THIEVES AND OMENS.

Criminals as a Rule Are the Slaves of Superstition.

Some of the most notorious criminals who, it would hardly be thought, paid the slightest attention to omens, good or bad, have the greatest faith in superstitions of all kinds.

The burglar is a believer in the significance of dreams and has been known to relinquish a big burgling feat if a dream the night before has warned him that he will be in danger should he disregard the warning. If he saw a rainbow he would consider it to portend that, however reckless he may be, he is not likely to fall into the hands of the police for a space of three months. Burglars have been known to carry a donkey's shoe in their pocket before turning out, believing that this will protect them from danger, while others pin their faith to a piece of coal, which they will carry in their pockets throughout their career and afterward bequeath it to a confederate.

The pickpocket is equally superstitious. It is said he will not rob a person who squints, this being accounted a sign of disaster, and if it happens that the purse he robs contains foreign coins it is believed to augur that he will travel a good deal in the immediate future, whether in the company of a couple of officers or not there is nothing to show.

Weddings and funerals are pregnant with meaning for the professional thief. To pick a pocket at a funeral would be to court immediate disaster, whereas if a purse stolen at a wedding contains gold it portends the best of luck for the thief during the ensuing six months.

Some pickpockets have a favorite pair of boots that they wear as long as they can keep them on their feet, and if they are not arrested while they are wearing them they cut the boots up into little square pieces and give them away as "lucky tokens" to their pals.

THE EYES.

Black or very dark eyes denote a capacity for extreme ardor in love.

Greenish tints in blue or hazel eyes are the signs of wisdom and courage.

Steel colored eyes usually denote a cold nature, also deceit and treachery.

Russet brown eyes, untinged by yellow, mean an affectionate and gentle disposition.

Dark blue eyes while indicating affection and purity, do not represent intellectuality.

Variable gray eyes are highly intellectual and indicative of an impulsive and impressionable temperament.

Clear light blue eyes, especially if accompanied by steadfastness of expression, denote cheerfulness, amiability and constancy.

Tawny eyes denote fickleness. Eyes of no particular color, only feeble shades of gray and blue, go with lymphatic dispositions, characterized by coldness, selfishness and listlessness.

A Late Supper.

A very steady and serious country gentleman had joined a newly established London west end club which offered the advantage of bedrooms for country members temporarily in town. When next the squire visited the modern Babylon he put up for the night at the club, which had in the meantime become extremely fashionable and its hours correspondingly irregular. The squire went to bed at an early hour, when all was quiet and decorous. If there were a racket in the night he slept through it.

Next morning he came down to breakfast at his usual hour, 8 o'clock, but was surprised to find the room in the middle of the dusting process and not a cloth on the tables. While he was gazing helplessly around a sleepy eyed waiter came up to him.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said apologetically, "but no suppers can be served after half past 7."—London Tit-Bits.

Our Animals.

A dish of fresh water is a constant necessity where there is a dog or a cat, even though they never appear to touch it. Offering them water now and then doesn't answer at all.

Those who suppose a cat requires only meat and milk should offer it a bit of nicely cooked vegetable, especially asparagus, corn, green beans or potato.

It is criminal to keep caged pets unless one is sure to remember their needs, not when one "thinks of it," but constantly.

The man who has no tender feelings for his horse should remember that this faithful servant will last longer and serve better while he does last if he receive consistent treatment.

Read With Ease.

A writer in Leslie's Monthly says: A schoolbook that is in my possession, dated 1832, has penciled inside the front cover these lines:

Puzzle
written over the commandments
P.RS.V.R.Y.P.RF.CTM.N
.V.RK..PTH.S.PR.C.PTST.N.

No solution was offered, and I studied over the mysterious medley for some time before I saw that it made sense if an E was substituted for each of the dots.

His Altruistic Conscience.

Fuddy—You say you have a very tender conscience. I notice it is wonderfully sensitive to the faults of others, but it never appears to be troubled by your own shortcomings.

Duddy—No; I hope not. That would be egotistical, you know.—Exchange.

Fiction.

"What are you writing, Hawley?"

"A story. I'm going in for fiction."

"Really—for a magazine?"

"No; for my tailor. He wants his money, and I'm telling him I'll send him a check next week."

tendants here remove the cans and the cooling process begins.

