HAS "TRUST BUSTING" BENEFITED PEOPLE?

QUESTION ABOUT WHICH THERE IS MUCH DISAGREEMENT.

In Opinion of Many Government Officials Sherman Law is a Failure—More Trusts Than Ever And Prices Still Going Up.

Washington, June 27.—In the opinion of many high administration officials the Sherman anti-trust law has proved a flat failure so far as breaking up illegal combinations and keeping down prices are concerned. New laws with more teeth in them are needed if the trusts are to be kept in check and the cost of living restricted to reasonable bounds.

During the last five years every month has brought newspaper stories of some phase of Federal proceedings against trusts. "Regulate the trusts" has been sort of a motto adopted by the Administraton. Just now official information is being given out almost daily about the preparations to attack several more great trusts. In the list marked for attack are the Tobacco Trust, the Harvester Trust, the Lumber Trust, the Hard Coal Trust and the Powder Trust.

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED.

The most cursory examination of the fact reveals that the Government has been industrious in conducting investigations and in bringing proceedings under the Sherman anti-trust law. As to what has actually been accomplished that is of genuine benefit to any considerable number of citizens of the country is a question about which there is disagreement.

A glance backward will show that the business of "trust busting" with the Sherman anti-trust law as the weapon has been rather up-hill business. As a matter of fact, the Federal Government has hardly made a dent on the trust business. More trusts exist in the United States to-day than ever before in the history of the country, and new ones are being organized right along.

COST OF LIVING INCREASING.

To be sure, it is not the policy of the party in power and of the Administration to "destroy" but to "regulate," and there has been a great deal of talk about "good trusts" and "bad trusts," but the probability is that sooner or later the people, who are finding the cost of living steading going up, will want to know what they are getting out of the "trust-busting" business.

In all the warfare the Government has conducted the last four or five years has substantial benefit come to anybody? Certainly there have been no reductions of prices on any commodity as a result of the Government's anti-trust policy. It is a fact well-known to the Government that practically every commodity that enters into the daily life of the citizens is now trust-made and trust-sold. And everybody knows that prices keep going up.

CAN REMEDY BE FOUND?

Has the Government failed to find a remedy for the trust evil, if it is an evil? Would a little less tariff help to solve the problem? These and various other questions are likely to occur to anyone who sits down and attempts to make a just review of what the Government has done for its people in the way of regulating trusts.

Made it Hot For Him.

"I was trying to work up business in a Dakota town," said a Chicago drummer, "when I ran across a good looking woman in the millinery business. It was my duty to my employers to chin with her; to compliment her; to praise her hair and eyes and mouth; to say that if I wasn't a married man I should come courting, and so forth and so forth. She was also a married woman, and her little runt of a husband was an alderman of the town. He didn't dare tackle me like a man, but this is what he did:

"He had me arrested for swearing.

"He had me arrested for standing on a corner more than five minutes.

"He had me arrested for kicking a a dog.

"He had me arrested for having a euchre deck in my possession.

"He had me arrested for disorderly conduct.

"He had me arrested for threatening a boy on a bike who ran against me.

"I was taken into court on the six counts, and the lawyer I engaged just sat there and said nothing and I was fined five dollars on each and every count. I paid over the cash, and in going out of court had something to say about western justice. I was called back and fined ten dollars, and then I pranced out of town."

Sidney Adams, of Cambridge, Md., a mate on the schooner A. H. Schultz, owned by H. A. Conway, was drowned in Sassafras River last week. His body has not yet been found. A wife and several children survive Adams.

Erring Pastor at Mourners' Bench.

Members of the Holiness Church at Harrington are rejoicing greatly over the return of their pastor, Rev. M. DeWitt Carpenter, who fled several weeks ago after mailing a letter intended for Miss Della Goodrich to the Recorder of Deeds, in mistake for a marriage record.

Rev. Mr. Carpenter slipped quietly into town Saturday night and received the forgiveness and welcome of his family. Sunday morning he entered the church, and, going directly to the altar, knelt in prayer. His penitent attitude touched the heart strings of his congregation, and loud cries of joy and fervent amens arose. Mrs. Carpenter conducted the service, as she has been doing since her husband left town.

Later Mr. Carpenter made a confession of his sins to his flock and received an assurance of welcome and support. Fully nine-tenths of the congregation are in favor of reinstating him as pastor, and formal action will be taken probably some night this week.

Without Regret.

Private John Allen blew into the lobby of the House of Representatives and met Senator Cannon.

"Howdy, Joe?" he said.

"Howdy, John?"

"You are not as young as you used to be Joe, but you are well preserved."

"Not as well preserved as you are, John, but I'm not complaining."

"I should think not," said the private, looking the speaker over. Even a man in your affluent circumstances has no right to complain when he has just had his salary raised four thousand dollars a year."

"John," replied the speaker impressively as he placed his hand on the private's shoulder—"John, the true Christian soldier takes what is coming to him without murmur or regret."

—Strong-minded Old Lady (to the new vicar's wife)—"Oh, yes, mum, I've 'ad my ups and downs, but I never 'ad what you may call a serious trouble. I've only lost two husbands!"

Our Part and His.

Providence hath a thousand keys to open a thousand doors for the deliverance of His own when it has come to the greatest extremity. Let us be faithful and care for our own part, which is to do and suffer for Him, and lay Christ's part on Himself, and leave it there; duties are ours, events are the Lord's. When our faith goeth to meddle with events and to hold a court (if I may so speak) upon God's providence, and beginning to say, "How wilt Thou do this or that?" we lose ground—we have nothing to do there; it is our part to let the Almighty exercise His own office and steer His own helm.—Samuel Rutherford.

The Apt Pupil.

The philanthropical Fifth avenue lady was visiting a lower east side Sunday School. To test the aptness of a particularly indigent cluster of pupils she took the class in hand to question them.

"Children, which is the greatest of all virtues?"

Not one answered.

"Think a little. What is it I am doing when I give up time and pleasure to come down among you for your moral good?"

A grimy fist went up.

"Well, what am I doing, little boy?"

"Buttin' in!"

Albert Constable, of Elkton, has been retained as council by the widow of James Henry to enter suit for $25,000 against the Pennsylvania railroad for the death of her husband. Henry was put off a train at Seaford for failure to preduce his ticket, and in walking across the bridge over Nanticoke River fell overboard and was drowned.
