COERCION IS DISFRANCHISEMENT.

If all the employes of this country would vote as their employers request them to do, what would be the condition here? It would be exactly as though we had a law that none but employers of men should be entitled to vote.

The ballot is given to men generally in order that popular government may be preserved. If at this or any other election the employer is to dictate how his employes vote, then the best thought and conscience in the country is not brought to bear on the determination of public questions.

What right has an employer to say how his employe shall vote?

What right has he even to ask his employe to vote a certain way?

The employer gives work, not as a matter of charity, but as a matter of profit. He would not have one man in his employ if the labor of that man did not bring to the employer a liberal margin of profit.

If it can be said that the employer knows best how the election should go, and best understands public questions, then we must admit that popular government is a failure. The fact is that the employer who would seek to coerce his employes into voting the way the employer votes is not nearly so well equipped for voting as the men in his employ.

The employer who seeks to coerce voters is the little, narrow browed man who never thinks for himself, and whose conscience, as well as his political conduct, is governed by a button in a banking house.

There are many employers who may differ from their employes in their political conclusions who would sooner lose an arm than to coerce one single individual. These are the men who appreciate the sacred responsibility resting upon a man when he approaches the ballot box. These are the men who know that the man who works and eats bread in the sweat of his face may be better able to solve the problems of government than the man in the counting room who profits by the toil of others.

The truth is that these threats of discharge are all buncombe. There is not an employer in the United States of America who would dare discharge a man for casting his vote for Bryan. Because while an employe may feel himself dependent in a degree upon the employer, the employer, too, is dependent upon public sentiment, and public sentiment could be depended upon to denounce and condemn any man who would resort to so mean an expedient.—New York Journal.

WANTS A TAX ON RAILROADS.

Walter Morris Makes Second Appeal to Farmers—Fruit Growers Interested.

Another letter appeal has been sent out to the farmers and fruit growers of Delaware by Walter Morris, cashier of the Farmers' Bank of Dover. This is a supplement to the letter circulated by Mr. Morris sometime ago, at his own expense, and he urges that a tax of $40,000 be placed upon the railroads running through the State, and which transact so much business every year. The latter says:

"In 1865, before the fifty years exemption from taxation of the Delaware Railroad Company expired and years before the Baltimore and Ohio Company had a line through Delaware, we received $101,724,40 from the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Company. Now with three great roads that we can tax and all are doing ten times the business the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Company did in 1865, we only receive $68,635.30 and the fruit growers are almost taxed out of existence by the railroads.

"Fruit growers, as you took the tax off the railroad over a third of a century ago and got nothing for it, is it not time you put it back again?"

R. H. Cummins, of near Clayton, adds his testimony to Mr. Morris' and says that the fare from Clayton to Philadelphia has been gradually increased. It was $1.25 at first, then $1.50, and now it is $1.77.—Smyrna Call.

WORLD'S WHEAT CROP.

Aggregate Shortage, But We will Have Plenty to Sell.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Information received by the Agricultural Department indicates a shortage of over 125,000,000 bushels in the world's wheat crop. This includes 25,000,000 bushels in the United States.

The total crop of the world is estimated at 2,500,000,000 bushels, as against 2,625,000,000 in 1899. France's crop is reported to be 60,000,000 bushels less than last year, when the total was 366,000,000. Russia's crop is about the same as in 1899, while Hungary, Italy and Germany each report a shortage this year.

The Argentine Republic reports 85,000,000 bushels, as against 101,000,000 in 1899. India's crop also is short, being only 188,000,000 bushels, compared with 242,000,000 last year.

The following countries report gains: Spain, 15,000,000 bushels; Roumania, 33,000,000 (which more than doubles the crop of 1899), and Bulgaria, 14,000,000.

It is thought the United States will have fully 165,000,000 bushels to sell to foreign consumers.
