THE SENATORSHIP.

The formal announcement by Governor Jackson at Annapolis last week, declaring himself a candidate for the United States Senatorship as the successor of Senator E. K. Wilson, virtually reduces the contest to Senator Wilson and Gov. Jackson, and the General Assembly of Maryland will be called upon to decide between the respective qualifications and fitness of these two gentlemen for the position of a representative in the Senate of the United States, a position which should not be entrusted to an unworthy stewardship. In regard to this matter, however, the people and the press of the State have long since dicided, and Senator Wilson is demanded as his own successor. As a representative of his district, Senator Wilson has made a most enviable record. His speeches upon the floor of the Senate Chamber upon all questions of national importance have attracted the attention not only of party friends, but have commanded the respect of the most eminent statesmen and profound thinkers of the opposition. His record in the halls of legislation is one of which his constituency may well feel a sense of pride, nor has any of his public utterances ever received the condemnation of his party. A fluent and brilliant speaker, a jurist schooled in a careful and wise discrimination of the merits and demerits of complex questions of public policy and national legislation, Senator Wilson, with his experience is now prepared to add new lustre to his own as well as to the name of his State. Gov. Jackson is a business man of rare ability, and has made a good Governor, but as far as being the peer of Senator Wilson, James A. Pearce, John B. Brown or several other gentlemen who have been prominently spoken of for the Senatorship, Mr. Jackson is not. As a representative in the halls of national legislation his lack of qualification would be most glaring. Mr. Jackson's relation to his party would form an almost insurmountable barrier to his election. He is not, and has never been a people's man. Senator Wilson on the contrary is demanded by the people as their representative in the United States Senate. In advocating the election of Senator Wilson, it is safe to say that we are expressing the feelings of four-fifths of the voters of Kent county, and a majority of the voters of the Eastern Shore as well as that of the State at large.

BALLOT REFORM.

The members of the present Legislature find themselves confronted by a question of vital importance, both to the life of their party and the good government of the State. The Democratic party stands before the people pledged to honest elections and ballot reform. Upon its promises made as we believe in entire good faith, the control of the State government, was entrusted to the party's keeping last fall, and now the people demand of their representatives that these pledges be kept, and the State be relieved of the oppression of a corrupt ballot system and purer methods be substituted. For either of the great parties to deny that glaring evils have crept into our political system and that the intelligent voice of the people as expressed through the ballot-box is to a great extent perverted or entirely overcome, it would be blind nonsense to deny.

So far as the Australian Ballot System is concerned, while the Democratic party and Mr. Gorman as a prominent member of the party in unequivocal terms pledged itself to a pure ballot and sweeping reforms in the method of elections, and though many Democrats may believe that the Austrailian system with proper modifications so that a more thorough harmony with our institutions may be brought about, is the most desirable reform which presents itself at present, we fail to see that the adoption of a different method, bringing the desired result would be a violation of party pledges or a repudiation of a desire to protest to the fullest extent the sacredness of the ballot.

Mr. Gorman in opposing the Australian law did not as we understand it compromise either his own position or that of his party as being desirous of a general reform. If Mr. Gorman thinks the system detrimental to his party and can devise any other method carrying with it a bona fide spirit of reform and at the same time advance the interest of his party in a legitimate way, Mr. Gorman was in duty bound to speak.

Whether or not Mr. Gorman in his speech before the Democratic editors of the State at Rennert's Hotel, was sounding a note of warning in order that personal or selfish motives could be carried out we are unable to say; but we do say, that taking the gentleman's utterances at that time as a basis for criticism, he has been subjected to unwarranted censure. The Democratic party has pledged itself to a reform which to ignore at the dictation of Mr. Gorman or any other man or set of men, means political suicide. The people demand it and it must come, either in the form of the Australian system or one offering additional facilities for the purifying of elections as held under our present laws. So far as the expense of the Australian law is concerned, it were safe to say, that the most elaborate law which could be devised, carrying with it even superfluous restrictions, could have been carried out to the very letter at an expense fully one-fourth less than was expended in the recent election in Kent county. There is no law that can be enacted which corrupt men cannot in a measure evade and render null and void. The wholesale use of money, and the exercise of positions of authority to prevent the full and free expressions of the people, is the political curse of the times, which both the Australian and Pearce election laws with all of their claimed cumbrous elaboration, would scarce be equal to overcome. Any law which removes the voter from the restrictions of bulldozing employers and the corrupting influences of money, is desirable, and however much the Australiam law may lack in other respects it more nearly approaches such a law than any which has ever been tried in the American election system.

Did it lose Boston to the Democracy? Not at all, for while Boston, controlled by local influences and issues, drifted from her Democratic mooring, between twenty and thirty Republican towns under the salutory influences of the system, enrolled themselves in the Democratic list. Wherever the system has been used, its effects have been salutary, and purer politics have followed its adoption. Should, however, the Australian law be found unsuited to our institutions, public sentiment demands that some law be passed embracing substantially its features of reform, and the present Legislature should see that party pledges are redeemed and the good faith of the party is kept.

THE CONTEST ENDED.

