HAIL LIKE SILVER COINS.

Atlantic City Suffers Severely From This And Record Rain.

Hailstones as big as silver half dollars and quarters and of the same thickness fell for 10 minutes last Thursday night mixed with a torrential rain, one of the heaviest on record here, and shattered thousand of windows, caused innumerable runnaways, stalled six or seven trains on the Meadows, undermined several small building, uprooted trees and flooded the avenues until the water overflowed sidewalks and flowed into the basements of the hotel and cottages.

The storm broke out at 6.14, and in 10 minutes 1.10 inches fell. The hail was in all sizes, and rattled like musketry balls against the windows. Visitors were in the hotel dining rooms, and they left the tables in a scurry to their rooms to protect their clothing. Windows that were shattered in the hotels let in a flood of water that ruined furniture, and the water dripped through the rooms beneath. Like damage occurred in the tall appartment buildings. The Royal Palace, the Chalfonte, Kuehnle's and Coulter Hall were the chief sufferers from broken windows.

The plate glass in the Absecon lighthouse shaft was cracked and will have to be replaced. A cottage occupied by Abrahan Dinkus, 904 North Indiana, avenue with his wife and seven children, was shaken from its foundation and fell over against a cottage occupied by William Wray. The family fled into the storm and found shelter with neighbors. Trolley poles blown down compelled 500 residents of Pleasantville to remain over nigh in Atlantic City.

The wind was from the northwest, and the western side of the city, away from the beach front suffered most.

Spoils.

Briggs—I was crossing the Jersey meadows the other day in a large auto, when we were attacked by a band of mosquitoes.

Griggs—Thursday morning, wasn't it?

"Yes, How did you know?

"Why, on Thursday morning I saw them passing over Newark and some of them had goggles on."—Life.

What shall it be?

That's the question that is asked over and over again when there is a present to be chosen for a school graduate.

Most people agree that it should come from a jewelry store—because somehow jewelry and presents are always associated.

If those interested only knew it, we could relieve them of their uncertainty in a minute.

Our stock furnishes the hints. It reveals in a minute more appropriate presents than anyone could sit at home and recall in a whole day.

So we invite buyers of presents, and we promise to make their choosing easy and their choice satisfactory.

Goods bought at our store will be engraved free.
