SUPPER 50 CENTS.

☞ THE MISTLETOE BOUGH is a fascinating presentation in Pantomime of that charming story in which a beautiful girl steals from the scene of her bridal festivities to hide from him who cried wildly.—

"Oh, where didst thou hide?
I'm lonely without thee, my own dear bride."

Arrayed in the spotless beauty of joyous young womanhood she sought the old chest with its fatal spring-lock and there found a grave. Years after the skeleton was found—

"In the bridal wreath of that lady fair."

This pathetic but beautiful story will be told in pantomime by more than fifty young ladies and young men, all thoroughly drilled by that master of stage-art, Prof. George A. Gardner.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS.

A Magnificent Array of Gorgeous Blooms Grown by Chestertown Ladies.

Though the chrysanthemum blooms of the present fall may not be quite as large as those of a year ago, never have the ladies of Chestertown had so great a variety of these beautiful flowers. In gorgeousness of coloring and perfection of flower nothing could be more beautiful than the flowers which are to be found in many flower gardens.

The variety and beauty of the blossom crowned garden of Mrs. H. B. Simmons must be a lasting delight to the real lover of flowers. Great tufts of snowy whiteness, flashes of flame, the dainty peachy pink of a maiden's cheek, the rich yellow of autumn and other charming combinations of color are found dotting a nook simply crowded with royal beauty.

Miss Eddie Edwards was one of the first to catch the inspiration of the possibilities of the queenly chrysanthemum. With a love and care loyal to the last she has tended her flower-pets and her "chrysanthemum nook" is truly "a thing of beauty" and its memory a joy forever. Her blossoms are rare in their perfection and love-inspiring in their variety and richness of color.

Mrs. Joel R. Clements, too, is as loyal to her fall blossoms as to her other flower-friends. Her chrysanthemums this fall have been beautiful beyond description. All of the richer notes of nature's song in honor of the mellow autumn weather have been touched by her sweet singers.

Busy hands have not kept the flower-loving heart of Miss Anna G. Lambert away from her chrysanthemums. Great bunches of white as of tufted snowflakes, aigrettes of the mellow autumn sunshine, the flame of the Fisher's Torch, dainty pinks and other clusters of beauty woo one to love and admire them in a tiny corner of her garden.

The garden of Mrs. J. T. Twilley reminds one of a flower school where the gladness of childhood is basking in the soft hazy shadows of Indian summer. There is no limit to kinds as there is no set rule for the location of the blossoming plants. With a waywardness all their own, yellows, whites, pinks, tinted and every conceiveable color of flower rub their dainty cheeks together in an exuberance of beauty.

The chrysanthemum is forced to share with her flower-sisters the glory and love of their patron-saint, Mrs. George B. McWhorter. Chrysanthemums, roses, cosmos and a dozen other blossoms hold high revel in Mrs. McWhorter's yard.

But why try to name all who love and successfully grow beautiful fall flowers in Chestertown. There are scarcely a dozen homes in Chestertown which have not beautiful blossoms, conspicuous among them chrysanthemums.

W. C. WON.

A Brilliant Game of Football With Maryland Agricultural College.

The Washington College foot-ball team gave their friends a pleasant surprise in their play in Saturday's game with the Maryland Agriculturists. It was feared that the great lack of play this season would tell to the disadvantage of the home men, but their work on the gridiron against their strong antagonists was simply brilliant. From start to finish the Washington College men held vantage, in spite of the heavier weight-average and greater practice of the visitors. Neither side scored in the two exciting halves of 25 minutes each.

In the first half the ball was in the M. A. C. territory all of the time. In the second half the ball was first on one side and then on the other, but when time was called W. C. by two fine runs had carried the ball to M. A. C's. 20-yard line. Garey played splendid ball for the Washingtons. Hitch and Morse made the last two runs.

DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED.

Hope H. Barroll, Esq., extended a delightful entertainment to the members of the football team on Wednesday evening from 6 to 8.30 o'clock. The evening was charmingly spent in music by Mrs. Barroll and Mr. Stevens, and many college songs were lustily sung by the college men. Mr. Barroll's fine collection of curios from the Philippines and nearly every part of the globe was a pleasant feature of the evening's pleasure to the students. The presence of Capt. Morris K. Barroll, who did several years of conspicuous service in the islands, added greatly to the interest in the exhibits.

An elegant supper was served during the evening.

† Mr. James P. Swing, who had charge of the Blacks cannery, has returned to Ridgley, Caroline county, and has gone into the paper-hanging business.

