THE PROHIBITION COLUMN, published elsewhere in the TRANSCRIPT, belongs to the Prohibitionists of Kent county. The space has been regularly paid for, and all matter which may appear in it will be from the hands of the committee appointed at the recent convention, and the editors of THE CHESTERTOWN TRANSCRIPT are in no way responsible for what may be said in this column. Nor do we want any inferences drawn in regard to our sympathy with or opposition to the movement.

A THOUGHT recording machine, is the latest of Edison's electrical visions.

THE CHESTERTOWN TRANSCRIPT will be sent from the present issue to the end of the year, December 31, for twenty-five cents.

"JOHN L. SULLIVAN for Congress," is the most striking advertisement of the season. The physical giant would make one of the most perfect political pigmies of the age.

IN THE death of Hon. Samuel S. Cox, American Democracy loses one of its most brilliant advocates; American literature, one of its most chaste and healthful writers, and the National House of Representatives, one of its most versatile and representative members.

THE new sugar refinery is now one of the most important of the industries which are promised to Baltimore in the near future. Baltimore was once one of the great sugar refining centres in the country, but by degrees her vast interests were absorbed and drawn into other channels until at present she has not a single refinery.

DEMOCRATIC political circles throughout Kent county are quiet, but from every section most satisfactory assurances of the success of the ticket are recieved. It becomes more and more evident that a ticket has been submitted to the people which will command a full party vote and draw from the opposition. A ticket nominated by the people from their own ranks, and which they propose to elect. With an unbroken Democratic vote, Kent county is one of the sure counties of the State, and our present ticket should preclude all possibility either of divided ranks or of any other than an enthusiastic support of the ticket.

BALTIMORE'S gala festival was seriously interfered with by the severe storm of last week, and what would otherwise have been one of the grandest and most enjoyable of any of the city's previous celebrations, was changed into a partial failure. Thousands of persons who expected to visit the city were kept away, and many of those who were there found it impossible to brave the continuation of stormy weather for the purpose of witnessing the carrying out of the elaborate program that had been arranged for the week's pleasure. It is estimated that the loss to Baltimore city caused by the inclement weather, was more than a million dollars. President Frank Brown's individual loss is put down at from forty-five to fifty thousand dollars. Under favorable circumstances the Exposition program, as arraigned for last week, would have been in every way a grand success, and Frank Brown, Esq., has as the great moving spirit of the whole affair, shown himself a man equal to the demands of an undertaking which would have bewildered and rendered others of less executive ability useless in so important an undertaking.

THE great storm which visited the Atlantic coast last week, was the most widespread in its destruction and the most severe which has been felt for more than thirty years. Advices are still being received of its almost unprecedented destruction of shipping and valuable property on the coast. Independent of extensive loss of life, it would be utterly impossible to estimate the value of property destroyed. The storm seemed to centre over the Delaware Breakwater, and more than three millions of dollars worth of vessels and shipping strewed the shore at and near Lewes, Delaware. The following in regard to the costly Breakwater may be of interest: "The present Breakwater was completed in 1828, at a cost of $2,123,505. It was 2,589 feet long, and is made of loose blocks of stone, weighing from 500 to 15,000 pounds, placed one on top of another. At the time of its construction vessels of 800 tons were the largest that came into the Capes. There is only twenty feet of water behind the stone pile, which is not sufficient to permit the larger class of vessels now plying up and down the coast to take refuge behind it. It has been proposed to build a new Breakwater off the Shears, farther up the bay, where the depth of 30 feet could be had. This, it is stated, would be ample depth for all kinds of vessels."

A FIRE broke out at Seaford, Del., at two o'clock yesterday morning. Engines were telegraphed for from Wilmington, and three were sent down at 4 o'clock by special train. One entire block was burned.

COMMUNICATED.

EDITORS TRANSCRIPT:—Your short article in your last issue on the sanitary condition of our town was well-timed and suggestive. I have never known it during a residence of over thirty years to be so dirty or so filled with foul smelling, disease-breeding odors and eminations.

I have had occasion of late to be in all the different sections, and find one as bad as the other, save on the water front. The health officer has striven very hard to correct existing abuses. The county papers have time and again published his notes of warning and advice on sanitary matters. It seems as far as Chestertown is concerned, they have fallen on stony ground. How can the authorities of the town expect any other than the present state of affairs so long as they allow hog pens and slaughter houses within the town limits? I am aware that they have been addressed on that subject by the Secretary of the county board of health. Mention has been made frequently in the papers and personal and individual complaint made, yet, still they remain. About one-tenth (perhaps not so large a per centage as that) of the taxes are paid by people who keep hogs, the other nine-tenths have to submit. Doctors and sanitarians tell us that hog pens and slaughter houses in small towns are fruitful sources of disease. I have personal knowledge given me by a competent, thoughtful physician of more than one case resulting in death that was directly traceable to contamination of the water supply by hog pens.

