COLLINS & HOPPER,
EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

PRESIDENT POLK, of the Farmers' Alliance, says that the farmers want financial reforms promptly instituted.

MR. PARNELL has been abandoned by the Envoys of Ireland in America. Only Harrington remains loyal to the Irish leader of Home Rule.

A DESPATCH from London, England, of Nov. 30, says: "Severe frosts and snow are reported on the shore of the Mediterranean, something unknown for twenty years. Very severe snow-storms are reported in Spain, and the Pyrenees are impassable. The German rivers have fallen, but are full of dangerous drift ice, eight persons having been drowned at Bremen. The damage at Elberfeld, Bremen and Posen is estimated at 3,000,000 marks."

A PROMINENT Farmers' Alliance man and Knight of Labor, who has just returned from the West, said recently: "It is a foregone conclusion that there will be three tickets in the field in 1892, unless the Republicans conclude to drop out of the race and give way to the People's party—that is, the Alliance and Knights of Labor. I am certain that the Alliance will put a ticket in the field and that it will receive the indorsement of the Knights. You may laugh, but I make the prediction that the Alliance and the Knights will carry at least five States, and four years later will elect their President."

"Will an Alliance man be elected Senator from Kansas?" "Why, of course. The blunder made by the Georgia Alliance will not be repeated in Kansas. The Kansas Alliance people have been a long time making up their minds to turn down the Republican party, but they were driven to it in the last election, and, having won the victory, they propose to send one of their own members to represent them in the United States Senate."—Washington correspondent of Philadelphia Record.

POLITICAL FORECASTS.

The echoes of the recent big fight in the political arena have scarcely died away, if indeed, they will not continue to echo and re-echo long after the next great struggle has been opened and even closed in 1892. Political forecasts are as a matter of course in order, and a diagram of elaborate marches and counter marches into the enemy's country, have already been mapped out. While the national field is being reviewed and calculations are being made for 1892, with much interest, the eye of the Maryland politician and the people at large, instinctively turns to the situation at home. It is claimed that there be twelve Richmonds in the field already, for Gubernatorial honors. Speculation runs at flood tide, and Mr. Frank Brown, who for several years has had an eye on the chief executive office of the State, is now anxiously feeling the public pulse and asking which shall it be, James Hodges or Frank Brown? Mr. Hodges, not less ambitious for political preferment, is equally anxious to find in which direction public sentiment is tending. Other minor or lesser political lights are more modestly standing aloof, and speculating upon possible combinations, and their effect upon future prospects. State affairs are uppermost in the minds of the people, and unfathered rumors of the general arrangements of the State slate are rife. These, however, when more authentic information is desired, are traceable to no reliable source. All such arrangements as material will be offered on date, ne the bay, has not as yet been announced. Governor Jackson, Walter Smith and some other Eastern Shoremen are quietly watching the situation, and will possibly have a word in determining to what extent present arrangements shall stand. The Gubernatorial contest will be an interesting one, and in a quiet way a strong under current of active work is being set in motion.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

President Benjamin Harrison has delivered his annual message, and the elaborate document was read before Congress on Monday afternoon. This recent message from the hand of Mr. Harrison was looked forward to with a degree of interest differing widely, both in its nature and intensity, from that which has marked all former documents eminating from the same source. In his former message his position upon all the more important measures before the country was with his party, and had in advance been clearly defined. Under these circumstances Mr. Harrison's former effort was to some extent an assignment of his literary position, as designated by his literary treatment of important subjects upon which his position was already known. In this last paper, however, the President's position was of vital importance, and the general interest was national in its extent and intense in its depth of feeling. The message is voluminous in the number of subjects treated, but all other subjects are lost sight of as the eye of the American people centres upon his treatment of the two great issues before the intelligent citizen. In his defense of the McKinley bill, and a not less urgent advocacy of the passage of the Lodge Force bill, the President has placed himself in direct opposition to a majority of six hundred thousand of his fellow-citizens. Had the result of the recent elections no significance in the opinion of the Chief Executive? or is this latest utterance the last desperate act by which the dominant party shall be continued in power by a law as revolutionary in tendency as it would be unjust in operation? Local self-government is to be swept away, the rights of citizens overthrown and a republic charged into a centralized despotism.

Notwithstanding the hand-writing on the wall, Mr. Harrison has now taken his position, and by the caucus which promptly took place upon the reconvening of Congress on Monday last, his party stands pledged to do his bidding. The administration chooses to defy rather than bend to the will of the people.

The message of President Harrison should be the political suicide of his party, it has been weighed in the balance and found wanting, it should now disband, the country has no further use for such a party. Mr. Harrison wants the Force bill passed and says that subsidies are proper, and further, that the McKinley tariff law is right. Wait, Mr. President, and see what the people think, as you will hear a little later.

