WHEAT & FERTILIZER DRILL
This drill is well known to the farmers all over the country and is the Farmer's Favorite, possessing a larger combination of practical devices for perfect work than any other drill manufactured. It stands Unrivalled in its manufacture and finish, for its excellence of work, convenience and certainty of operation.
ITS DISTRIBUTORS
carry each kernel of grain to a safe delivery into the seed bed.
THE FERTILIZER ATTACHMENT
applies its force to the distribution of the material to be distributed in such a ready and practical way, as to insure perfect and uniform distribution of the most obdurate and adhesive of the phosphates.
THE GRASS SEED
are sown broadcast, and may be sowed in front or rear of tubes as preferred.
The entire mechanism for driving the drill either in the sowing of grain or fertilizer is THE WONDER OF THIS AGE OF IMPROVEMENTS; the changes are almost instantly made, and are exact when made.
BOTH RUNNING WHEELS
are drivers and ratcheted, giving the same power for driving on side hill as on level ground. No skips or balks or waving of grain.
It has Broad Face Wheels, solid polished steel axles, double reversible polished steel points on the holes.
IS POSITIVE FORCE FEED!
IS LIGHT DRAFT!
IS FULLY WARRANTED!

AUTUMN DREAMS.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

When the maple turns to crimson,
And the sassafras to gold;
When the gentian's in the meadow
And the aster in the wold;
When the moon is lapped in vapor,
And the night in frosty cold;

When the chestnut burs are opened,
And the acorns drop like hail,
And the drowsy air is startled
With the thumping of the flail—
With the drumming of the partridge,
And the whistle of the quail;

Through the rustling woods I wander,
Through the jewels of the year,
From the yellow upland calling,
Seeking her who still is dear;
She is near me in the autumn,
She, the beautiful, is near.

Through the smoke of burning summer,
When the weary wings are still,
I can see her in the valley,
I can hear her on the hill,
In the splendor of the woodlands,
In the whisper of the rill.

For the shores of earth and heaven
Meet, and mingle in the blue;
She can wander down the glory
To the places that she knew,
Where the happy lovers wandered
In the days when life was true.

So I think when days are sweetest,
And the world is wholly fair,
She may sometimes steal upon me,
Through the dimness of the air.
With the cross upon her bosom,
And the amaranth in her hair.

Once to meet her, ah! to meet her,
And to hold her gently fast,
Till I blessed her, till she blessed me—
That were happiness at last,
That were bliss beyond our meetings
In the autumn of the past.

THE NEGRO PROBLEM.

A Richmond Preacher Talks Plainly to His New England Brethren.

Dr. A. E. Dickerson, of Richmond, has been attending some big baptist meetings in New England.

At one place he was called upon to explain the negro problem. He replied: You will not believe me on that subject. You will accept as true my testimony about any thing else, but not as to this. And yet there ought to be a good understanding between the Christian people of the two great sections of the country as to our colored friends. You know that you here are more responsible for the bringing of the negro to America than we are. Your ships brought them over and you sent them South, only when their labor ceased to be remunerative to you, and you did not give them away when you sent them to us. You sold them for all they were worth. I do not say this to reproach you. You are no more responsible for what your great-grandfathers did than I am for what my grandfather did. And besides, the hand of the Lord was in it all, and it has been overuled for good. There are more professing Christians among the colored people of the South to-day than we have made converts among the heathen nations for the last hundred years, counting all that has been done in the Foreign Mission work by all denominations of Christians.

COLORED PREACAERS.

And now, as we are preparing colored preachers (and we have seventy of them in the Theological Seminary in Richmond) for missionary work, Africa is thrown open to the Gospel and the great missionary societies of the world are looking to the colored Christians of the South for their standard bearers to take the Congo country and all of Africa for Christ. If we believe that the God of nations is managing affairs in this world, ought we not to bury our petty prejudices and look at this great negro problem with something of that serene thoughtfulness with which it will be viewed fifty years to come, when the great designs of Providence in this matter will be more fully developed.

WHAT THE WHITES ARE DOING.

You ask me what the Southern whites are doing for the education of the colored people? Well, counting what the public schools for colored children have cost I suppose the whites of the South have, since the war, contributed not less than seventy-five millions of dollars for the education of their colored friends. In any just estimate of what has been done this must be taken into account, for that amount came out of the hard earnings of the whites, many of whom, after paying this, did not have enough left to educate their own children.

