COLLINS & HOPPER,
EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

SAYS the Baltimore Sun: Baltimore's first month under the high license law has been more than satisfactory. Over 1,000 saloons have been forced out of business, arrests have decreased and the annual revenue has increased from less than $150,000 under low license to more than $460,000 under high license, of which the city gets $350,000, where it formerly received nothing. The license fee is $250.

THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS still hang fire in the appointment of a commander of the State fishery force. It is claimed by some that the matter will be allowed to slumber quietly on until after the congressional convention. Kent, as well as Queen Anne's, is a unit for Col. Leggs appointment to the position now filled by Commander Plowman. A large Kent delegation, however, which has visited Annapolis, was divided between Captains Wm. Durden, J. B. Willson and Captain Horney for the command of the sloop Helen M. Baughman. Captain Howard has forged to the front as a dangerous competitor for Plowman's position. Governor Jackson is said to favor the gallant Captain for commander and if he can get Comptroller Baughman, who still closely adheres to Plowman, to his standard his prospects are considered to be bright. A recent dispatch from Annapolis, asserted that "It is said by some that he, (Howard) will eventually be able to bring one of the other members over to him. But Treasurer Brown sticks to Legg, and it is asserted very positively that Governor Jackson will never vote for Plowman. As matters now stand it is a toss-up between Plowman, Legg and Howard. Unquestionably the strongest showing in the way of delegations made yesterday was made by Col. Legg. Delegations from Queen Anne's and Kent counties and Baltimore city went before the board for him, and arguments were made by Senator John B. Brown and W. Scott Roberts, of Queen Anne's county, and Capt. Hanson P. Barnes and Wm. H. Thompson, of Baltimore, and others.

WHOM SHALL IT BE?

Queen Anne's is earnestly placing her Congressional guns in position and the respective champions of their respective favorites are forcing them to the front. "H." in the Centreville Observer of the 24th inst. says of Hon. Chas. H. Gibson:

"Very fortunately for us the gentleman who now represents this Congressional district is of our 'native heath,' and a true man to the interests of his people. Whatever others (who know him not) may say of him, we say he has labored honestly, earnestly and efficiently for the good of our people and for the abiding interest of the party he represents. When he shall retire from his legislative duties, I can say with the unanimous assent of our people—'Well done thou good and faithful servant.'"

"H." proceeds further and has the following to say of his favorite as Mr. Gibson's successor:

"It has been many a day since our county has had a representative to respond to the roll-call in the national Legislature. This circumstance has not been due to the fact that there has been any dearth of good material, but simply because we have been so thoroughly complacent and in accord with the best interests of our party, and to the detriment of local interest and preference. We now think that our long subservience to the interests of our sister counties and our tried and never-failing support of the cause of Democracy entitles us to name the man who shall represent our people in the coming Congress. We have 'in our minds,' a man who is, in my humble opinion, thoroughly capacitated to make us a most able, honest and diligent representative; that man is A. R. Weedon. I have known him from my boyhood, have been intimately associated with him since I left my Alma Mater, some 12 years ago, and have found him a man to respect and admire. No truer man lives in the State, no man dare challenge him as to his integrity, and the better you know him the better you like him, and the more you are associated with him, the more you find in him. He has calm, deliberate judgment, is thoroughly versed in the law, knows the needs of the people and will make haste and be diligent to shape legislation so as to improve the condition of our agriculturists and do all he can that may trend to the prosperity of our country."

OAKLAND, MD., June 22.—The heaviest rainstorm within the recollection of the oldest residents of Oakland visited this section yesterday. At an early hour heavy rain began to fall, accompanied by thunder and lightning, and continued to fall almost incessantly until about noon, when there was a cloud burst, and for two hours the rain fell in great sheets, deluging the town and in some places washing the streets so badly as to make them almost impassable. Factory run, which passes through the business portion of the town, was higher than was ever known before. Second street was flooded and the water was nearly up to the first floor of the Garrett County Bank building. Much damage was done to growing crops. The damage to public roads and bridges will be heavy. A number of persons were so badly frightened by the terrific thunder and lightning that they were made sick.

FOURTH OF JULY EXCURSIONS.—The Baltimore and Ohio R. R. Co. will sell excursion tickets to and from all stations on its lines east of the Ohio river at reduced rates on account of the National Holiday. COMMUNICATED.