PEACH TALK COMMENCES.

The present cold snap and the decided dash of snow on Monday last have had the effect of putting the horticulturist at work in watching buds and forecasting the possibilities of a peach crop for 1891. The cool, crisp weather has been hailed with delight by peach men throughout the State, and particularly on the Peninsula of Maryland and Delaware. The pleasant spring-like weather which had prevailed until late in the fall season had the effect of stimulating vegetation, and in many sections reports of ripe summer fruits have been received. Ripe strawberries, raspberries, grapes, etc., have been gathered in numerous sections of the State, while apple, pear, plum and some other fruit trees were in blossom, and in some instances held well-developed second crops of fruit. These facts as a matter of course were cause for serious apprehension. In the face of past experience it is an established fact that a flow of sap at this time and an unusual development of the buds at this season are anything but encouraging to the experienced peach-grower, and for this reason fruit-growers in this vicinity welcome the present cold wave, which will keep the fruit trees back. The sap of many trees had begun to flow, and it is said in some instances buds had commenced to swell as they did last year on account of the warm weather. If anything will insure a good crop of fruit it is a long, cold and dry winter.

In Delaware and Northwestern Maryland, in the Cumberland Valley and along the peach belt of South Mountain, it was reported several weeks ago that the buds on peach trees were assuming the red, glossy appearance which always precedes and accompanies the development of the buds. There is little wonder that the Kent countian contemplates the situation with an interest entirely foreign to those who stand in a different relation to this great staple interest of his section. Indeed, the peach occupies to the financial welfare of the agriculturalist of Kent almost the same relation as that held by "king cotton" in the South prior to the enormous development of her mineral resources.

With almost a total failure of the crop for several years in succession, and the present financial situation which these failures have largely contributed to, the subject of a crop of fruit in 1891 is altogether an important matter. This early peach talk and expressions of serious apprehension in regard to the prospect has for years had a tendency to amuse many, and the Eastern Shore fruit-man has long since been branded as a chronic growler, who, it is claimed, persists in each succeeding year in calling "Wolf, wolf, when there is no wolf."

However much this wolf matter may be a "chestnut," the wolf has visited the Eastern Shore peach orchard with terrifying earnestness during the past few years. A long, cold and dry winter is hoped for, and the peach growlery will remain in quiet.

Peninsula Horticultural Society.

The next annual meeting of the Peninsula Horticultural Society will be held in Easton, January 20, 21 and 22. Every assurance has been given by prominent workers in the department of horticulture in Maryland and Delaware, as well as those in the United States Department of Agriculture, that the meeting shall be in every way a success. The discussions will be of such a nature as to be particularly interesting and profitable to the Peninsula farmer and horticulturist.

Dr. A. F. Neale, director of the Delaware Experiment Station, and Prof. Beckwith, Horticulturist of the same station, will be present and read papers and enter into the discussion upon the topics with which their work has been connected this year. Prof. Henry E. Alvord has taken a great interest in this meeting and promises interesting lectures by the following members of the Maryland Station: Prof. Thos. L. Brunk, Henry [illegible], Prof. [illegible] Way and others. Dr. Erwin [illegible]vord will talk on "Peach Yellows." It is probable that Prof. Vandeman, United States Pomologist, will be present, also Dr. Halstead, of New Jersey.

This society is destined to figure as the most important factor in the agricultural success of the Peninsula of Maryland and Delaware, and the sooner our progressive farmers and horticulturists recognize its importance, in the same proportion will their deliverance, to a great extent, come from their present financial embarrassments. Kent will be represented at the meeting.

The Women May Win.

Saturday, November 29, was the last day allowed for voting on the question of admitting female delegates to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Ten days will be allowed in which the churches are to report to the Presiding Elder of their respective districts the result of the vote. The report so far received is not sufficiently full to admit of any satisfactory or positive conclusion in regard to the result, but so far as known it looks as if the women would carry the day.

Throughout Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Ohio, the vote has been close, with a slight majority against the women. In New England and the West the balloting generally is in favor of female representation. But in the whole country the vote is light, averaging only from 8 to 10 per cent. of the membership.

The advocates of the measure feel confident that the women will carry the day. The friends of representation have been very active, and, it is believed, have shown their full strength. A large proportion of the Methodist clergy are opposed to the admission of women, but, as a rule, they have maintained a discreet silence through fear of alienating those of their congregations who favored it. The small vote has been a disappointment to both sides, but it is commonly thought that the mass of church members who did not vote are opposed to the innovation.

A DISPATCH from Vienna is as follows: "Many of the railway lines in Austria and Southern Russia have been compelled to partially suspend operations on account of heavy falls of snow."

