...RSDAY, JANUARY 30, 1890.

COLLINS & HOPPER,

EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

SENATOR INGALLS, in his oration in the Senate the other day on the race issue, described the Southern people as unreconciled and "reinforcing the cowardly and degraded elements in the North that sympathized with treason." By "the cowardly and degraded elements in the North" he meant to designate the Democrats of that section—men like Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Thurman, Mr. Phelps, and hundreds of thousands of others who are superior to the orator in all the qualities that make a good, honest, self-reliant citizen. The vision that sees in the Democrats of the North only "degraded elements" cannot be trusted, of course, to see the truth about Southern democrats. Balto. Sun.

OYSTER LEGISLATION.

A Bill to be Presented to the Legislature.

Messrs. John K. Cowan, Wm. T. Brantly, Charles M. Howard, James D. Cotter and Prof. W. K. Brooks, of the Johns Hopkins University, have recommended a law based upon that suggested by Prof. Brooks in 1884 for the protection and preservation of oysters in Maryland waters.

It is said to be probable that ex-State Senator Hodson, of Somerset county, whose views are similar to those embodied in the bill will take the bill to Annapolis. The committee in their report stated that they had examined the existing laws on the subject and consider them crude, imperfect and radically defective. Oysters, the report declares, are yearly decreasing in numbers, and the gradual annihilation of the industry is certain.

Here is what the report further says: "The State should create an oyster commission, and give to it the administration of the oyster laws and the oyster police. It should define the term 'natural bed' as used in our planting law, and make the tenue under that law definite and vested. It might pass a law requiring packers to return clean oyster shells to places specified by the oyster commission, and at such time as they direct. It should be made a misdemeanor for any one to use oyster shells in this State for the manufacture of lime, iron or roads, of for fertilizing, or to sell them for any such purposes. Such waste should be forbidden by law until our people learn the value of the shells. When they understand this there will be no need to forbid it.

"These provisions should be made law immediately, and there is no excuse or occasion for delay. But they are only partial reforms. One thing remains to be done by the State if this great mine of wealth is to be most effectively developed, and that is the conversion of some, at least, of our oyster beds from a common into private property, either by sale or lease, and the creation and adequate protection of private property in oysters and in beds to be made by private planting.

CLOVER ENSILAGE SUPPOSED TO BE THE CAUSE.

Nearly all the Horses, Mules and Colts on a Farm Die in Less Than One Week.

From Friday, January 17, to Tuesday the 21st, just four days, Dr. S. T. Earle has lost upon the farm rented from his father, Richard T. Earle, Esq., and upon which he has Mr. Wm. T. Hammond as manager, three valuable mares, two of which had colts by their sides, one yearling colt and a pair of mules, from what is supposed to be poison caused by eating clover ensilage cured upon the farm.

Last fall Mr. Richard T. Earle, who exercises considerable care and time in the management of the farm for his son, who resides in Baltimore, had dug a large silo pit in the field, large enough to hold 17 large wagon loads, and which he had filled with green clover. After filling with clover, a quantity of wheat straw was put on top of it and then covered with dirt. It remained in this condition until about four weeks ago when it was opened and its contents began to be fed to the stock upon the farm. At first they refused to eat it, but in a short while began to prefer it to even pure timothy hay or blade fodder and to gain flesh rapidly. On Thursday evening when Mr. Hammond had them put in their stalls in the stable, they seemed to be in the best of condition, running and jumping and had no symptoms of sickness.

On going to the stables on Friday morning Mr. Hammond was surprised to find the door open and one of the mares lying just outside barely alive. He then went inside the stable and found another one lying down and nearly dead. These two died in a short while and another one on Saturday, the colt on Sunday and the mules last Monday and Tuesday. Dr. Hanley, who had the cases in hand, pronounced them as being caused from some poisonous substance and fears that all of the horses and mules that has eaten of the ensilage will die. The cattle on the farm that have eaten of it do no seem to be effected at all, and thrive upon it better than any food they have ever been fed upon.

A portion of the stomach of one of the dead horses and a small quantity of ensilage have been sent to the city to be analyzed and it will then be learned whether or not the poison was caused by the ensilage, or some poisonous weed that horses and cattle would have avoided in its green state, but liable to eat after going through the process of fermentation. It is hoped that none of the cattle will be similarly effected, and that the remaining horses will survive the dreaded malady.

