15,000 FRATERNAL ORDER MEMBERS TO PARADE.

Baltimore, September.

The features of Wednesday, October 16th, or Maryland's Old Home Week will be the magnificent street parade and invitation ball to be given by the Fraternal Orders. The Fraternal Committee, of which Mr. John M. Deponai is chairman, is working actively for the success of this occasion.

The parade will be held during the day and will be composed of large delegations from every fraternal organization represented in this State. All the paraders will be in uniforms of their respective orders and each organization will have in line one or more handsomely designed floats and there will be at least 1000 musicians in the various bands that will make merry music for the marchers as they pass through the great throngs that will crowd the streets on this occasion.

There will be a large number of Ladies' Fraternal Orders represented in the procession, and while the members of the fair sex will not be among the marchers, hundreds of them will ride in tastefully adorned barouches and each of their organizations will contribute a float to the spectacular affair.

Governor Warfield, Mayor Mahool and other celebrities will review the pageant from a specially constructed grandstand near to centre of the city.

The ball, which is to be given by the Fraternal Societies to all visiting brothers and comrades at night, will be held in the immense Armory of the Fifth Regiment, and will be one of the biggest social affairs of its kind that Baltimore has ever seen. The Armory will be decorated with the Maryland and national colors and will be specially illuminated for the occasion.

The magnificence of the Fraternal Order Day will be in strict keeping with the other big features of Maryland's Old Home Week.

Tens of thousands of ivitations are being sent out by the Governor of Maryland to former residents who now reside in other sections, and it is expected that the gathering in this city during the reunion will be a record breaker.

A Word to Boys.

Our young friend, did you ever know—can you call to mind a single case of a person, who having his own way to make in the world, spent his time on the street or any other form of idleness or dissipation, to succeed in an eminent degree in any enterprise? Look over your list of friends and acquaintances and note their course. Do you not find upon examination that those who today are men of influence and honor, were the youths who made the most of valuable time, turning it to good account? And, on the other hand, do you not find that those who stood on the corners with a pipe or cigar in their mouths, went from bad to worse, from worse to ruin? Sadly must the answer be made—oh, that it were not so—they have failed. Will you profit by the experience of others? Go not that way. Never be idle. Every moment of your time is a golden one, use it as such, improve your mind, fix your mind on some noble object; be men. The call is for men; will you not be one of that number who can say—"I am a man?"

Good Manners.

Young folks should be mannerly. How to be so is the question. Many a good girl and boy feel as though they do not behave to suit themselves in company. They feel timid, bashful and distrustful, the moment they are addressed by a stranger or appear in company. There is but one way to get over this feeling, and acquire easy and graceful manners; that is, to do the best they can at home, as well as abroad. Good manners are not learned by teaching so much as an acquired habit. They grow upon us by use. We must be courteous kind, civil, gentlemanly and womanly at home, and then it will become a kind of second nature to be so elsewhere. A course, rough manner at home begets a bit of roughness which we cannot lay off when we get among strangers. The most agreeable people we have ever known in company are those who are perfectly agreeable at home.

Home is the school for all good things especially for good manners.

Luxury in Mining "Camps."

[From the New York Press.]

One thing that amazes the first-time visitor to a modern mining camp is its luxury. The forty-niners, could they see the up-to-date settlements where the precious metals are taken out of the grounds, would rub their eyes with astonishment. In olden days when a miner had made a strike his first thought, after realizing his fortune, was to get away from the mines and spend his millions in Frisco, Chicago or New York. Now he stays where he is and sends for his wife. In Goldfield, Cobalt and other mining colonies automobiles are no uncommon sight, and the table of the average lucky digger gleams with damask and silver. There are women in all those places who dress as modishly as any in Fifth avenue and who buy their frocks from New York houses as regularly as if they wrote "Manhattan" after their house numbers. As for the men, there are as many wearing ulsters lined with mink and even seal as may be seen in the farcheaper coonskin coat worn with the hair outside that once denoted the top notch of prosperity in Northern mining camps. No settlement established in a successful mining district flourished for many months without having its school, church and opera house. Children in fashionable clothes troop daily to and from institutions of learning presided over by Yale and Harford graduates. The lucky miner doesn't have to say good-by to the mines to enjoy his wealth today. Of course, there's only one place on the continent where money can be spent to real advantage, but, omitting New York from the reckoning, the fortunate prospector can roll in luxury about as satisfactorily in the town that saw the birth of his fortune as anywhere else in the Union.

LOCALS.

*†*The cool nights and dry weather are seriously affecting the corn crop, and there are doubts as to anything like a good crop.

*†*Supt. G. E. Noland was delighted with the attendance at the fair, which was large each day. The biggest crowd in the history of the popular resort was present on Thursday, and the order every day was splendid.

*†*Carpenters began the erection of a dwelling and outbuildings on Mr. Fred G. Usilton's farm near Tolchester last week. The farm will be tenanted by Mr. Thomas Blackiston. Mr. Blackiston's son, Claude, will tenant the Vickers farm in Quaker Neck next year.

A Relic of the Past.

The parlor as a parlor will soon be a relic of the past. The very name seems to suggest stiffness and lack of comfort. The new houses, even the most modest ones, will have the best room, the one in which the whole family gathers, a warm, sunny pace, a home room in its truest sense. The next generation will not waste space on parlors. Perhaps a little library, for privacy, will also be indispensable to many. This cheery room of the future will hold the piano, the general books, the pictures, work baskets and everything that serves to make home a haven of rest for loyal hearts. Spread the day.—Caldwell News Chronicle.

Chester River Furnishes First Oysters for Canton.

Bugeye Kirk Daugherty, Capt. Tarr, from Chester river, which arrived Tuesday, was the first vessel at Canton, near Baltimore, this season, with oysters. She carried 250 bushels, caught from the natural rocks. The cargo was reported to be in fair condition.

Horseshoeing Season is Here.

An even-gaited horse is desirable to all horsemen. The gait is governed by the shoeing. If you want a good job of shoeing bring your horses to me and you will get it.

To get a good carriage, dearborn or wagon, it is necessary to go to a good wheelwhright—then come to my shop, as I am the man who can do both jobs to your entire satisfaction.

STYLE THAT'S WORTH WHILE

Is worth the price. This is just as true of vehicles as of anything else. The brains and skill that make style possible do cost and must be paid for. You can always get cheap STYLE-IMITATION, NEVER DUPLICATION. Imitation always shouts aloud.

CORTLAND WAGON COMPANY VEHICLES

get a stronger hold on the public every day because of possessing genuine style. Though it costs more to make them you get them for but little above the price of ordinary vehicles, because they're sold so close to cost of production. In other words, nothing is charged for Cortland reputation. And then to style is added wear and comfort.

Cortland Wagon Company Vehicles stand up, are sold at a fair price and by us, who you know will make good any just claims. We can supply them in 140 styles. We also represent other reliable manufacturers, with complete lines. Won't you call?

We Sell HARNESS AND ROBES.