The process of cooling forms one of the most interesting sights at the diary. Coils of tubing, filled, part of them with well water, and part of them with iced water, are suspended on the first floor of the diary. The milk, taken from the tramway above, is pourod through a "filter" of absorbent cotton and flows over these pipes—a vertible cataract of milk. During the process, the milk is, of course, very much exposed to the air of the room and at the top of the coils it has still considerable of its animal heat. It is very important, therefore, that the air of this room be free from impurities of all sorts. To gain this end the room is steam sterilized in preparation, air is admitted to it only through openings prepared for the purpose, where it is "filtered" as it were, through absorbent cotton. Visitors necessarily covered with more or less of the dust of the road are, therefore, not admitted to the sanctum sanctorum, but must watch the process through a partition of glass.

The milk is received from the cooler by carloads—that is to say into a special car designed for convenience in filling the bottles. Between the rails on which this car runs four hundred empty bottles are arranged in rows of eight. As the car passes over these, eight valves are opened and in four seconds eight bottles are filled and the car moves on to the next row. Each day over four thousand bottles are filled in this way.

Here is a detail, as well as a summary, of the Fairfield dairy farm work taken in brief notes on the spot:

Farm contains about 700 acres.

About 600 acres used for forage crops

Has on farm 3 large side hill barns, each with two stories and basement, and 1000 ton silo attached to each.

Has hospital barn, now empty.

Has quarantine barn.

In barn No. 1 is 191 cows.

In barn No. 2 is 226 cows.

In barn No. 3 is 110 cows.

In quarantine barn about 50 cows.

Feeds hay and corn ensilage.

Buys about one-half hay used.

Feeds about 6 per cent of hay per cow per day.

Feeds bran corn meal, beet pulp and brewers' sprouts. Proportions, bran 4 per cent, corn meal 2½ per cent beet pulp, 2 per cent, sprouts, 2 per cent. Varies quantity of feed to different animals. Not always the heaviest feeder is heaviest milker.

Beet pulp is practically a new feed. Beets are shredded, sugar extracted, pulp dried and ground. Feeds teaspoonful to tablespoonful of salt to each cow daily. Been feeding about 8 months without sickness or loss to herd. Pays feeder from $40 to $60 per month and board.

Employs about 65 men. 35 are milkers, and milk from 16 to 18 cows each.

One man cares for 30 cows. Thinks this too many, will reduce to 25 for trial. The one man does not include milkers.

Pays regular men $16 to $20 per month and board. Pays milkers $18 to $20 per month and board. Pays wagon drivers $25 per month and board.

Stables kept scrupulously clean. By a system of gutters and dumps they are easily cleaned every few hours. Shavings are used for bedding.

Cement troughs built in front of cows serve as a receptable for water as well as feed, being cleaned from one before using for other each time.

Milks his cows on an average of about two years. Fattens as much as possible last year, drys and sells and buys more to replace or keep up stock. Buys all sorts and kinds of breeds. Has regard for health and size only, in purchasing.

Purchases all carried to quarantine barn and tested before being placed with accepted herd. Cows and milk examined and re-examined at stated intervals.

Cows turned in barn yard for exercise about an hour each morning after milking in good weather.

Cows are curried and groomed every afternoon, and recleaned before each milking. In summer are sprayed to keep off flies.

Milkers have lavatory room in the barn, are required to wash and dress before each milking and submit to inspection.

Milk in tin pails with fine screen or sieve covering, through which the milk passes, being thus strained as it goes into the buckets. Milking is done at morning and evening. Is carried to dairy by a system of tramways in large cans as fast as milked. Is filtered through absorbent cotton and then passed over cooling pipes filled with cool, cold and icy way water respectively, thus reducing from 100 degrees to about 38 degrees in about 15 minutes time after milking and is then bottled.

Afternoon milking is certified milk. Morning milk is nursery milk.

Gets 12 cents per quart for certified and 8 cents per quart for nursery.

Cows now (Nov. 13) averaging 9 and 9½ quarts per day each. Average smallest in summer, at which time it is from 8 to 8½ quarts per cow per day. Will average over 8 quarts per day per year, figuring 365 days to the year.

Has 60 horse power engine in dairy. Makes own ice, about 10 tons a day.

Has up to date machinery in dairy with which all the work is done. Even bottles are washed, cleansed and sterilized by machinery. Everything is scrupulously clean.

Has shipped the certified milk in these bottles to Europe without its souring.

Has cream separator in dairy. Uses purest water and feed for stock.

"About 23 years ago my stock in trade was 17 cows and 2 horses. By the aid of my good wife the product was ready for market about 4 o'clock each morning and after returning thanks to our Heavenly Father for his protection and care during the night, and committing ourselves to him for the day, I would happily drive off to market with the milk," said Mr. Francisco.