In connection with this it is well to call to mind the tax police conditions. The officer should inspect the town and compel the householders to keep their premises, especially their water-closets clean. If one officer cannot do it, then we want two.

The comfort of many a citizen of the town has been greatly interfered with this summer by nasty smells and sickening odors. It was the same last summer. Is this to continue? Are we to still pay big town taxes and be none the better off than under the old system of things that existed a few years since?

I trust the commissioners of the town—who are men of sense and character—will take some definate action on these questions, and if they are not going to give us relief from hog pens and slaughter houses then let us petition the next Legislature for the passage of a bill prohibiting their being kept within our limits.

INTEREST.

BITS POLITICAL.

Tariff reform, the slogan of the last national campaign, is still alive. There is no use disguising the fact, the only great issue in American politics to-day is, the one, the only one, does the government need to tax the people to the extent that they are now taxed, to carry on the needful operations of the government?—Marlborough Gazette.

It does not require the prophetic power of the seventh son of a seventh son to predict the defeat of the Republican ticket which was nominated in Cambridge on Tuesday. Any ordinary mind capable of looking at the situation with even a small degree of intelligence, would make such a prediction.—Cambridge Chronicle.

Mr. John B. Brown whose faction won in the recent primary fight in Queen Anne's county, Md., inspires his organ, the Record, of Centreville, to be very generous and magnanimous towards the defeated faction. Mr. Brown is quite diplomatic and we hope the Keating faction will, for the sake of honest Democracy, fall in and support the ticket heartily.—Smyrna Record.

Senator Hampton, of South Carolina, says that the attention of Republicans will be directed more particularly to Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina and perhaps Alabama, but expresses the opinion that they will fail in all, in view of the fact that the protection sentiment is rather decreasing than growing in the South.

Maryland has long held an honorable place in the Democratic household of the States. We cannot fritter away our county majorities by voting for our foes and maintaining our majority in the State. If you give away your county you give away your State. Are you ready to do this, Democrats of Cecil? Are you ready to stoop your shoulders to the same old yoke you once so joyfully threw off? It is the same old timber spliced on to black-jack end none the more savory for that.—Cecil Democrat.

The Democratic Convention of Anne Arundel county, held on Tuesday, of last week, was one marked by harmony, fair-dealing and a most commendable loyalty to party and party interests. Says the Anne Arundel Advertiser: "It was a body without the control of factions or unhealthy combination. Unity, harmony and a desire for the true basis of party success were the guiding stars of the convention.

The Montgomery county Republican Nominating Convention, met at Rockville, on Satuaday Sept. 14. The convention was equally divided between white and black men. A strong factional fight was anticipated, but owing to the preponderence of strength of one wing, the other was completely blocked in its expected political movements. The following resolutions were adopted: "1. That the Republicans of Montgomery county are unalterably opposed to the continuance of the canal as a water-way under its present management and to the appropriation of any more money by the State for repairs. 2. That if a responsible body of men undertake the repair of the canal and its management upon business principles, as a busines enterprise, the Republicans of Montgomery county favor such action by the Legislature as will put the control of the canal in such hands."

Queen Anne's county Republican primaries will be held on Sept. 21.

BALTIMORE'S POLITICAL MUDDLE.

Who Will be Mayor?—the Important Question to be Answered—Harmony not yet Secured.

[Special to the TRANSCRIPT.]

BALTIMORE, MD., Sept. 18, 1889.

EDITORS TRANSCRIPT:—Now that the long expected and anxiously awaited exposition is a thing of the past, only a washed-out aftermath in the shape of a second week's program remaining.

Baltimoreans are again on the eve of one of the most important, and what promises to be one of the most exciting and bitterly contested municipal elections ever known here. Election is but eight weeks off, and as yet both political households are in confusion. The primaries will take place the last of the month, and the contest will be short and vigorous. While internecine strife is agitating the soul of the Democracy, the Republicans are apparently pulling harmoniously together to advance the interest of their cause and strike a mighty blow for supremacy. There is much at stake.

