Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy anything else instead. Insist upon having

The People Answer Democracy's Call.

A REVIEW OF THE ELOQUENT SPEECHES OF TUESDAY'S MEETING.

FARMER BROWN RECEIVES AN OVATION.

A Striking Picture of the Next Governor of the State of Maryland.

OUR NEXT COMPTROLLER.

Though the great Democratic mass meeting of last week is more than a week old, as we were forced by unavoidable circumstances to make only a cursory mention of the great Rally, we can but refer to it again in a more elaborate way as being one of the greatest demonstrations of popular feeling ever given by the Democracy of Kent. Each district sent its representatives, every hamlet its delegation and each home circle its master and king in the person of an American freeman. Notwithstanding the fact that the demands upon the farmer and business man bore heavily upon him at his home and within the territory of his workshop or farm, the duties and responsibilities incumbent upon him as an American citizen, and as a member of that the noblest of all the political organizations of the earth—the united and unterrified Democratic party of the American States—rose superior to every other consideration, and with one voice, and with one united movement the party of Kent fell in line for the fight. The day was cold, disagreeable and rainy, but the untiring efforts of Chairman Harrison W. Vickers brought forth fruit, and on Tuesday there was in Chestertown an array of talent never surpassed on any similar occasion in any county of the State. In the morning, that little giant of the bar, and profound expounder of National Democracy, John P. Poe, accompanied by the eloquent Col. William Kilgour, of Montgomery, arrived. The morning train further increased the magnificent array of representative talent of the State's party ranks, by bringing Farmer Brown, whose sturdy manhood, rare executive ability as displayed in all the official capacities which he has ever served, coupled with his unswerving Democracy, have marked him as the standard-bearer of his party's destinies in the present fight. Fearless, energetic and in thorough touch and sympathy with the people, this young David has awakened a sympathy in the masses rarely known in Maryland politics. The same train also brought that representative Maryland gentleman and orator, Congressman Henry Page; that eloquent farmer-Democrat, James S. Robinson, of Anne Arundel, and our own candidate (Kent's honored son), Marion deK. Smith, the lawyer, speaker and candidate for the responsible position of State Comptroller. Then, too, was Mr. McNulty, whose magnificent voice, genial manner and attractive songs gave a delightful variety to the entire programme. Haddaway Rollison, Mr. Brown's confidential secretary, and one of the most astute politicians in the State, was also present.

A few hours before the call to order it was thought that but few would be present, but when Harrison W. Vickers, of the State Central Committee, arose to his feet, the hall was packed beyond its very doors. Mr. Vickers said about as follows:

Fellow Democrats: As chairman of the Central Committee of Kent county, I call you to order. It occurs to me, however, that something more may be expected of me than the mere performance of a perfunctory duty, yet I will not encroach upon your time to any great extent. The signs of the times justify the prediction that Frank Brown, the people's candidate, will be elected by 20,000, and both branches of the Legislature will be elected by an increased majority. It will be the duty of the Legislature to re-elect our senior Senator, A. P. Gorman, to the United States Senate (applause). The Republicans feel that he is the chief obstacle in the way of their gaining control of the executive functions of government. Nothing has been urged against A. P. Gorman except the sins by which the angels fell (applause). Go where you will in this land, and his name will be hailed as the man who defeated the Force Bill, and who humbled the Republican majority in Congress. Had Mr. Gorman been at the head of affairs Samuel J. Tilden would never have been defrauded out of a position to which he was elected by the suffrage of the American people. I would say one word in reference to our local ticket. There is no covering the fact, that the convention which met in this hall disappointed the hopes of many; such might have been expected, but however much we may growl or scratch, we always get together. We are too good Democrats to allow personal hostility to rankle in our hearts. He who [illegible] relation of the State or county, can but [illegible] are good Dem[illegible] Democrats—[illegible] the ticket as [illegible] take it whole, no [illegible] We are the people of Kent who have ruled our county in the past, and we will continue to rule it. We will elect our State and county ticket from top to bottom. We have on the stage a gentleman who would be the successor of Mr. Wilson; don't permit our fellow citizen, James A. Pearce, to go with a broken delegation at his back. I now have the pleasure of introducing to you Mr. James Alfred Peace, chairman of the meeting.