"THE MISTLETOE BOUGH."

A Charming Entertainment Being Arranged by the Dorcas Society.

The entertainment being arranged by the ladies of the Dorcas Society for the evenings of Nov. 18 and 19, and the supper on Nov. 20, promise to be delightful social features as well as the most beautiful and enjoyable entertainments ever given by local talent in Chestertown.

The story which will be given in pantomime by about fifty richly costumed and thoroughly drilled ladies, gentlemen and children on the evening of Tuesday and Wednesday, November 18 and 19, is as follows:

A banquet hall is gay with garlands of holly and mistletoe; the lovely Lady Genevra has just wedded the gallant Lord Lovell, and music and merriment hold full sway. The wedding-march, stately and beautiful, is heard and a train of little bridesmaids scatter garlands in the path of Genevra and her lord. Then the minuet is danced, at the end of which the bride, wearied by the decorum of her father's hall, joins the children in their games.

The child-bride later seeks to hide from the bride-groom and her guests and finds an old trunk in the dust-covered attic. Into this she steals, the heavy lid falls and the fatal spring-clasp seals the fate of the beautiful and fair.

Search fails to find the bride, and act four, fifty years after, represents Lovell, old and decrepit, as the only survivor of the wedding festivities when his bride so mysteriously disappeared.

The May-pole dance and the village games and the crowning of the May Queen are in progress when, with tottering step, the aged but faithfully bride-groom approaches.

Instantly the gayety ceases and the children whisper and point. He spies the May Queen in her veil and wreath, and is reminded of his lost bride, but moves sadly away and the children's revels continue.

The final act is again the dusty attic. The house keeper and maid are cleaning out the old presses, and the old woman tells the legends of the castle, among others the loss of the fairy bride. The maid finds a bunch of keys, opens many closets and at last she tries the oaken chest. The key is fitted and the ghastly contents exposed—the veil, the wreath, the jewels.

"And here and there a pearl, an emerald stone,
A golden clasp clasping a shred of gold,
All else had perished save a nuptial ring."

Lord Lovell is called, and hears the sad tale. His wedding ring is handed him bearing their names and he is convinced. Suddenly the fire of youth animates him; he see in a vision his beautiful bride as she left him in youth and love, and he starts forward to that happy meeting that he had awaited through fifty long years.

THE MISTLETOE BOUGH.

The Mistletoe hung in Castle hall,
The holly branch hung on the old oak wall,
And the Baron's retainers were blythe and gay,
Keeping their Christmas holiday;
The Baron beheld with a father's pride
His beautiful child, young Lovell's bride;
While she with her bright eyes seemed to be
The star of that goodly company.
Oh! the Mistletoe Bough!

"I'm weary of dancing," at last she cried,
"Oh! tarry a moment, I'll hide, I'll hide,
And Lovell, be sure thou'lt be the first to trace
The clue to my secret hiding place."
Away she ran and her friends began
Each corner to search and each nook to scan,
And Lovell cried wildly, "Oh, where did'st thou hide,
I'm lonely without thee, my own dear bride!"
Oh! the mistletoe Bough!

They sought her that night and they sought her next day;
They sought her in vain 'til a week passed away;
In the highest, the lowest, the lonliest spot,
Young Lovell sought wildly but found her not.
And years passed by and the tale at last
Was told as a sorrowful tale long past,
When Lovell appeared, the children cried,
"See, the old man weeps for his fairy bride!"
Oh! the Mistletoe Bough!

At length an old chest which had long laid hid
Was found in the castle, they raised the lid
And a skeleton form lay mouldering there
In the bridal wreath of that lady fair.
Oh! sad was her fate when in sport and jest,
She hid from her lord in that old oak chest,
It closed with a spring and her bridal bloom
Lay mouldering there in a living tomb.
Oh! the Mistletoe Bough!

Brilliant Series of Lectures.—The series of lectures at Sacred Heart Catholic church this week by Rev. F. Valentine, has been a rare treat to those who have been so fortunate as to be able to avail themselves of the opportunity to hear. The speaker is pecularly fortunate in having selected subjects for his discourses which appeal with more than ordinary force to the intelligence of all christian people, and he is even more fortunate in being able to treat his subjects, with an evident broadness and fairness of analysis. An eloquent speaker, of impressive personality and thoroughly approachable, Father Valentine has made many friends. The subjects of his discourses to-day and to-morrow will be:

Saturday, November 8—"Maryolatry, or the Worship of the Virgin."
Sunday, November 9, A. M.—"Christian Marriage, or Christ's View of Matrimony."
Sunday, November 9, P. M.—"Union, the Battle Cry of Freedom."
There will also be a question box.