The capture of Baltimore city means rich and almost unlimited spoils to be distributed among a lot of hungry clientage, the control of the next Legislature with the United States Senatorship as the plum in the pie, and the possibility of carrying the State two years hence.

Alexander Shaw, the wealthy coal merchant, will no doubt be the Republican nominee for mayor if he will accept, although City Councilman H. Webster Crowl, "the man with the iron cheek," is vigorously angling for the honor. While all appears serene within the Republican ranks, there is beneath the calm surface, a grumbling volcano, that causes the leaders considerable alarm. Ex-Sheriff Airey, W. W. Johnson and others of the Blaine wing, after carrying the last primaries are deeply chagrinned that the Congressional "combine," Messrs. McComas, Stockbridge, and Mudd, should join forces with the Gary-Henderson crowd and deal out to them all the good offices so far disposed of. The leaders of one side hate the leaders of the other side as cordially as his Satanic Majesty is supposed to hate holy water, and when it comes to unity and to pulling harmoniously together in the race for victory and spoils, there may be a serious hitch in the program. At least the Democrats seem to be confidently expecting such a denuement. But Kilrain confidently expected to find Sullivan in a poor condition on the memorable 8th of July.

The situation in the Democratic camp is unique and interesting to an outsider, but to the earnest and conscientious party worker is full of anxiety, doubt, and cause for grave alarm. For years there have been three clearly defined factions in this city, "Doc" Slater controlled the majority of the Eastern or "Old Town" wards; I. Freeman Rasin held the central and Southern wards in the hollow of his hand, and Frank Morrison, the "big chief" of the Crescent Club, bossed the Northern and Western sections. The principal conflicts have always been between Morrison and Rasin, the Slater element usually holding the balance of power and deciding every contest by the way their votes were thrown. Several years ago Rasin and Morrison united to crush Slater and nearly succeeded, but of late the latter has been slowly but surely gaining lost ground. The better element of the party, composed of leading and representative business men whose loyalty to principle overbalances their hunger and thirst for the political flesh pots, because disgusted with this kilkenny cat business, and in 1883 emphatically showed their displeasure by electing the "new judge," ticket. Since then the Independent Democrats have been an important factor in all municipal elections.

The situation just about now is like this: There are now four distinct and widely separated factions in the party; viz: The Morrison, Rasin and Slater factions, represented respectively by the Crescent, Calumet and Young Men's Democratic Clubs, and the Independent Democrats or "Mugwumps," represented by the Jefferson Democratic Association. As a leaven to this distracted mass, the Business Men's Democratic Association was organized last summer to solve the vexatious problem, and has been doing all the hard work. Prominent in its ranks are such well-known business men as ex-Judge Fisher, John E. Hurst, Gen. J. McKenny White, Col. Charles Marshall and Major R. M. Venable. In the Jefferson Association are S. Teakle Wallis, John K. Cowen, the Johnsons, the Crosses, W. L. Marbury and others. Big chief Morrison and the Crescent Club hove solemnly sworn they will support no candidate nominated at the primaries. Rasin will not allow Morrison to control the ticket, and the Independent Democrats will not support a ticket made by either. What is to be done?

Nobody knows, and nobody can suggest a way out of the labyrinth. It was rumored last week that the differences of the several factions had been adjusted and that Latrobe was the man. This, however, is scarcely likely in view of the rancorous animosity entertained towards him by the Slater-Morrison factions, and, however much Mr. Latrobe may be endorsed by the Business Men's Democracy, or supported by the Rasin element, the party would scarcely dare to risk their chances in the present disturbed condition of affairs by ignoring the wishes of a following which practically holds the balance of power. "Any man but Latrobe," is the present ominous warning that is shouted, and whose echo will resound in the campaign when the fight is hottest if the powers that be choose to pass it by unnoticed. Yet in the face of this opposition Mayor Latrobe smiles complacently and asks, "Who have they to put up against me who knows as much about affairs of the city as I do?" or, "Who will make a better mayor?" and the answer comes from the mouth of one of Frank Morrison's most trusted lieutenants, "If F. C. Latrobe is the only man in the Democratic party who can run the office of mayor, then the best thing to do is to abolish the office and go back to the town commissioners."

The names now most prominently mentioned are those of Skipwith Wilmer, U. Rufus Gill and Dr. J. Pembroke Thom. It would surprise no one, however, to see ex-Judge Fisher, the able and popular president of the Business Men's Democratic Association selected. B. J. FREDERICK.