VOTING IN THE SOUTH.

You ask me about voting in the South, and I tell you very honestly it is very much like voting here in the North. Many elections pass off very quietly and no one tries to boss his neighbor's vote. Then again there is a mighty struggle, and the price of a vote jumps up. You know how it is here when the proprietors of the great factories go among their operatives and in one way and another try to make their employees vote as their employers wish them to vote. You know how it is out West when a man like Dudley issues an order that they must be taken in blocks of five. Well, human nature is about the same in the South as it is in the North, and the average politician down there does not any more search the sacred Scriptures or hold a prayer meeting to secure Divine guidance as to the means to be used in carrying an elections than you do up here. I am not talking as to how it will be done when the millenium comes, but as to how it is done in this day of sin and sinners.

THE COLORED MAN'S FRIEND.

I do not speak as a party man, but as one who is honestly looking to the good of the whole people—colored as well as white. You may say that I am less concerned about the colored folk than you are, but you are mistaken as to that. With no desire to boast, I tell you I am doing the best I can to elevate the colored people, and thousands more of the white people of the South are doing far more than I am doing, for they have more ability than I have with which to help.

If you ask me who are the real enemies to the negro, I reply—every man, woman or child who seeks to keep up war between the two races. Whoever helps to widen the breach between the races by misrepresenting the true condition of affairs in the South is an enemy to both races and deserves the contempt of both alike.

NO COLORED OFFICERS.

I wish the colored people to have all that belongs to them, but I do not wish to see a man put into office because he is a black man. That has been tried in the south, and the result was such that the white people of the South never intend to let it be tried again. They owe it to you people of the North who have made such large investments in the South; they owe it to themselves and to their children's children; they owe it to the colored people, who would suffer even more than the whites by such a wrecking of our civilization; they owe it to the progress of the nineteenth century; they owe it to the God of Heaven to resist every effort to put back their fair southern land where it was in the dark days and years which followed Appomattox.

If the colored people were persecuted in the South, why do they not come North? They have only to spend two or three dollars to get upon northern soil and spend the rest of their lives with you. What a good time they might have here in your New England factories, but you don't want them and they don't want you. I was in a village up here recently in which there was but one colored man. He was like a blackberry swimming in a great pan of milk, but he was not happy. His heart longed to see once more Dixie's land.

A BIG THING.

This negro problem is a bigger thing than many of you think, and its solution is to be a thing of the ages. Unless you are willing to come South and personally look after this people you had better trust to the true Christian people of the South to do the best they can, without being suspected and lectured and misrepresented as to their aims and purposes. We sought the good of the colored people before ever you took them in hand. When you marched into Richmond in 1865 you found 8,000 colored people church members in that city, which, then had but 60,000 inhabitants. For thirty years before you came, Dr. Ryland, our college president, had been the pastor of one of our colored churches. We are now doing something in one line or another for the colored folk, and we will do all the more if you will give us credit for what we are doing and not judge us too severely as to our aims and purposes.—Newport News Advance.

He Saw a Difference.

"Madam," said the gallant old man after obeying her request to close the car window, "I was just thinking how different the women of to-day are from those of ten or fifteen years ago in the matter of travel. Formerly a lady who had to journey alone was—"

"Yes sir," she interrupted, "but will you please tell me if I am on the right train for Buffalo?"

"You are madam. As I was saying, the women of ten years ago were continually worrying for fear—"

"And does this car go right through without change?"

"It does madam. I was going to say that the women—"

"And do you think my trunk will go right through with me?"

"Of course madam. In former years a woman traveling alone was afraid that—"

"You are sure we are on the right train?" she interrupted.

"Very sure."

"And we won't change?"

"No'm."

"And we get in at 6 o'clock?"

"We do."

"And they'll call out the station when we get there?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, I hope nothing will happen, but I'm nervous, very nervous. Would you mind asking the conductor if we are likely to have a collision, go through a bridge, or get in an hour late?"

And the gallant old man, who saw such a great difference in the women traveling to-day and those of ten years ago, retired into his shell, looking as if something had rubbed against his placidity of mind.

Philosophy from Phineas T.

If you would be as happy as a child, please one.

Childish laughter is the echo of heavenly music.

The noblest art is that of making others happy.

Amusement to children is like rain to flowers.

Wholesome recreation conquers evil thoughts.

The author of harmless mirth is a public benefactor.

Innocent amusement transforms tears into rainbows.