The same series as given at Sacred Heart Church this week will be repeated at St. John's, Rock Hall, commencing with Monday evening.

MR MOFFETT FOUND HIS HORSE.

On the Aniversary of His Being Stolen One Year Ago.

One of the most remarkable cases of finding a stolen horse which ever took place in Kent, is the recovery of the horse of Mr. John T. Moffett, of near Still Pond.

On last Sunday one year ago a valuable sorrel mare, carriage and wraps belonging to Mr. Moffett were stolen from the Still Pond M. E. Church yard. Every possible effort was made to locate the lost property but without success, until all hope of finding the mare was abandoned.

On Saturday last Mr. Moffett received a message from Kinzie, a boy who formerly lived with him but afterward went to Philadelphia, stating that the mare was in that city. The Ericsson steamer was taken Saturday for Philadelphia, the boy was found and the mare located as having been seen harnessed to a wagon of the American Laundry Company. Upon application there they stated that the mare had been hired from a Jew twice a week to be used to one of their wagons. The Jew was found, but was rather suspicious until told by Mr. Moffett that he had a sorrel horse which he desired to match with his sorrel mare. Then the man became communicative and said that the animal was at a blacksmith shop but would soon be in. Securing a policeman Mr. Moffett and the boy went to the shop and found the mare, which they easily identify by two cross (X) marks, one on the upper and one on the lower lip. The Kent countian at once claimed his property, whereupon the Jew and his entire family became enraged. The old fellow declared that he would pull Mr. Moffet's whiskers and hair out before he should have the mare, but the policeman said to the rightful owner,—"if that is your property take her."

The stolen animal was brought home on Monday and upon being turned loose at its old home deliberately walked into the stable and into the old stall. She gave signs of recognizing her old friends among the horses, but would have nothing to do with one or two strange ones.

The Jew stated that he bought the mare, carriage, harness, and blanket for $50 last May from a man named Greenwood. The carriage was old and was sold for $4, he said and the harness were stolen several nights before Mr. Moffett put in an appearance.

That the boy should have recognized Mr. Moffett's mare on the streets of Philadelphia is truly a remarkable case.

CHURCH NOTES.

No Services at Emmanuel.

Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Martin received a telegram yesterday morning summoning them at once to the bedside of Mrs. Dora Martin who has been desperately ill and a great sufferer for many months. The necessary absence of Dr. Martin to-morrow will leave his pulpit unoccupied both morning and evening. His congregation will, however, only too willingly suffer the deprivation of services in their church that their rector may minister to others whose needs are greater than their own—"Wist ye not that I must be about My Father's business."

Repairs having been completed in Christ Church, I. U. parish, services will be held there to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock.

Revival Services will be held at the M. E. Church South, Chesterville, commencing Sunday, Nov. 9th. Services every night at 7 30. Services will be conducted by Rev. I. Ryder, pastor, and others. Come one and all.

Decision Day services will be held in the Kennedyville M. P. Church, Sunday, November 9th, subjects, 10.30 A. M., "Make Your Choice;" 7 P. M., "A Serious Failure and Its Sad Results."

As its special work, for the ensuing year, the Literary department of the Epworth League of Chestertown M. E. Church has arranged a series of lectures, the first of which will be delivered by Rev. H. G. Budd, of Berlin, Md., on Tuesday evening, Nov. 11, in the lecture room of the church, at eight o'clock. The address will be preceded by a short service of song and some special music. A silver collection will be taken. All are cordially invited to attend.

Next Sunday will be observed as "Decision Day" at Wesley Chapel, at which time revival services will begin.

There will be a series of lectures given by the Passionist Non-Catholic Missionary, the Rev. F. Valentine, in St. John's Catholic Church, Rock Hall, commencing on Monday evening as follows:

Monday, Nov. 10—"Religion, Vital to Human Happiness."
Tuesday, November 11—"Christianity and the Church."
Wednesday, November 12—"Sacerdotal Celibacy, or Why Priests do not Marry."
Thursday, November 13—"Emmanuel—God With us."
Friday, November 14—"The Divinity of Christ Provedby the Divine Tragedy."
Saturday, November 15—"Maryolatry, or the Worship of the Virgin."
Sunday, November 16, A. M.—"Christian Marriage, or Christ's View of Matrimony."
Sunday, November 16, P. M.—"Union the Battle Cry of Freedom."