CHESTERTOWN, June 24, 1890.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—As it may be of interest to those who participated in the oratorical contest on the 23d instant, as well as to their friends, to know just what was considered by the judges, I send you this communication.

Each speaker, at the close of his effort, was marked by each of the judges, according to his private judgment, upon a scale from one to ten, in four prime elements of elocution, viz.: Memory, manner (including attitude, gesture and play of feature), voice and pronunciation. The average of each speaker was thus obtained, and those averages determined the award; but it may be added that in this instance the arbitrary result of these averages coincided with the result which would have been reached without the adoption of such a scale of marking.

It will be observed that manner and voice are in a large degree natural gifts, and that while these count largely—where a judicious choice of declamation has been made—memory and pronunciation are more controlled by study and practice, and more strengthened and ensured by resolute and persistent effort. The first honor man in the writer's class graduating—eighty-eight—was one of the worst stammerers ever heard, but after he had started himself by the exercise of his strong will he could read the Latin and Greek poets in a manner that commanded the admiration of both students and professors. After the lapse of 30 years, I can see him now, with closed eyes, compressed lips and swaying body, standing in his place, making ready for his recitation, and I can hear the music of his voice, now hushed in death, as he scanned the liquidd lines of Virgil and the stately metres of Homer.

It is no small compliment to the earnestness and fidelity of the speakers in the recent contest, to say that each one received from all three of the judges ten on memory, and it is simple justice to say that all did well in every respect.

Where Mr Geoghegan was adjudged to be first, it was an honor to Mr. Bowers to be second; and where Mr. Bowers was adjudged second, Mr. Geoghegan may regard himself as truly fortunate to have attained the second place. Mr. Bowers and Mr. Geoghegan have each gifts which should stimulated them to the cultivation of their talents, not for meretricious display which mars true oratory, but for the genuine use and control of their powers of elocution in the service of truth and right in their respective spheres and avocations. Had there been a third prize it would have been awarded to Mr. Usilton, who made a close third, and who, in play of features and in successful identification with his subject, was perhaps fully equal to any.

Our young men must not forget that mere oratorical power is an idle gift, and that "the curse of this country is eloquent men." They should remember that the great masters of oratory "never permitted any talent—neither voice, rythm, poetic, power, anecdote, sarcasm—to appear for show; that they preferred their integrity to their talent, and esteemed that object for which they toiled, whether the prosperity of their country or the laws, or a reformation, or liberty of speech or the press, or morals, as above the whole world and themselves also."

ONE OF THE JUDGES.

PHENOMENA IN PEACHES.

Two Delaware Orchards With Plenty of Fruit.

A drive through what ought to be the center of the peach belt—Lower Kent and Upper Sussex counties, will convince any one that the much-abused peach liar of this Peninsula will have no chance to get his work in this season, for the simple reason that there are no peaches to lie about. All along the highways stand mile after mile of well-kept and thrifty-looking peach orchards, the ground beneath the trees harrowed and rolled, till not a blade of grass is left to rob the trees of even the very smallest fraction of the nutrition the earth may possesss, and the trees themselves freighted with bright-looking foliage, but not a peach to be seen outside of two orchards in all Kent county.

These two orchards located, one almost at the extreme northern end of the county, and the other at the extreme southern end, stand in the strongest contrast to all their neighbors, being heavily laden with finely developed fruit. How this peculiar phenomenon has been brought about is puzzling the wisest and most experienced peach-growers there. The orchard at the upper end of the county is on the "Woodland Beach" farm, and stands close to the Delaware bay. Back of it all along are orchards, many of them well sheltered by heavy woodlands, yet in all of them the fruit was killed by the cold, sleety rains of March and April, while here is an orchard unsheltered and exposed to all the elements, almost on the bay shore, whose buds weathered all the storms and frosts, and are now healthy-looking fruit. Their immunity is not due to their peculiar brand, for peaches of many different varieties are represented in the orchard.

Down in North Inderkill Hundred, on the Dr. Ashcraft farm is the only other orchard, so far as can be ascertained, that gives promise of any peaches in Kent county. For the existence of peaches here, when all around are other orchards equally as well kept, and containing trees of the same varieties, with not a peach to be found in them, there is likewise no explanations. Peach growers can give no explanation of the mystery. They only know that the phenomena exists, and that is all.

