GEORGIA'S CONFFEDERATE HOME.

The people of Georgia will take a melancholy and pleasurable interest in the report of Presidet W. L. Calhoun in regard to the conduct of the Confederate Soldiers' Home.

That there are now 63 inmates in that institution, "contented and happy," should be enough to reward those who helped to place the institution on its feet. And to those who know the Confederate veteran it is not strange to learn that "their conduct generally has been irreproachable, and they have been very obedient to the rules and regulations prescribed for them. In explanation of the fact that these men can do but little toward maintaining the grounds, President Calhoun represents that they are "far advanced in years, very feeble and unable to do work of any character, even if it were required of them. Some of them are in very bad physical condition, and one of them is almost, if not entirely, in a state of mental derangement.

Surely such a description as this, after personal investigation, shows that it was high time that Georgia had undertaken the care of her veterans. Those old and feeble men, unable now to help themselves, were young and strong and lusty when the call went forth for them to serve their State. As they were faithful men, and proved it through four years in trench and under fire, so should we be faithful now in seeing to it that their last years of decrepitude are rendered as easy as possible.—Atlanta Constitution.

WINGED HIS MAN.

Sheriff Seward of Queen Anne Captured His Man in Delaware.

Sheriff Frank Reedy, of Dover, on Friday shot a man who resisted arrest on the charge of forgery.

Some time ago the Sheriff received instructions from States' Attorney J. Frank Harper, of Queen Anne, to apprehend John H. Minner, who, the attorney said, had on April 15 forged the names of William H. Sudler, Thomas J. Melvin and Carey Sudler, all of Centreville, to a promissory note on the Queen Anne Savings Bank, payable in six months. The note was for $36. Sheriff Reedy's men located Minner carrying on a farm for his mother, near Willow Grove. An order for his arrest came, and Sheriff Reedy, accompanied by Warden John M. Ward, started for Minner behind a team of fast horses. As Reedy was reading the writ to Minner a traction engine came down the road and the sheriff's horse became frightened. Warden Ward ran out to hold the team and Minner dashed for liberty.

Sheriff Reedy gave chase crying: "Halt, or I'll shoot!" Just as Minner entered a cornfield the sheriff shot and the man dropped. Reedy ran to Minner's side, but he found that the bullet had only scratched him and that he was feigning injury. When bending over Minner the latter's mother ran at the sheriff, brandishing a weapon and declaring he must pay for that shot with his life. Fighting off the woman with one hand and pulling young Minner with the other, the sheriff got him to the carriage. In the afternoon Minner was turned over to the Maryland authorities.

A GOLDEN RULE HORSE ADVERTISEMENT.

A gentleman who has truly a Christian spirit and a horse for sale advertises as follows in a Minnesota paper:

"We have a good family driving horse for sale, providing you carry assurance.

"He is not particular as to feed. In fact, he prefers our neighbor's hay stacks and corncribs to our own.

"We feed him when ever we can catch him, which is seldom.

"He is partly gentle. The other parts are not, and you must govern yourself accordingly.

"We will throw in the derrick and telegraph pole combination which we use to hitch him up with.

"If you are fond of driving we would advise you to engage a cowboy that owns a fast horse to do your driving, and be sure and get on top of the barn before he begins to drive the horse.

"For price and coroner's address apply to the owner."—Chicago Record.

Savings.

It is the savings of the world that have made the civilation of the world. Savings are the result of labor; and it is only when laborers begin to save that the results of civilization accumulate. Thrift began with civilization; we may almost say that thrift produced civilization. Thrift produces capital, and capital is the conserved result of labor. The capitalist is merely a man who does not spend all that is earned by work.

THE MAN WHO DID.

All doctors in my town failed to relieve me of rheumatism. I have used about half a bottle of Nelaton and feel so much improved, that while I may not need it, I enclose P. O. order for $1 for one more bottle of the remedy that has been such a God-send to me. I cheerfully recommend Nelaton to anyone suffering with rheumatism.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

By the flow of the inland river,
Whence the fleets of iron have fled,
Where the blades of the grave grass quiver,
Asleep are the ranks of the dead;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the one, the Blue;
Under the other, the Gray.

These in the robings of glory,
Those in the gloom of defeat,
All with the battle-blood gory,
In the dust of eternity meet.
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the laurel, the Blue;
Under the willow, the Gray.

From the silence of sorrowful hours
The desolate mourners go,
Lovingly laden with flowers
Alike for the friend and the foe;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the roses, the Blue;
Under the lilies, the Gray.

So with an equal splendor
The morning sun rays fall,
With a touch impartially tender,
On the blossoms blooming for all;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Broidered with gold, the Blue;
Mellowed with gold, the Gray.

So when the summer calleth,
On forest and field of grain
With an equal murmur falleth
The cooling drip of rain;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Wet with the rain, the Blue;
Wet with the rain, the Gray.

Sadly, but not with upbraiding,
The generous deed was done;
In the storm of the years that are fading,
No braver battle was won;
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Under the blossoms, the Blue;
Under the garlands, the Gray.

No more shall the war-cry sever,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger forever
When they laurel the graves of our dead!
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the Judgment Day—
Love and tears for the Blue;
Tears and love for the Gray.

BY AUTOMOBILE TO TEXAS OIL WELLS.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Decker, of New York, Stop at Elkton on Their Long Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Decker, of New York, who started from that city, last week, for the Beaumont oil fields in Texas, in an automobile, spent saturday night at the Howard House, in Elkton. Sunday morning, shortly after seven o'clock they resumed their journey, which up to that time had been a very pleasant one, not meeting a single mishap. They have no particular route mapped out for their long journey.

In reality Mr. and Mrs. Decker will travel from town to town, calculating always to reach a lodging place by nightfall, and from the city or village will decide how to proceed. It is their theory that the residents of each locality will be able to tell them more of the roads than any map maker could possible know, and they will thus be able to see much more of the country than in any other way.

The traveling equipment is as light as possible. A leather box holds the entire wardrobe for the two travelers, and a basket contains tools, mackintoshes and leather coverings. Mr. Decker wears a flannel traveling suit and carries two extra pairs of trousers, which with an ulster and supply of shirts and underwear, with necessary toilet articles, make up his share, while Mrs. Decker wears a mohair frock and carries two long dust coats, with a liberal supply of lingerie and a half dozen shirt waists. A chauffeur's cap completes the trim costume of each.

Mr. and Mrs. Decker are picturesque persons. She is a blonde and pretty, and beautifully gowned. He is dark and handsome, while both are young, romantic and venturesome.

Mrs. Decker was Miss Sarah Elizabeth Clarke, and inherited from her mother $150,000, which was deposited with the Farmer's Loan and Trust Company of New York, the income to be used for her until she should be twenty-one years old.

Another Day.

So here hath been dawning another blue day;
Think, wilt thou let it slip useless away?
Out of eternity this new day is born;
Into eternity at night will return.