The postoffice fight, it appears, is at last brought to a close, and Hiram Brown is the successful man who has plucked the tempting plum from his competitors after one of the most hotly contested fights ever known in Kent county postoffice affairs.

No formal announcement has been sent by President Harrison, but Mr. B. returned from Washington yesterday and says that Mr. Clarkson told him positively that he was the successful applicant, and that the appointment was definitely settled upon on Saturday last. Mr. Brown says that he owes his successful canvass to the steadfast adherance of friends, and the untiring energy and perseverance of his wife, who has been at Washington since Thursday last. Mr. Brown is to be congratulated upon his success and we wish him a successful and entirely satislactory administration of postoffice affairs. He claims that there is no possibility of a hitch and his appointment was formally announced yesterday.

THE columns of the TRANSCRIPT are open to all communications bearing upon subjects of public and general interest. All communications of a personal character or in which personal controversies of an improper nature are indulged will, however, be excluded.

ANOTHER editor has gone right, and in conssequence, finds himself placidly sailing on an illimitable sea of matrimonial joy. Samuel N. Smith, Jr., the Junior editor of the Centreville Record, was married to Miss Sallie N. Bishop, on Thursday last. Owing to the recent death of relatives of both the bride and bridegroom the marriage was very quiet. Mr. Smith will accept our congratulations, and to both Mr. and Mrs. Smith we extend our very best wishes for a long, happy and successfu married life.

THE Agricultural Department has just issued a statement of the estimated totals of the crops in the various states for the year 1889. According to this report the total corn crop for the year was 2,112,892,000 bushels of corn, raised on 78,319,651 acres, and worth $597,918,829. The corn crop in Maryland was 15,105,000 bushels, raised on 733,289 acres, and worth $6,495,031.

The total wheat crop was 490,560,000 bushels, raised on 38,123,859 acres, and worth $342491,707. The Maryland crop was 6,171,000 bushels, raised on 546,064 acres, and worth $4,998,124.

The total oat crop was 751,515,000 bushels, raised on 27,462,316 acres and worth $171,781,000. The crop in Maryland was 2,203,000 bushels, raised on 117,786 acres, and worth $660,779.

THE GRIPPE continues its ravages in New York and elsewhere, and having almost exhausted its efforts to place the American portion of our population in quarantine, it has tried its hand on the Chinese population of Baltimore city and the Celestials are now trying themselves at a real substantial sneeze.

In New York city the trouble has assumed serious proportions. Says a correspondent to the Baltimore Sun:

The infinite variety of its complications furnish an amusing chapter to the doleful record. There is a famine in hearses. They must be secured weeks in advance like seats at a successful play. In consequence of the number of funerals it is almost impossible to get a carriage during the day from any of the livery stables. The grave-diggers are worn out with constant and unremitted toil. At Calvary Cemetery last week the burials averaged 150 a day, and this week opened fairly to keep up the average. Antipyrine, the drug so much used in the treatment of the grip, commands exorbitant prices, so low has the stock run down. Altogether our condition under influenza influences is such as to make people sigh for the old-fashioned winter, when the snow made the streets impassable and the cold froze all such epidemic germs out of existence.

STATE AND PENINSULA.

A seven-year-old daughter of John L. Bickle, Esq., of Hagerstown, was fatally burned by the accidental upsetting of a coal oil lamp on Friday night.

Two years ago Mrs. James M. Hood, of Frederick, gave $10,000 to the Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, Pa., for the building and equipment of an observatory to be known as the Daniel Scholl Observatory, in memory of her father. A year later she gave an additional $5000 for the same object, and on Wednesday last, New Year's Day, she sent another check for the same amount, making $20,000 in all contributed thus far for this purpose.

Wm. M. Singerly, proprietor of the Philadelphia Record, has purchased for $5,000 the farm of Rev. Vaughn Smith, situated about two miles from Elkton, on the Blue Ball road, and containing 112 acres.

THE EASTERN SHORE of Maryland is confessedly the garden spot of the world; in fact we are inclined to think that Eden was situated here rather than on the other side of Jordan, a supposition which becomes more probable when we recall the story of Adam's fall, which was far more likely to have been due to a luscious Eastern Shore peach than to an ordinary apple. Baltimore is the natural market for the varied products of this section, and the efforts which have been made by the Baltimore SUN to advance the interests of the Eastern Shore and to develop its manifold resources deserve hearty recognition. The SUN knows a good thing when it sees it, and is fond of the Eastern Shore, and the Eastern Shore is no less fond of the SUN, which gives us all the news at home or abroad, and never fails to defend and promote Maryland interests.

Our aim is to do work in the best style, and to please people who appreciate carefully-made garments. Our trade has constantly increased, and we rarely lose a customer who once comes to us.

Having placed in st[illegible] preparatory to the approaching Christmas Holidays a fine and extensive assortment of Solid Gold and Silver Watches and Jewelry suitable for Holiday Presents, I would call the attention of my patrons to this fact, and assure them that upon examination of my stock they will find that they can be suited as well at my store, both in quality and price, as in the city.