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure in the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

An Interesting Letter from a Delaware Visitor.

The writer recently had the pleasure of a visit to Kent county, Md., and for a day was the guest of Dr. W. S. Maxwell, of Still Pond, who is one of the comparatively few successful pear-growers on the Peninsula. His orchards are kept in excellent order by proper cultivation, the object being to keep the trees in a thrifty growing condition and yet not to stimulate them, which might induce the dreaded pear blight, for which no remedy has yet been discovered. Some of these orchards are in clover; others have asparagus planted between the rows and has for the last year or two been a very profitable crop. The area in asparagus will be greatly enlarged this year, but all among pear trees. In this way two crops are obtained from the same land, as the one does not interfere with the other. The most serious enemy the pear has had in the last two years is the pear leaf blight, which can be readily controlled at moderate expense, as described in these columns a short time ago by the doctor himself.

There is just one important lesson to be learned from Dr. Maxwell's success in this business; and that is that no one can hope to gain any great profit by pear-growing without first making it a thorough and careful study and then giving the most minute and painstaking care of it, in all its details, watching it closely every day during the growing season, and taking advantage of every new discovery in dealing with insect and fungous foes.

Mr. N. Barnard, of Still Pond, has had a very successful season in the nursery business and has shipped a great many trees into the northern part of Delaware and into Pennsylvania, in some parts of which the farmers are now planting out extensive orchards. Mr. Barnard also has a nursery in Western Maryland from which he supplies his many customers in that comparatively new peach belt.

Mr. R. G. Nicholson, of this county, has large nurseries near Chestertown, and has completely sold out his stock.

The Alliance has gained some foothold among the farmers of Kent, but is not very strong as yet. The Grange also has become inactive. Her farmers should learn to act together, buy together and sell together.

This county is rich in agricultural possibilities. It has a fertile, strong, easily-tilled soil, and is but a few hours, by water communication, from Baltimore, which is a wonderful market for many kinds of fruit, and every farm product that can be preserved and put upon the market in tin cans. The soil is a red clay, porous enough to drain readily, and the surface is rolling enough to obviate the need of underdrains. It is good corn and wheat land, and admirably adapted to fruit trees. In short, it appears to be of that happy medium that is good for all crops that prefer a clayey soil, and quite well adapted to those that flourish in a warm, sandy soil. It ought to be a rich county, financially, or at least the farmers ought to be well-to-do and substantial business men. But they are not, and they think something is wrong; that the fiscal legislation of this county has been against them, and in favor of money-lenders, brokers and bankers. This is doubtless true. The people are honest, industrious and intelligent. The trouble is that farmers have trusted all their interests implicitly in the hands of the lawmakers, without even venturing to suggest what they want done. But they have now opened their eyes and are taking a hand in the government. Good to the whole county will come out of it.

At the time of our visit there was general rejoicing over the revocation of the charter of the Chester Literary and Musical Club, which was an association of some fifteen hundred people ostensibly for literary improvement but really to provide themselves liquid refreshments, against the local option law of the county.

With all the depression in agriculture, with meagre crops and low prices, these people illustrate how "hope springs eternal in the human breast," for they are confidently looking forward to better times and are toiling on in good spirits. We hope and trust the brighter dawning is not in the too distant future.

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life. She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was incurable and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discovery, and got a sample bottle; it helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, she bought another and grew better fast, she continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particulars send stamp to W. H. Cole, Druggist, Fort Smith. Trial bottles of this wonderful Discovery Free at Colin F. Stam's Drugstore.

The Queen Pays All Expenses.

The Queen's last "Free Trip to Europe" having excited such universal interest, the publishers of that popular magazine offer another and $200 for expenses to the person sending them the largest list of English words constructed from letters contained in the three words "BRITISH NORTH AMERICA." Additional prizes, consisting of Silver Tea Sets, China Dinner Sets, Gold Watches, French Music Boxes, Portiere Curtains, Silk Dresses, Mantel Clocks and many other useful and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit. AN HONEST COMPANY.

LOCUST GROVE, November 24, 1890.

My husband, Wm. O. Shallcross, died on the 4th instant, was buried on the 7th. Mr. T. J. Shallcross in looking over some papers found an old policy of the ÆTNA LIFE INSURANCE CO., when he notified the company. In a day or two, Mr. Parr, of Galena, as agent of the company, came to my place and got proofs of death of my husband filled up. Mr. Wm. O. Shallcross was insured in 1865 and had not paid any premiums for over 21 years—since 1868. The Ætna Insurance Co. deserves my gratitude for their prompt adjustment of this claim, as to-day, the 24th inst., Mr. Parr handed me a check for the money. At the time of my husband's death, I did not know that he was insured.
