THE NEW SENATOR.

The appointment of former Governor William Pinkney Whyte as United States Senator by Governor Warfield to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Gorman is the result of the determination of the Governor to do every thing in the interest of the people, and to appoint to such responsible positions, when such vacancies occur, the men best fitted from an intellectual standpoint to discharge the duties of the high office. There is no man in the State more ably qualified for the position than former Governor Whyte, and his appointment has pleased all those whose ideas of the qualification for the United States Senate are of an intellectual character. The motive which prompted Gov. Warfield to make such an appointment was a most worthy one, and is only another illustration of the fact that he desires the public good rather than to enhance his own political ambitions, if he has any beyond making Maryland a most excellent Governor. There is no politics in the appointment so far as we are able to see, because the interest of Gov. Whyte in politics has not been sufficiently great in late years to warrent the belief that he has a large political influence, though personally he is one of the most popular men in the State. The appointment of Gov. Whyte to the United States Senate simply leaves the field open for the election of Senator Gorman's successor in 1908, and judging from the number of names mentioned as probable candidates, the fight promises to be a long and hard one. The appointment of Gov. Whyte has been favorably received in Kent.

DuPont to be Senator.

After much wrangling both in and out of caucus, lasting several hours, the Republican members of the Delaware General Assembly on Monday night agreed on the first ballot to the selection of Col. H. A. DuPont as the caucus nominee for United States Senator from Delaware for the balance of the constitutional term beginning March 4, 1905, and ending March 4, 1911.

Thus ends one of most bitter fights ever witnessed in a senatorial contest in Delaware or elsewhere, covering a period of over 12 years. The result of the one ballot taken was: DuPont, 20; Addicks, 10; H. H. Ward 1.

Col. Henry A. DuPont is a member of the famous DuPont family, who have been manufacturers of powder and other explosives in Delaware for over a century. He is a son of the late Gen. Henry DuPont, and was born at Brandywine Bank in 1836.