MR. PEARCE'S SPEECH.

Mr. Pearce in accepting the position, said:

Fellow Citizens of Kent County: I wish to return to you my cordial and sincere acknowledgements for the honor of being called upon to be the chairman of this meeting; not because of any idle compliment to myself, but because I consider the call but a recognition of my life-long adherance to Democratic principle, and my humble services to my party from youth to the present day. After referring to the distinguished names upon the roll of honor from Howard, Carroll and Baltimore, he declared that there must have been something in the strain, something in the atmosphere which they breathed, something in their surroundings which fitted them for their stations. We rejoice in their records, and thank God, my friends, when we compare records we have no cause to shirk the comparison. Whether we look to State government, to the House of Representives or to the Senate, we have men who have honored us. From the time of my majority I have been adding my voice to my vote. It has been in Kent a hand to hand fight, and at close quarters. If we put our energies to the struggle, we can not, must not and will not fail. Your duty is to come in and give to your ticket a hearty support.

MR. BROWN'S SPEECH.

Farmer Brown was introduced to the audience in the midst of rounds of applause. The great crowd cheered him to the echo. Mr. Brown advanced to near the centre of the platform, and said:

Citizens of Kent County and fellow Democrats: When I crossed your bounds to-day, I was impressed with the thought how little a man knows of his future. Twenty years ago I was in your county, but not in the same capacity as now. It was as a young man introducing agricultural implements, so it will be seen that from the first my interests have been in the field of agriculture in one way or another. I am not here for the purpose of participating in a plowing match, nor to disturb the quiet of my opponent; but I appear in a dual capacity. Recognizing agriculture to be the great interest of the people, I will ever remain an advocate of agriculture. Having accepted the nomination, I assume it with all of its responsibilities. I do not mean to disparage my opponent or to magnify myself, but if my adversary can derive any pleasure from the association of Vannort and victory, having deprived him of the pleasure of a plowing match, I will not rob him of this other satisfaction.

If elected to be the Governor of your State, I shall use my utmost deligence to discover what measures are best, and such measures I shall advocate and sustain. I shall exercise care in judging of the best men to appoint and what men to retain in official position. I come before the people of the state absolutely unpledged. I owe my nomination to no factions or clique and have no enemies to punish nor promises to fulfil. I am with the people and for the people. We are here to-day not only to plead for the State and local ticket, but for the life and best interests of the old State of Maryland. I am not accustomed to appearing upon the hustings but to train with the rank and file of the people, and if elected the humblest citizen shall be received by your chief as cordially and readily as the millionaire or railroad magnate. Every effort of my administration shall be to advocate, and advance such measures as are in the interest of the agriculturiste, barring such measures as may be termed class legislation which should not be in behalf of any set of people, in violation of the interests of any others. He who serves his country well, serves his party best. Remember, that upon your ticket is an honored son of Kent, Marion deKalb Smith, not nominated solely upon his own merits, but as a compliment to your county. It behooves you, then, to see that your county is placed well in the list of loyal counties after November.

A PLEASANT FEATURE.

Following Mr. Brown, Mr. McNulty took the audience by storm by singing "Farmer Brown." The rich, full voice of the singer was of itself a treat, but the evident vein of Democratic assertiveness was a dainty dish for the hearty Democratic appetite of the audience. Mr McNulty sprung full-fledged into popularity, and the genial singer was a strong favorite during his short stay. The jolly, good-natured political song was published in full in last week's TRANSCRIPT. The affable Baltimorean gave Messrs. Westcott, Burchinal and Ellason a gentle reminder in one of his songs.

EX-SENATOR PETER'S SPEECH.

Ex-Senator Peter, of Howard, who made a most favorable impression by his stirring speech at Chestertown during the campaign of last year, was next introduced and held the undivided attention of the audience during his eloquent treatment of the issues involved in the present campaign. It is but just, however, to say that the gentleman surpassed his effort of last year, and added many names to his list of Kent county friends. He said:

Fellow Democrats of Kent County: Permit me to congratulate you upon the splendid meeting which you have. I want to talk to you, however, only of the things that the people are thinking about to-day—the methods of government. We must have government, and the blessings of good government, should be like the dews of Heaven, and fall upon the rich and poor alike.