Since the above was written we have been informed by Mr. Earle that three more died on Thursday and Friday and two more are in such a condition as to be impossible to live many hours longer. It is now supposed that all the horses and mules that have eaten of the ensilage will die. The report from the analyst has not yet been received, but Mr. Earle is confident that eating of the ensilage is the cause.—Centreville Record.

THE EASTERN SHORE of Maryland is confessedly the garden spot of the world; in fact we are inclined to think that Eden was situated here rather than on the other side of Jordan, a supposition which becomes more probable when we recall the story of Adam's fall, which was far more likely to have been due to a luscious Eastern Shore peach than to an ordinary apple. Baltimore is the natural market for the varied products of this section, and the efforts which have been made by the Baltimore SUN to advance the interests of the Eastern Shore and to develop its manifold resources deserve hearty recognition. The SUN knows a good thing when it sees it, and is fond of the Eastern Shore, and the Eastern Shore is no less fond of the SUN, which gives us all the news at home or abroad, and never fails to defend and promote Maryland interests.

DEATH OF WALTER F. HARMON.

One of Centreville's Most Prominent and Useful Citizens Suddenly Expires.

Walter F. Harman, one of Centreville's most prominent and useful citizen died suddenly at his home in that town on Saturday morning last, of heart disease. Says the Centreville Observer: "Never before in the history of Centreville have the residents of this town sustained a greater shock, nor has there ever been more general sorrow expressed by its citizens, than when, on Saturday morning last, it was learned that W. F. Harman had died almost instantly of heart disease."

Mr. Harman was born in Centreville on March 11, 1853 and was 36 years 10 months and 13 days old at the time of his death. He was one of the leading members of the M. E. Church, and superintendent of the Sunday school, which calling he has filled with usefulness and credit. Out of respect to the deceased the main body of the church and the Sunday-school room were draped in mourning and memorial services held in that church on Sunday last.

In politics Mr. Harman was identified with democracy until four years ago when he became a staunch supporter of prohibition and joined that party, and since that time has been one of its most prominent members in this State. He was a delegate to the National Convention of the Prohibition party held at Indiannapolis in 1888, when Fisk and Brooks were nominated as candidates for President and Vice-President. In the same year he was candidate for Congress from the First Congressional District, and received the largest vote ever polled by an candidate of his party in theis district.

He was at the time of his death one of the commissioners of Centreville and it is largely due to his enterprise and engergy that the recently erected water works were placed in that town. He was instrumental in many other improvments and erected for his own business (confectionery and backing) the finest building in the town, which is known as the "Harman Building."

Mr. Harman's funeral took place at 10.30 A. M. Tuesday morning last, and through respect to his memory the business houses of the town were closed during the progress of the funeral ceremonies.

NO MARYLANDER should be without the Baltimore SUN, which shines for all, but for Marylanders with especial brightness. It knows no East, no West, no North, no South where Maryland concerned, but is interested in every section of the State alike, and devotes itself assiduously to the work of building it up and keeping it in the front of the sisterhood of Commonwealths. It is a great paper and Maryland should be proud of it.

PROFESSIONAL NOTICE.

On account of my health, I am compelled to restrict the territory my practice has some way gained. I have over-reached my strength, which is not equal to the task which has been before it the last three years, and has been steadily failing since November, '88, while my field of work as steadily extending, until now I must confine my practice to the immediate vicinity and office. The long drives and the number of them are not only breaking down my health, but have caused almost entire absence from the office—at least the greater part of the day, and sometimes all day. I shall in future give my office that attention it requires. I regret to be forced to take this step, but my health demands it. I must use this means to regain the health lost, before it is permanently broken, which will be the case if I continue the over-work and exposure which the long drives necessarily subject me to. If I can be of any service to my farther-off patients at the office or through the mails, I will gladly do so. Will be at my office promptly from 9 A. M. to 12 M.; 3 to 4 P. M., and 7 to 9 P. M., Sundays excepted.

A PRACTICAL POET

Come around to SHAW'S and see a pair
Of Shoes whose great attraction,
Is that they will not rip or tear,
But give you satisfaction.

Young man, we have a pair for you
Whatever be your station,
We surely can produce a Shoe
To suit your occupation.

A pair for you whose feet may tread
The gorgeous halls of State;
A pair for you whom fate has led
On richer men to wait.

I have a pair for all who will,
Whatever he may follow;
We care not so he pay the bill,
We want the mighty dollar.
