, and we back every pair of them with our guarantee. Come a little further, say 50c., and you reach a Magnificent Line of Goods; Ten different kinds to select from at $2.50, and they are the newest styles and good wearers. Then the finer grades run in proportion—$3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00 in all the leading Hand-made Goods.

CHILDRENS' SHOES

in abundance. Spring Heels, all kinds, qualities and styles, running up large as No. 2. Beautiful line of City-made Goods. Our line of is complete, and for $3.00 we can give you the best Dress Shoe made for the money. We frequently have men tell us that they wear them right along for twelve months. Then we carry a line of fine Hand-made Goods in Bals., Button and Congress, and make to order and guarantee a fit in anything you want. The best in the county for $1.00. Full line of TENNIS and MUGWUMP SHOES; something cool for Men, Ladies and Children. Beautiful line of

MEN'S GOODS

PLOW SHOE

LADIES' OXFORD & OPERA SLIPPERS

a variety of new designs in them. Stop and look, it will do you good. We carry a line of

INFANT'S SHOES

that we have made up to our special order, and for comfort for the little folks we think they have no equal—C., D. and E. lasts, with tip and without. We buy our goods straight through from manufacturers and in quantities that enable us to offer the trade some inside advantages. Owing to the recent decline in we will let them go—large as 10½ for 90c. cash. Mundell's name and trade mark on every pair.

MUNDELL'S SOLAR TIP

Keep your head cool, then in order to have your feet made cool and comfortable, you will naturally find your way to
