A QUERY PARTY.

Thanksgiving Entertainment That Has a Spice of Novelty.

The affair is presided over by Uncle Sam, attended by George Washington, whose duty it is to keep time, and by Miss Columbia and a pair of Colonial Dames, who assist in receiving the guests. When all the latter have arrived they take their places along one side of small tables arranged in a semi-circle around the room. At a table directly in front are seated the master of ceremonies and his assistants. Each member of the company is supplied with a series of cards shaped as diminutive colonial hats and bonnets—the former to the men and the latter to the feminine element—caught on a tiny cord and with little pencils attached. One, two or three answers are scheduled on these, according to the number of questions, relating to our national history that Uncle Sam sees fit to propound to his visitors.

From two to five minutes may be permitted for thinking up the correct answers, and perfect silence is imposed on all the guessers, while prompting is punished by expulsion from the game. When the contest is over the cards are turned over to the Colonial Dames, who check off the right and wrong guesses to find the winner of the prizes, those with the highest percentage of correct answers being the ones. Miss Columbia then reads out the proper solution to the queries, so that every one can see his mistakes, and if the party who takes the role of Uncle Sam be witty he will add to the general enjoyment if he gives a little lecture here or a word of approbation there, to such as missed many of the questions or those whose quick wit and good memory rendered them more fortunate than their companions. A clever gentleman can make this one of the pleasantest features of the evening.

If those attending the party were requested to come attired in a colonial costume, as impersonating some historical character, or in the representative dress of one of the different States, it will prove all the more attractive and interesting, besides permitting the guests an opportunity to display their originality in their choice of roles. A light lunch carrying out the suggestive and patriotic idea of the day is served just where they are sitting, doylies or scarfs being thrown over the tables, and the delicacies that constitute all such midnight collations are brought in and laid on them.

Following are a few of the suggestive questions that might be asked, or ones similar; the host uses his own preference in the matter:

Who was called the "American Fabius?"
Washington.
Who was called the "Great Commoner?"
Clay.
Who was the "Rail Splitter?"
Lincoln.
Who discovered the electrical quality of lightning?
Franklin.
Where was the first printing press in the United States?
Philadelphia.
Who laid the Atlantic cable?
Cyrus Field.
What President was known as "American Cæsar?"
Grant.
What celebrated author was nicknamed "Salmagundi?"
Irving.
Who is the "Father of Democracy?"
Jefferson.

There are myriads of other questions which a glance at a United States history will reveal.

Friendship.

Friendship is to be purchased only by friendship. A man may have authority over others, but he can never have their heart but by giving his own.

Thomas Wilson.

To struggle against friends true courage is required. It is like putting out your own fire to remain in the cold.

Carmen Sylva.

A friend is one who will tell you of your faults and follies in prosperity, and assist you with his hand and heart in adversity.

Unknown.

A friend is one who having gained the top of the ladder, won't forget you if you remain at the bottom.

Unknown.

Whatever the number of a man's friends, there will be times in his life when he has one too few; but if he has only one enemy, he is lucky indeed he has not one too many.

Bulwer Lytton.

A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village blacksmith at Grahamville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucous and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreadful croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by M. A. Toulson, druggist, Chestertown Md.