On account of the dearth of peaches here, H. A. Richardson, of the firm of Richardson & Robbins, the most extensive fruit canners in Delaware, went to California about a month since to endeavor to make arrangements to have this season's pack put up there to fill orders already contracted for. He returned last Monday night. In regard to the California peach, he says that while it is fine-looking and handsome in color, it is not of as fine a flavor as the Maryland and Delaware peach. The fruit sells by the pound there and on account of the dearth of peaches on this Peninsula the California growers have pushed the prices up. In one week the price has jumped from 1½ per pound to 3 cents per pound in the orchards. Chicago dealers, Mr. Richardson says, are contracting for large quantities. The freight on the fruit from the California orchards to Chicago will be $700 per carload of 500 baskets.—Baltimore American.

Literary Notes.

The opening and closing scenes of Mr. Besant's new novel, Armorel of Lyonesse, are laid among the Scilly Islands. Tradition relates that these islands, now many miles from the main-land, were once united to Cornwall by a region of extreme fertility. This was the ancient country of Lyonesse. It was inhabited by a people remarkable for their industry and piety. No less than one hundred and forty churches stood over that region which is now a waste of waters; and the rocks called the Seven Stones are said to mark the place of a large city. According to an old English chronicle, Lyonesse was overwhelmed by an inundation of the sea on the 11th of November, 1099.

EXCURSIONS TO COLORADO.—Excursion tickets to Colorado Springs, Denver and Pueblo are now on sale at all coupon ticket offices of the B. & O. R. R. at reduced rates, valid for return journey until October 31st, 1890.

STATE AND PENINSULA.

A steam packet line will be established in July between Crisfield and Norfolk.

The county tax rate of Caroline is 92½ cents on the $100. The collectors owe the county $32,000.

The farmers' picnic at Concord on the 4th of July promises to be the largest gathering of farmers ever seen in Caroline.

The majority of farmers finished cutting wheat this week, but comparatively few fields are to be found in which wheat is seen standing, and while some few farmers report their wheat in excellent condition, others say that the crop will be a very short one, fully one-fifth below the crop of 1889. Several bunches of heads shown this week by several farmers, looked like wheat that had been exposed to the weather for a year. The grain is shriveled and dry, and the straw musty and discolored. This is the result, it is stated, of the work of lice early last spring. Most every farmer has concluded that his crop of 1890 will be far below that of 1889.—Centreville Record.

The raising of frogs for market is a profitable industry near St. Inigoe's, St. Mary's county.

The Port Tobacco Times reports the elopement of a white woman, the wife of Thom. Knott, with a mullatto named Richard Swann, from Allen's Fresh neighborhood, in Charles county.

The "Mufflers," a base-ball club of Stevensville, played a match game with the St. John's College nine at Tolchester, last week. The Island club was defeated by a score of fourteen to ten.

Is Consumption Incurable.

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says., "Was down with Abcess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an Incurable Comsumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, am now on my third bottle, and able to over see the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made.

Jesse Middlewart, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption I would have died of Lung Troubles. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottle free at Colin F. Stams's Drugstore.

PRIDE OF ENGLAND,
IMPORTED
Cleveland Bay Stallion
REGISTERED NO. 161.
is of a beautiful Cleveland Bay color, stands 16 hands 1½ inches, and will weigh thirteen hundred pounds in condition. He is stylish, fine action and perfectly quiet. In the combined qualities of action, beauty and endurence, he is acknowledged to stand unequaled as a stock horse for farm and carriage purposes. Has only served a few mares, but has proved sure with them. He comes down a long line of the best producers.
The American Farmers' Stock Book, in speaking of the most desirable strains of horses which have been the result of careful and scientific breeding, in coming to the Cleveland Bays, says: "We come next to a class of horses always held in the highest esteem for their many valuable qualities. It is a horse that is now bred to a degree of perfection that leaves little to be desired in all that goes to constitute size, style and ability to perform any labor that may be required, except the heaviest drudgery. The Cleveland Bays are good carriage horses, good and stout wagon or plow horses, and they match together about as easily as Devon cattle, combining as they do, plenty of staunch thorough blood with excellent size and constitutional vigor. Unfortunately they are rare in the United States, but since their introduction into the West, they have been steadily growing into favor. They are remarkable for their pure bay color, dashed only at the fetlocks and in the forehead with white. We have good authority for our admiration of this splendid animal. Canada has of late years become celebrated for finely-bred and finely-matched carriage horses, which is due to the sagacity of some Canadian breeders, in selecting Cleveland Bay Stallions for sires."
