WORCESTER AGENTS RAZE LARGE STILL

Berlin — Discovery of the largest bootleg liquor still ever found in Worcester county was reported early this week by the "flying squadron" of officers who waded nearly three miles through swampy land Sunday in search of the plant.

The 600-gallon still, valued at more than $3,000, was destroyed, blasted high in the air by thirteen sticks of dynamite.

State's Attorney William G. Kerbin, Jr., and the raiding squad of officers watched the plant, in a wooded tract of swampy land a few miles north of Stockton, for several hours in hopes the operators would put in an appearance.

When no one approached the still, Kerbin ordered it destroyed. The dynamite blast was set off by Deputy Sheriff Frank B. Atkinison, the squad's explosive expert and flattened small trees over a wide area.

Streams of liquor mash hurled skyward from the eighty-three-barrel cache showered the seven raiders standing several rundred feet away.

The huge still was the twelfth one found and wrecked by the county officers since Kerbin started an anti-vice campaign in the county January 5.

Fair Enough!

When under the weather, I go at once to a doctor. Doctors have to live. And then, after getting a prescription, I go at once to a druggist. Druggists must live. Arriving home, I immediately throw the medicine away.

Why do you do that?

I also must live.
